29 Indicted As U. S. Acts To Destroy Nazi Bund

Charged With Plot To Evade Draft; 25 Others May Be Denaturalized

By the Associated Press

New York, July 7.—Federal agents launched a coast-to-coast drive today to put the German-American Bund "out of business."

A legal attack was aimed at 54 of the bund's highest officers, including Fritz Kuhn, former national bund leader now in prison, and his successor, Wilhelm Kunze, arrested in Mexico and returned to the United States yesterday.

It reached into the States of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Minnesota, Indiana, Washington and California.

Twenty-six men were named in indictments charging conspiracy to evade the Selective Service Act and conspiracy to counsel bund members to resist service in the armed forces of the United States, and conspiracy to conceal bund affiliations in filling out alien registration forms. Three more were accused of only the Selective Service violation. All 29 were in Federal custody, P. E. Foxworth, assistant FBI chief, said.

"Singing Societies" Active

The remainder—among them national and sectional officials and principal leaders of the bund—were the object of denaturalization proceedings.

United States Attorney Mathias F. Correa said that although the bund was nominally defunct since the outbreak of war, numerous singing societies in the Yorkville section of New York and elsewhere had taken over bund activities and continued to foster Nazi beliefs. Such organizations would be investigated further, he said.

The United States attorney said that under the name of "A Militant Organization of Free Americans" the bund sought to advance the political and propaganda aims of the German Reich.

Advised to Refuse Duty

The Government move struck Kuhn, who is serving a term for larceny, through denaturalization proceedings.

Kunze, arraigned yesterday on a charge of violating the Selective Service Act for failure to report his address, pleaded innocent today and was held in bail of $50,000 by Federal Judge George C. Sweeney. He

Chandler Pool Faces Probe For 'Hot Water'

A Truman committee investigator yesterday was ordered to look into the question of how much, if any, political "hot water" there is in Senator Albert B. "Happy" Chandler's new 60-foot blue-tile swimming pool at his Versailles, Ky., home.

The investigation was requested first by Senator Chandler and later by his opponent in the forthcoming Kentucky senatorial primaries, John Young Brown, 42-year-old Lexington, Ky., attorney, and former Congressman.

Truman committee action was invited, it was learned, because the builder of the pool is connected with a firm which has been subcontracting for military projects. His name is Ben Collings and his firm is the Colonial Supply Co. of Louisville, Ky.

Senator Chandler described the pool as a gift built "in the name of friendship and accepted in the same spirit."

Brown's letter to Senator Truman, dated July 2, said that the Colonial Supply Co. had "enjoyed four subcontracts with the Government" and that besides the Chandler swimming pool had presented another $10,000 swimming pool to the Lieutenant Governor of Kentucky.

He said that into Chandler's pool "went 4 tons of steel without priority being asked or given. Into it went brass. No other citizen could have obtained brass. Not even the Army can secure it."

The primary is scheduled for August 1; Senator Chandler's present term extends to January 3, 1943. Brown served in Congress as Representative at Large from Kentucky from 1933 to 1935, later was special assistant to the Attorney General, and recently has been attorney for the United Mine Workers.

Trial of 8 Opens Today

One Spy Gets Separate Counsel, Hinting at Leniency for Him

By Dillard Stokes
Post Staff Writer

Eight German saboteur-spies remained in the District Jail yesterday, awaiting the sitting today of the Military Commission which may send them to the gallows or the firing squad.

While the seven generals of the commission met in secret at the Department of Justice during the afternoon to discuss procedure, Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox spent several hours personally inspecting the guard over the prisoners.

These prisoners came to the United States in years past, found homes, jobs, opportunities and—some of them—wives. They learned our language, customs and the lay of the land. Then they went back to Germany and learned the trade of destruction in a Nazi school of sabotage.

Then they came again, as soldiers of Hitler's Reich, slipping off two submarines a few weeks ago. Their mission was to blast, burn and kill.

Trapped, they now face death under the laws of war—men without rights. President Roosevelt, by proclamation, denied them access to the civil courts and left their judgment to the Military Commission. But the President will review the finding himself, and there were indications that one of the Nazis may not be put to death.

This was George John Dasch, 39, who fought in the Kaiser's armies in the first war, came to America and worked as a waiter until he went back to Germany in 1941. Col. Carl L. Ristine yesterday was named to appear for Dasch at the hearing. Col. Ristine would not say why Dasch was given separate counsel. "Perhaps," he suggested, "there was some conflict of interests."

The Army clamped military secrecy on every detail of the spy case. Even the hour for the hearing was not announced. As General Cox, the provost marshal of the Military District of Washington, came out of the jail, he nodded approval of the line of armed soldiers in the courtyard. But when he was questioned, he shook his head gravely.

"I can't say whether the hearing will be on Wednesday," he said. "All I can tell you is to keep your

Saving Nation, Not Just Rubber

U. S. Might Seize Tires if War Gets Worse, President Warns

Nelson and Ickes Scrap Over Rubber Campaign; Interior Chief Spanked

War Production Board Chairman Donald M. Nelson and Interior Secretary Harold Ickes are scrapping over President Roosevelt's scrap rubber drive.

The details began to come to light yesterday in communiques, some of them unofficial, issued on behalf of both protagonists.

Nelson declined to comment, but his aides admitted that he spanked Ickes for failing to consult him before Ickes obtained the President's consent to extend the drive, a move which, Nelson protested, interfered with the start of a WPB campaign for salvage of all scarce war materials.

The spanking was administered in a Nelson letter to Ickes, variously described as "pungent" and "strong" and a "short but tart note."

Ickes wrote a letter back, the text of which was also withheld, but the contents of which were embodied in a communique entitled "Concerning Mr. Nelson's Comments."

"Splendid" Accomplishments

Mr. Roosevelt's order for a lightning rubber drive was attributed by Ickes to the President's "wise decision." The Secretary said he felt extension of the drive was also wise.

"The petroleum industry has responded loyally to the President's appeal and the oil companies have given unstintingly of personnel and facilities to do the job," Ickes declared, and referred to the campaign's accomplishments as "splendid."

The oil companies, said Ickes, who doubles as petroleum coordinator, "are much more entitled to be thanked than spanked."

At WPB it was observed that decisions affecting the war effort are supposed to be routed through Nelson, that the board was set up and Nelson made its chairman for the purpose of bringing order to war production and related activities.

Nelson, it was said, has no interest in the academic question of wartime protocol or who outranks whom among the war agencies, but

334,293 Tons Salvaged; Better Than Lowest Estimate for Drive

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Staff Writer

President Roosevelt said yesterday that if the war gets worse he might have to take every automobile tire in the United States. The Chief Executive made the statement—and repeated it—at a press conference while discussing the rubber and gasoline problem in general.

A reporter had asked the President if he did not think gasoline rationing was the most practical way of restricting automobile use to business driving.

Mr. Roosevelt said he didn't know, and couldn't tell what the answers were to the problem.

Complex Situation

But, he said, if the war gets worse he may have to commandeer every automobile tire in the United States. He said, with some feeling, that he was trying to save the Nation, not merely tires. And he added that he knew the Nation was willing to make every sacrifice.

At the outset, the President said he was trying to separate the question of rubber from the question of gasoline, but he admitted that no formula for this had yet been worked out. Apparently he felt that motorists living in oil-producing States, where there is no gasoline shortage, were justified in objecting to gasoline rationing.

Cooperation of Drivers Asked

The President said that if he lived next door to an oil well, had an automobile and plenty of tires, he could see no reason why he should not use the car if it was necessary in his business.

Mr. Roosevelt said you could talk all day about the rubber and gasoline situation and still not understand it. He said he knew more about it than most people, but he doubted whether he could write an intelligent story about it.

A White House report yesterday showed that 334,293 tons of scrap and nonessential rubber have been

Calling All Workers!

War Industry Will Induct 20 Million During 1942-43

By the Associated Press

Charlottesville, Va., July 7.—Brig. Gen. Frank J. McSherry said today nearly 20 million persons must be inducted into United States war activities during 1942 and 1943.

In an address before the University of Virginia Institute of Public Affairs, the director of operations of the War Man Power Commission reported that it was reliably estimated that "at least 10,500,000 additional workers" must be added to the war industries this year if the President's war production program was to be accomplished.

In addition, he said, 3,400,000 men would be withdrawn from the labor market during 1942 for the military services, making a total of more than 13,900,000 persons to be placed in war activities during the present calendar year.

"While we do not know precisely what the war production program will be at that time," General McSherry added, "it is estimated that we will need over 2,500,000 additional workers in war industries during the coming year. The exact increase in the military forces being unknown, it may be assumed that the increase will be at least 3,500,000. We face, therefore, a combined total increase in war production work and in armed forces of approximately six million people in 1943. This makes a grand total of 19,900,000 persons to be inducted into war activities during 1942 and 1943.

"It is estimated that the total increase of 13,900,000 persons to be inducted into war activities during 1942 will come from the following sources: Conversion from nondefense production and services to war employment, 8,600,000; reduction in unemployment, 1,400,000; reduction in agricultural employment, 400,000—and an overall increase in our active labor forces of 3,300,000. Agriculture Voted Funds For July

Employes to Get Their Checks Today; Senate Approves Commodity 'Floor'

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

Congress yesterday called an armistice in its farm war to speed temporary funds to the Agriculture Department, but promptly resumed hostilities on the Administration's grain-selling policies and farm security activities.

Passage of a stop-gap bill to run the department through July came after the Senate injected a new issue in the congressional battle royal over "parity."

Parity Floor Approved

In effect, the Senate by a 28-to-24 vote approved a parity floor under prices of six basic farm commodities by voting for 100 per cent parity loans to cooperating farmers.

Denounced as "socialistic" and "discriminatory" by opponents, the full parity loan bill had at least the tacit backing of the Administration, and was designed to cut House opposition to subparity sales of Government grain to feed livestock.

While both House and Senate voted 30-day funds for the Agriculture Department to continue to function, the conference deadlock on full-year appropriations continued unbroken.

House Holds Out

House managers still held out against subparity grain sales and increased farm security appropriations which the President declared essential to produce "food for victory." The temporary bill gave the Administration a green light on its program, but only through July 31.

Long before that date, conferees said they hoped to agree on a compromise. Sponsors of the full parity loan bill passed by the Senate said it would remove farm opposition to sales below parity, but ranking House farm conferees insisted it had "absolutely no relation" to issues in dispute.

Temporary appropriations were voted on the eve of payday today for 13,700 Washington employes of the department. Pleasantly surprised, officials of the agency said a White House signature may enable them to pay off at close of business today. Some 67,733 employes in the field will be paid on July 15.

House Version Accepted

Emergency House action came on a simple Senate resolution continuing 1942 farm appropriations through July. The House substituted language of its own, having the same net effect, but only after a pitched battle with opponents of the Administration's grain policies. The Senate accepted the House language and sent the 30-day re-

Russians Retreat, 2 Gigantic Battles Raging in Don Basin; Rommel's Lines Forced Back

Nazi Shortens Right Flank; Conflict Dies Down, Lull Broken Only by Artillery

By Harry Crockett
Associated Press Staff Writer

Cairo, July 7.—The Axis front in the Qattara-Mediterranean corridor was bent back on the southern flank under Allied pressure today while the weary ground forces left it to the cannoneers to keep the battle alive in the 120-degree desert heat and to Allied air forces striking deep on the enemy supply lines.

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

AXIS FISHHOOK—The Axis Egyptian front in the Qattara-Mediterranean corridor was bent back like a fishhook (A) under pressure from the Allies (B) to prevent British forces from flanking German lines

The tactical nature of the new Axis position was not entirely clear, but it was surmised that the wily Marshal Edwin Rommel had pulled his harried southern forces back to the westward to form a great arc of defense extending from his left flank on the seashore.

The net result was that the front facing squarely to the east had been somewhat shortened and curved to prevent British tanks from cutting into Rommel's rear as they did in saving El Alamein last week in the first phase of the battle to save Alexandria, some 70 miles distant. As the flank was pulled in by Axis design, the British, South African and other Allied troops followed right along.

The Battle of El Alamein had died down and the ground forces were engaged only sporadically.

Cannonading continued from both sides, however, and in some quarters it was believed that this was in preparation for new action, that the

Bows to Germany

Argentina Orders Its Merchant Ships to Avoid U. S. East Coast

By the Associated Press

Buenos Aires, July 7.—The Argentine Naval Ministry has ordered all its merchant ships to avoid Eastern United States ports because of the Axis submarine campaign, and the ships will dock at Gulf of Mexico points instead, a reliable authority said tonight.

In taking this action after two other ships were torpedoed, the Argentine government, which still maintains diplomatic relations with the Axis, actually was conforming to a German-announced blockade of the Eastern United States coastline.

But a high Argentine source explained it this way instead:

That Germany had given Argentina the right to penetrate the so-called blockade zone, but Argentina did not want to accept this "special status" because she would appear to be acting in collusion with a non-American power.

He said Argentina still insisted on her right of freedom of the seas, and added:

"This action does not signify acceptance of the blockade announced by Germany, but is taken merely as a measure of precaution."

Germany announced a Nazi blockade zone of the Eastern United States Seaboard on June 15 which was to become effective June 26. Gulf of Mexico ports were not included.

Foreign Minister Enrique Ruiz Guinazu earlier had announced that the government's controversy with Germany over the Axis sinking of the freighter Rio Tercero was a closed incident.

The Rio Tercero was torpedoed and sunk off the United States coast, and another Argentine ship, the Victoria, was torpedoed before it. The Victoria, however, did not sink.

Germany admitted responsibility for the Rio Tercero sinking only yesterday, saying it was not marked adequately. Germany refused an Argentine request that Germany make a ceremonial gesture of respect toward the Argentine flag, and Ruiz Guinazu said he was not going to press the matter.

After Germany admitted the sinking, Argentina sent a new note to the Nazis promising that this South American nation would take further precautions.

These "further precautions" now bar Argentine ships from the Eastern United States coastline.

New WPB Due Today as Fight Nears Climax

Nelson, Knowlson, Batt Slated for Posts; Military Seeks Control

By Robert De Vore
Post Staff Writer

A struggle between War Production Board Chairman Donald M. Nelson and chiefs of the armed services over control of the Nation's war economy neared its climax last night with a brand new WPB scheduled to be unveiled today.

The outcome of the struggle which President Roosevelt may have to settle, will determine largely whether the Army and Navy or a civilian agency shall take command in the vital field of deciding what portions of the country's supply of steel, aluminum, copper and other critical materials shall be devoted to civilian production and what part shall be channeled into factories making planes, ships and tanks in accordance with the strategic demands of the war.

With Nelson, the leading personality in the struggle is Lieut. Gen. Brehon B. Somervell, chief of the Army's services of supply.

Stated in its simplest terms, the struggle is such that, if wholly won by Somervell, the Nation's economy—war and civilian—would be under the domination of the Army and Navy for the duration.

WPB spokesmen last night denied that the controversy held up yesterday's scheduled announcement of WPB's long considered reorganization. They said it was due, first, to a desire to avoid conflict with President Roosevelt's press conference.

U-Boats Sink 2 U. S. Vessels, 1 British Ship

American Engineer Thrice Spurns Hand Of Sub Commander

A Caribbean Port, July 7 (AP).—The chief engineer of a medium-sized Norwegian cargo ship torpedoed in the Caribbean the afternoon of June 15 told here of thrice spurning the effort of a submarine commander to shake hands with him.

(The incident followed the sinking of his ship, which was among three ship losses announced today by the Navy at Washington. The Navy also released a story of the shelling of a small British tanker in the Caribbean the night of June 17. Twenty of the 21 men aboard the tanker were rescued although two submarines poured some 60 shells into their ship, survivors said.

(The Navy announced also that a small United States merchant vessel had been torpedoed in the Caribbean area and that survivors had landed at an East Coast port.)

The chief engineer was one of 13 members of the 25-man crew announced by naval authorities as rescued from the two life rafts. The 12 others are believed to have gone down with the ship, which sank in 30 seconds after having been almost broken in half by a torpedo explosion.

There was no previous warning of a submarine's presence, related the engineer, and the ship sank so rapidly that those of the crew who could simply jumped overboard.

German Machines Cross Don, Roll On Over Own Dead; Foe Claims Voronezh

By Henry C. Cassidy
Associated Press Staff Writer

Moscow (Wednesday), July 8.—The German army, despite stubborn Russian resistance, has driven still deeper into the Don Basin southwest of Staryi Oskol, the Soviet midnight communique said today.

Red Army forces in this sector "retired to previously prepared defense lines" after a smashing attack by 200 German tanks and a large infantry force, the communique acknowledged.

Violent Battle For Voronezh

Another violent battle was said to be continuing west of Voronezh, on the vital Moscow-Rostov Railway, east of the Don and about 65 miles northeast of Staryi Oskol.

There was no indication in the communique that the Germans had advanced in the Voronezh sector, but a supplement issued by the Soviet information bureau said "our artillery and infantry for two days defended one village against superior enemy forces." This appeared to indicate the village had been given up.

At the approaches of this village, the supplementary communique said, the Germans lost more than 1000 men in killed alone and in another sector of the Voronezh front 700 Germans were killed in a combined tank and infantry attack.

Foe Pays Great Price.

Commenting on the fierceness of the fighting in the Staryi Oskol sector, the communique said:

"Eighty German tanks were disabled. Enormous losses were likewise sustained by enemy infantry. Our men mowed down the Hitlerites by point-blank machine-gun, automatic rifle and rifle fire."

(The German high command said the city of Voronezh had fallen in a drive 130 miles east of Kursk and 60 miles beyond the high-water mark of Germany's 1941 advance. From Voronezh, the German command said, the advance was continuing toward Povorino on a secondary Moscow-to-Caucasus railway connection 140 miles farther east.

(The official French news agency reported in Vichy that the Red Army had launched a violent counter-attack against the southern flank of the Nazi wedge, striking toward Kharkov from Izyum and Kupyansk, and pushing the Germans back across the Krasnaya River.)

Advance Over Own Dead

A Tass correspondent reported that every foot of the German advance into the ravine-cut chalk hills of western Voronezh Province was over the piled bodies of Nazi dead. He wrote that six trains totaling 247 cars had taken German wounded back from the Don River battle zone alone, yet still new troops surged on in their places.

Tanks, the rolling forward wall of the Nazi offensive, were reported

10,000 Czechs Slain Since June, but Sabotage Goes On

Ankara, Turkey, July 6 (Delayed) (AP).—Ten thousand Czechs have been killed since Reinhard Heydrich was assassinated in Prague early in June and 25,000 German soldiers, assisted by 100,000 secret police are working night and day to halt sabotage inside Czechoslovakia, a German arrival told German residents here today.

Germany is sending thousands of workers and establishing many new war factories in Czechoslovakia since the heavy British raids on German industrial towns, he said.

Sabotage in Czechoslovakia was reported constantly increasing as a result of wholesale executions and bands of marauders are operating from forests around Prague, it was stated.

D. C. Flier Loses Life in Far East

Father Learns of Son's Death Hour After Getting Last Letter

Lieut. Col. Roland Birnn, 3162 Westover Drive Southeast, received a letter yesterday morning from his son, Lieut. Richard Roland Birnn, 22, U. S. Army pilot, somewhere in Australia, saying he was "well, working hard and don't worry."

An hour later, when Colonel Birnn reached his office in the War Department, he was officially notified that his son had been killed "somewhere in the Far East."

"It was a hard blow," Colonel Birnn, also a pilot, said last night. "My wife and I were cheered so much by that letter. And just a few days ago we received a cable from Richard saying that he had been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross by Lieut. Gen. George Brett. He didn't say what he had done to win it, but it must have been for some unusual performance."

LIEUT. BIRNN

Lieutenant Birnn, a native of New York, attended Paul Junior High School here and later went to Georgia Tech. He entered the Army as a flying cadet in June, 1940, and received his wings at Kelly Field, Tex. He was then sent to the Philippines and was there when the war broke out.

The young flier saw action, his father said, and was one of those

One Twin Jew, Other Aryan, Nazis Say

Stockholm, June 7 (U.P.).—Nazi science has just decided that two Viennese twins, a boy and a girl, 20, are not brother and sister and they are not of the same race.

Their mother, according to the Nazis, is a "pure Aryan."

Her husband is an Austrian Jew.

The mother went to the officials and sought to prove that a "pure Aryan" was the father of one of the twins. The Vienna Anthropological Society was called in to examine the "pure Aryan," the Austrian Jew and the mother.

Their verdict was that there was a striking likeness between the girl twin and her mother, while the boy twin resembled the Austrian Jew. Blood tests were said to show that the girl belonged to the "pure Aryan" blood group "A," while the boy belonged to the blood group "B."

The twins were said, therefore, to be half-brother and half-sister, and the half-sister became exempt from the racial laws against Jews."

More Harm Than Good

British End 'High-Powered Publicity Mission' to America

By the Associated Press

London, July 7.—Commons cheered today as Brendan Bracken, minister of information, declared that "a high-powered publicity mission instructed to force Britain down the throats of the American people" would do more harm than good, and that no more British lecturers would be sent to the United States because their efforts already had turned out that way.

Bracken spoke in reply to criticism of Britain's propaganda effort from both right and left.

Responding to complaints that he had sent "socialites" to propagandize in the United States, Bracken said he had laid down an "absolute rule" that no more lecturers be sent.

He added that a prominent American had estimated that less than 8 per cent of the American population was irreconcilably anti-British and "could only be cured by the undertaker."

Bracken disclosed also that he had created a political warfare executive to coordinate the work of many diverse propaganda agencies.

He said Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden formulated the policy and he himself administered it, and "we have always been in complete agreement."

With some critics charging inefficiency and others alleging leftist tendencies in British propaganda services, Parliamentary Secretary Ernest Thurtle disclosed that Britain would spend about $34,400,000 on propaganda at home and abroad during the current fiscal year, an increase of $9,740,000 over last year.

Of the Information Ministry's budget, 16 million dollars was spent on publicity services, Thurtle said, with more than half of this going for overseas propaganda.

Bracken also reported that the R. A. F. had dropped 145 million propaganda leaflets on enemy and enemy-

Daniel Willard, Former B. & O. President, Dies

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, July 6.—Daniel Willard, who rose from track gang laborer to president of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and chairman of its board of directors, died tonight in Union Memorial Hospital. He was 81.

In failing health recently, the veteran railroad executive had been seriously ill for about six weeks.

Death was attributed to a heart condition which had its inception about five years ago. At that time Willard suffered what is known as a heart occlusion at Reading, Pa., while inspecting the Reading Railway. However, he was not taken to a hospital until May 21, when his condition became serious.

He is survived by his widow, his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Daniel Willard, jr., and four grandchildren. Both of Willard's sons are dead. Harold, the older, died during the influenza epidemic of the First World War. Daniel, jr., who was assistant general counsel of the B. & O., died in May, 1940.

Throughout his 62 years of railroading, Willard retained a keen insight into the problems of the humble worker and was influential in shaping Federal legislation affecting railroads.

He frequently was an important witness in hearings held by Congress and in rate cases before the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The last Federal measure in which he was vitally concerned was the Chandler bill, which provided that a corporation could, with court approval, make effective a reorganization plan despite minority objection if it obtained consent from a certain proportion of creditors.

The bill, passed unanimously July 27, 1939, saved the B. & O. from receivership.

Tried to Resign

Willard, sometimes accused of being unduly prolabor, often was disappointed at the course of action labor took. However, he insisted that the smooth course of the Chandler bill was largely the result of the strong support which it received from railroad labor organizations.

In 1930, when Willard was nearly 70 and had served for two decades as president of the Baltimore and Ohio, he offered his resignation, telling his board that the road would be served better by a younger executive.

But the directors turned down the suggestion and reelected him, just as they did every year thereafter through 1940, although Willard presented his resignation each year.

Finally, on April 30, 1941, the veteran stepped down from the active management and Roy Barton White, then head of Western Union Telegraph Co., was named as his successor and he was elected chairman of the board of directors—a new position.

Although Willard brought the B. & O. from financial uncertainty to a position of eminence, he met many a crisis during his tenure. In the somber days of 1932, when depression-wracked railroads were barely moving, Willard headed the executive committee that negotiated a three-year 400-million-dollar wage reduction with the workers.

Native of Vermont

Born on a farm near North Hartford, Vt., January 28, 1861, young Willard aided his father and attended the district school until he was 16. He spent two years in high school, taught one year and then entered Massachusetts Agricultural College at Amherst, but was forced to quit in his first year because of eye trouble.

It was then that he entered the railroad world for the Vermont Central Railroad as track laborer. From there he went to firing a locomotive and later advanced to locomotive engineer with a road in Michigan. Next he went to the Soo Line as conductor, mechanical foreman, trainmaster and finally superintendent of transportation.

This experience paved the way for successive executive positions beginning in 1899, when for two years he was assistant general manager of the Baltimore & Ohio before going to the Erie as assistant to the president.

In 1910 Willard went back to the Baltimore & Ohio to succeed Oscar G. Murray as president.

Assured of a free hand when he took over the presidency, Willard started direct competition with the Pennsylvania Railroad, despite the fact that the B. & O. was the financial stepchild of that system. The result was that in the first three years of this administration, the B. & O. earnings increased from $76,412,855 to $101,541,905.

In October, 1916, when it appeared the United States would enter the World War, Willard was named as a member of the advisory commission of the Council of National Defense, formed by President Wilson. In the following March, a few weeks after formal declaration of hostilities, he was made chairman of the commission.

In that latter capacity he was the Railroad War Board and directed the coordination of steam roads for war purposes. His plans remained in effect until the Government took over operation of all roads late in 1917.

The War Industries Board was then formed, November 17, 1917, with Willard as chairman, to cooperate with the War and Navy Departments in supplying munitions. But that board had no legal sanction and Willard considered it futile. He therefore resigned and went back to the Baltimore & Ohio.

His next call gave promise of developing into active field service for General Pershing, commander of the A. E. F., sought Willard as to take charge of all the military railroading in France. He was commissioned a colonel of engineers on November 2, 1918, but nine days later and on the eve of his sailing, the Armistice was signed.

Funeral Rites Will Be Today For F. W. White

The funeral of Frank W. White, 67, treasurer of the National Electrical Supply Co., for more than 30 years, will be held today.

Masonic services will follow religious rites performed by the Rev. C. E. Hawthorne at the S. H. Hines funeral home, 2901 Fourteenth Street Northwest at 1 p. m. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Mr. White, who retired about three years ago, died Saturday, after several weeks illness at his home, 339 Randolph Street Northwest. He was born in Alexandria, the son of Albert R. White and Elizabeth C. White. He was active for many years in credit associations and served a year as president of the Washington Association of Credit Men.

For 30 years, Mr. White was a member of Washington Centennial Masonic Lodge No. 14. He married the former Irene Allen 25 years ago in Washington.

Surviving in addition to his wife, are two brothers, Walter C., and Guilford R. White, both of Washington,

Mrs. Woolf, Minister's Widow, Buried Monday

Services for Mrs. Jennie Magruder Woolf, were held yesterday at her home, 1722 Irving Street Northwest, with the Rev. Robin Gould of Francis Asbury Methodist Church, officiating.

Mrs. Woolf, the widow of the Rev. William H. Woolf, Methodist minister, died Friday at her home of injuries received in a fall a few weeks ago. Pallbearers were William E. Mattingly, Page Hieronymus, Millard Hall, John P. Appleman, William Lesher and Carter E. Green. Burial was in Glenwood Cemetery.

Her husband, the Rev. Mr. Woolf, died in Washington in 1913 when he was presiding elder of the Washington District of the Baltimore Conference.

Mrs. Woolf was born in Prince Georges County, Md., the daughter of Fielder M. Magruder and Mary Anne Cummins Magruder, both of distinguished Maryland families. She was married in 1882 in Beltsville, Md., and had made her home in Washington since 1913.

Surviving are two daughters, Marie M. and Elsie K. Woolf; two sons, William H. Woolf and Edward Magruder Woolf, all of Washington; a brother, Russell Magruder of Beltsville; two sisters, Miss J. Beall and Miss Sarah C. Magruder, both of Beltsville, and one grandson.

Burial Services Tomorrow for Augustus Perkins

Requiem mass for Augustus G. Perkins, 87, resident of Washington for 25 years and an avid follower of the Nats' fortunes on the baseball diamond, will be said tomorrow at 9:30 a. m. at the Shrine of the Blessed Sacrament.

Funeral services will be held at at 9 a. m. from the residence of his daughter, Mrs. A. P. Weinerth, 3421 Patterson Street Northwest, where he died Sunday after more than a year's illness.

He was born in Baldwinsville, N. Y., where he spent most of his life, coming to Washington after he retired from business there. Surviving, in addition to Mrs. Weinerth, are a son, Oscar J. Perkins; three grandchildren, Grant A., Richard A. and Jane A. Perkins, and four sisters, all of Baldwinsville. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Funeral Services For Mrs. Merwin To Be Thursday

Mrs. Alice D. Merwin, 60, who had lived in Washington since her marriage 32 years ago, will be buried at her childhood home, Edmeston, N. Y., Thursday. She was a past regent of Joseph McGruder Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution and actively interested in th eorganizations and work of Foundry Methodist Church.

Her husband, Herbert E. Merwin, 2946 Newark Street Northwest, is a petrologist with the Carnegie Institution of Washington. He started work at the geophysical laboratory of the institution in 1909 and brought his bride here the following year.

Mrs. Merwin, whose health had been poor for several years, died at her home Sunday. Surviving are her husband, two children, Henry D. and Ruth M. Merwin; and two sisters, Charlotte Denison and Anne E. Denison of Edmeston, N. Y.

Used Iron Hand

Cesare Mori Dies; Broke Dread Mafia

Bern, July 6.—Senator Cesare Mori, 62, who cleaned out the dread Mafia—Italian blackhand organization—in Sicily, died today, the Stefani News Agency reported in a Rome dispatch.

Until Premier Mussolini sent Cesare Mori to Sicily in 1926 as Governor of the island, with orders to break up the Mafia, that organization had maintained an unchecked gang rule over Sicily for hundreds of years. Two years after he arrived the Mafia was broken and disorganized, and nearly 200 of its members were in jail.

Originally a patriotic society which kept the national spirit of the Sicilians alive during the early Spanish rule, the Mafia had become a criminal organization by the latter half of the nineteenth century, when Sicily became part of the Kingdom of Italy.

Members of the society, the Mafiosi, engaged in almost every known crime from blackmail to murder, operating in somewhat the same manner as American racketeers, they collected tribute from landowners, merchants and even the peasants, pillaging and often murdering when their "protection" was refused. Because of the tight grip they held over the people they were able to buy and sell political offices, and honest law enforcement officers for years were unable to obtain convictions against them. Their influence extended even to America, and many of the black hand extortion cases in this country were attributed to their members.

Mussolini selected Mori for the task of subduing the Mafia partly because Mori himself was a Sicilian and knew the nature of the people. He was born near Palermo, Sicily, educated in Rome, and had been commissioner of the Roman police and later general director of the police service of Italy. He had been not entirely friendly to the cause of the Fascisti during the early history of the party, but later had won Mussolini's confidence, and had received the appointment of prefect of Bologna a few years before he was named governor of Sicily.

Rites Tomorrow For Miss Talburg

Funeral services for Miss Mary C. Talburg, 75, a lifelong resident of Washington, will be held tomorrow at 2 p. m. in Chambers funeral home, 517 Eleventh Street Southeast. Burial will be in Prospect Hill Cemetery.

War Employe Found Dead In Apartment

Edna W. McMullen, 30-year-old War Department employe, was found dead in her apartment at 1624 Nineteenth Street Nrthwest yesterday.

Police said that Miss McMullen, a native of Georgia, had been dead approximately four days, and added that there was "no evidence to indicate that death was by any other than natural causes."

The janitor of the apartment house opened the door of Miss McMullen's apartment on the authorization of an auxiliary policeman about noon yesterday after a laundryman had failed in repeated efforts to gain admittance.

No one in the building suspected that anything had happened to Miss McMullen, although her radio had been going since Thursday and neighbors assumed that she was at home. She had occupied the third-floor apartment only a short time and apparently "stayed by herself" most of the time, the janitor said.

A letter believed to be from her sister in Georgia, a Mrs. Hood, had been delivered to her mailbox Thursday and had not been removed. Packages left outside the door Thursday also were there yesterday.

Miss McMullen was employed in the chief engineer's office at the War Department.

By the Associated Press

New York, July 7.—Federal agents launched a coast-to-coast drive today to put the German-American Bund "out of business."

A legal attack was aimed at 54 of the bund's highest officers, including Fritz Kuhn, former national bund leader now in prison, and his successor, Wilhelm Kunze, arrested in Mexico and returned to the United States yesterday.

It reached into the States of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Minnesota, Indiana, Washington and California.

Twenty-six men were named in indictments charging conspiracy to evade the Selective Service Act and conspiracy to counsel bund members to resist service in the armed forces of the United States, and conspiracy to conceal bund affiliations in filling out alien registration forms. Three more were accused of only the Selective Service violation. All 29 were in Federal custody, P. E. Foxworth, assistant FBI chief, said.

"Singing Societies" Active

The remainder—among them national and sectional officials and principal leaders of the bund—were the object of denaturalization proceedings.

United States Attorney Mathias F. Correa said that although the bund was nominally defunct since the outbreak of war, numerous singing societies in the Yorkville section of New York and elsewhere had taken over bund activities and continued to foster Nazi beliefs. Such organizations would be investigated further, he said.

The United States attorney said that under the name of "A Militant Organization of Free Americans" the bund sought to advance the political and propaganda aims of the German Reich.

Advised to Refuse Duty

The Government move struck Kuhn, who is serving a term for larceny, through denaturalization proceedings.

Kunze, arraigned yesterday on a charge of violating the Selective Service Act for failure to report his address, pleaded innocent today and was held in bail of $50,000 by Federal Judge George C. Sweeney. He

Chandler Pool Faces Probe For 'Hot Water'

A Truman committee investigator yesterday was ordered to look into the question of how much, if any, political "hot water" there is in Senator Albert B. "Happy" Chandler's new 60-foot blue-tile swimming pool at his Versailles, Ky., home.

The investigation was requested first by Senator Chandler and later by his opponent in the forthcoming Kentucky senatorial primaries, John Young Brown, 42-year-old Lexington, Ky., attorney, and former Congressman.

Truman committee action was invited, it was learned, because the builder of the pool is connected with a firm which has been subcontracting for military projects. His name is Ben Collings and his firm is the Colonial Supply Co. of Louisville, Ky.

Senator Chandler described the pool as a gift built "in the name of friendship and accepted in the same spirit."

Brown's letter to Senator Truman, dated July 2, said that the Colonial Supply Co. had "enjoyed four subcontracts with the Government" and that besides the Chandler swimming pool had presented another $10,000 swimming pool to the Lieutenant Governor of Kentucky.

He said that into Chandler's pool "went 4 tons of steel without priority being asked or given. Into it went brass. No other citizen could have obtained brass. Not even the Army can secure it."

The primary is scheduled for August 1; Senator Chandler's present term extends to January 3, 1943. Brown served in Congress as Representative at Large from Kentucky from 1933 to 1935, later was special assistant to the Attorney General, and recently has been attorney for the United Mine Workers.

Trial of 8 Opens Today

One Spy Gets Separate Counsel, Hinting at Leniency for Him

By Dillard Stokes
Post Staff Writer

Eight German saboteur-spies remained in the District Jail yesterday, awaiting the sitting today of the Military Commission which may send them to the gallows or the firing squad.

While the seven generals of the commission met in secret at the Department of Justice during the afternoon to discuss procedure, Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox spent several hours personally inspecting the guard over the prisoners.

These prisoners came to the United States in years past, found homes, jobs, opportunities and—some of them—wives. They learned our language, customs and the lay of the land. Then they went back to Germany and learned the trade of destruction in a Nazi school of sabotage.

Then they came again, as soldiers of Hitler's Reich, slipping off two submarines a few weeks ago. Their mission was to blast, burn and kill.

Trapped, they now face death under the laws of war—men without rights. President Roosevelt, by proclamation, denied them access to the civil courts and left their judgment to the Military Commission. But the President will review the finding himself, and there were indications that one of the Nazis may not be put to death.

This was George John Dasch, 39, who fought in the Kaiser's armies in the first war, came to America and worked as a waiter until he went back to Germany in 1941. Col. Carl L. Ristine yesterday was named to appear for Dasch at the hearing. Col. Ristine would not say why Dasch was given separate counsel. "Perhaps," he suggested, "there was some conflict of interests."

The Army clamped military secrecy on every detail of the spy case. Even the hour for the hearing was not announced. As General Cox, the provost marshal of the Military District of Washington, came out of the jail, he nodded approval of the line of armed soldiers in the courtyard. But when he was questioned, he shook his head gravely.

"I can't say whether the hearing will be on Wednesday," he said. "All I can tell you is to keep your

Saving Nation, Not Just Rubber

U. S. Might Seize Tires if War Gets Worse, President Warns

Nelson and Ickes Scrap Over Rubber Campaign; Interior Chief Spanked

War Production Board Chairman Donald M. Nelson and Interior Secretary Harold Ickes are scrapping over President Roosevelt's scrap rubber drive.

The details began to come to light yesterday in communiques, some of them unofficial, issued on behalf of both protagonists.

Nelson declined to comment, but his aides admitted that he spanked Ickes for failing to consult him before Ickes obtained the President's consent to extend the drive, a move which Nelson protested, interfered with the start of a WPB campaign for salvage of all scarce war materials.

The spanking was administered in a Nelson letter to Ickes, variously described as "pungent" and "strong" and a "short but tart note."

Ickes wrote a letter back, the text of which was also withheld, but the contents of which were embodied in a communique entitled "Concerning Mr. Nelson's Comments."

"Splendid" Accomplishments

Mr. Roosevelt's order for a lightning rubber drive was attributed by Ickes to the President's "wise decision." The Secretary said he felt extension of the drive was also wise.

"The petroleum industry has responded loyally to the President's appeal and the oil companies have given unstintingly of personnel and facilities to do the job," Ickes declared, and referred to the campaign's accomplishments as "splendid."

The oil companies, said Ickes, who doubles as petroleum coordinator, "are much more entitled to be thanked than spanked."

At WPB it was observed that decisions affecting the war effort are supposed to be routed through Nelson, that the board was set up and Nelson made its chairman for the purpose of bringing order to war production and related activities.

Nelson, it was said, has no interest in the academic question of wartime protocol or who outranks whom among the war agencies, but

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Staff Writer

President Roosevelt said yesterday that if the war gets worse he might have to take every automobile tire in the United States. The Chief Executive made the statement—and repeated it—at a press conference while discussing the rubber and gasoline problem in general.

A reporter had asked the President if he did not think gasoline rationing was the most practical way of restricting automobile use to business driving.

Mr. Roosevelt said he didn't know, and couldn't tell what the answers were to the problem.

Complex Situation

But, he said, if the war gets worse he may have to commandeer every automobile tire in the United States. He said, with some feeling, that he was trying to save the Nation, not merely tires. And he added that he knew the Nation was willing to make every sacrifice.

At the outset, the President said he was trying to separate the question of rubber from the question of gasoline, but he admitted that no formula for this had yet been worked out. Apparently he felt that motorists living in oil-producing States, where there is no gasoline shortage, were justified in objecting to gasoline rationing.

Cooperation of Drivers Asked

The President said that if he lived next door to an oil well, had an automobile and plenty of tires, he could see no reason why he should not use the car if it was necessary in his business.

Mr. Roosevelt said you could talk all day about the rubber and gasoline situation and still not understand it. He said he knew more about it than most people, but he doubted whether he could write an intelligent story about it.

A White House report yesterday showed that 334,293 tons of scrap and nonessential rubber have been

Calling All Workers!

War Industry Will Induct 20 Million During 1942-43

By the Associated Press

Charlottesville, Va., July 7.—Brig. Gen. Frank J. McSherry said today nearly 20 million persons must be inducted into United States war activities during 1942 and 1943.

In an address before the University of Virginia Institute of Public Affairs, the director of operations of the War Man Power Commission reported that it was reliably estimated that "at least 10,500,000 additional workers" must be added to the war industries this year if the President's war production program was to be accomplished.

In addition, he said, 3,400,000 men would be withdrawn from the labor market during 1942 for the military services, making a total of more than 13,900,000 persons to be placed in war activities during the present calendar year.

"While we do not know precisely what the war production program will be at that time," General McSherry added, "it is estimated that we will need over 2,500,000 additional workers in war industries during the coming year. The exact increase in the military forces being unknown, it may be assumed that the increase will be at least 3,500,000. We face, therefore, a combined total increase in war production work and in armed forces of approximately six million people in 1943. This makes a grand total of 19,900,000 persons to be inducted into war activities during 1942 and 1943.

"It is estimated that the total increase of 13,900,000 persons to be inducted into war activities during 1942 will come from the following sources: Conversion from nondefense production and services to war employment, 8,600,000; reduction in unemployment, 1,400,000; reduction in agricultural employment, 400,000—and an overall increase in our active labor forces of 3,300,000. Agriculture Voted Funds For July

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

Congress yesterday called an armistice in its farm war to speed temporary funds to the Agriculture Department, but promptly resumed hostilities on the Administration's grain-selling policies and farm security activities.

Passage of a stop-gap bill to run the department through July came after the Senate injected a new issue in the congressional battle royal over "parity."

Parity Floor Approved

In effect, the Senate by a 28-to-24 vote approved a parity floor under prices of six basic farm commodities by voting for 100 per cent parity loans to cooperating farmers.

Denounced as "socialistic" and "discriminatory" by opponents, the full parity loan bill had at least the tacit backing of the Administration, and was designed to cut House opposition to subparity sales of Government grain to feed livestock.

While both House and Senate voted 30-day funds for the Agriculture Department to continue to function, the conference deadlock on full-year appropriations continued unbroken.

House Holds Out

House managers still held out against subparity grain sales and increased farm security appropriations which the President declared essential to produce "food for victory." The temporary bill gave the Administration a green light on its program, but only through July 31.

Long before that date, conferees said they hoped to agree on a compromise. Sponsors of the full parity loan bill passed by the Senate said it would remove farm opposition to sales below parity, but ranking House farm conferees insisted it had "absolutely no relation" to issues in dispute.

Temporary appropriations were voted on the eve of payday today for 12,700 Washington employes of the department. Pleasantly surprised, officials of the agency said a White House signature may enable them to pay off at close of business today. Some 67,733 employes in the field will be paid on July 15.

House Version Accepted

Emergency House action came on a simple Senate resolution continuing 1942 farm appropriations through July. The House substituted language of its own, having the same net effect, but only after a pitched battle with opponents of the Administration's grain policies. The Senate accepted the House language and sent the 30-day re-

Russians Retreat, 2 Gigantic Battles Raging in Don Basin; Rommel's Lines Forced Back

Nazi Shortens Right Flank; Conflict Dies Down, Lull Broken Only by Artillery

Cairo, July 7.—The Axis front in the Qattara-Mediterranean corridor was bent back on the southern flank under Allied pressure today while the weary ground forces left it to the cannoneers to keep the battle alive in the 120-degree desert heat

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

AXIS FISHHOOK—The Axis Egyptian front in the Qattara-Mediterranean corridor was bent back like a fishhook (A) under pressure from the Allies (B) to prevent British forces from flanking German lines and to Allied air forces striking deep on the enemy supply lines.

The tactical nature of the new Axis position was not entirely clear, but it was surmised that the wily Marshal Edwin Rommel had pulled his harried southern forces back to the westward to form a great arc of defense extending from his left flank on the seashore.

The net result was that the front facing squarely to the east had been somewhat shortened and curved to prevent British tanks from cutting into Rommel's rear as they did in saving El Alamein last week in the first phase of the battle to save Alexandria, some 70 miles distant. As the flank was pulled in by Axis design, the British, South African and other Allied troops followed right along.

The Battle of El Alamein had died down and the ground forces were engaged only sporadically.

Cannonading continued from both sides, however, and in some quarters it was believed that this was in preparation for new action, that the

Argentina Orders Its Merchant Ships to Avoid U. S. East Coast

By the Associated Press

Buenos Aires, July 7.—The Argentine Naval Ministry has ordered all its merchant ships to avoid Eastern United States ports because of the Axis submarine campaign, and the ships will dock at Gulf of Mexico points instead, a reliable authority said tonight.

In taking this action after two other ships were torpedoed, the Argentine government, which still maintains diplomatic relations with the Axis, actually was conforming to a German-announced blockade of the Eastern United States coastline.

But a high Argentine source explained it this way instead:

That Germany had given Argentina the right to penetrate the so-called blockade zone, but Argentina did not want to accept this "special status" because she would appear to be acting in collusion with a non-American power.

He said Argentina still insisted on her right of freedom of the seas, and added:

"This action does not signify acceptance of the blockade announced by Germany, but is taken merely as a measure of precaution."

Germany announced a Nazi blockade zone of the Eastern United States Seaboard on June 15 which was to become effective June 26. Gulf of Mexico ports were not included.

Foreign Minister Enrique Ruiz Guinazu earlier had announced that the government's controversy with Germany over the Axis sinking of the freighter Rio Tercero was a closed incident.

The Rio Tercero was torpedoed and sunk off the United States coast, and another Argentine ship, the Victoria, was torpedoed before it. The Victoria, however, did not sink.

Germany admitted responsibility for the Rio Tercero sinking only yesterday, saying it was not marked adequately. Germany refused an Argentine request that Germany make a ceremonial gesture of respect toward the Argentine flag, and Ruiz Guinazu said he was not going to press the matter.

After Germany admitted the sinking, Argentina sent a new note to the Nazis promising that this South American nation would take further precautions.

These "further precautions" now bar Argentine ships from the Eastern United States coastline.

Nelson, Knowlson, Batt Slated for Posts; Military Seeks Control

By Robert De Vore
Post Staff Writer

A struggle between War Production Board Chairman Donald M. Nelson and chiefs of the armed services over control of the Nation's war economy neared its climax last night with a brand new WPB scheduled to be unveiled today.

The outcome of the struggle which President Roosevelt may have to settle, will determine largely whether the Army and Navy or a civilian agency shall take command in the vital field of deciding what portions of the country's supply of steel, aluminum, copper and other critical materials shall be devoted to civilian production and what part shall be channeled into factories making planes, ships and tanks in accordance with the strategic demands of the war.

With Nelson, the leading personality in the struggle is Lieut. Gen. Brehon B. Somervell, chief of the Army's services of supply.

Stated in its simplest terms, the struggle is such that, if wholly won by Somervell, the Nation's economy—war and civilian—would be under the domination of the Army and Navy for the duration.

WPB spokesmen last night denied that the controversy held up yesterday's scheduled announcement of WPB's long considered reorganization. They said it was due, first, to a desire to avoid conflict with President Roosevelt's press conference.

U-Boats Sink 2 U. S. Vessels, 1 British Ship

American Engineer Thrice Spurns Hand Of Sub Commander

A Caribbean Port, July 7 (AP).—The chief engineer of a medium-sized Norwegian cargo ship torpedoed in the Caribbean the afternoon of June 15 told here of thrice spurning the effort of a submarine commander to shake hands with him.

(The incident followed the sinking of his ship, which was among three ship losses announced today by the Navy at Washington. The Navy also released a story of the shelling of a small British tanker in the Caribbean the night of June 17. Twenty of the 21 men aboard the tanker were rescued although two submarines poured some 60 shells into their ship, survivors said.

(The Navy announced also that a small United States merchant vessel had been torpedoed in the Caribbean area and that survivors had landed at an East Coast port.)

The chief engineer was one of 13 members of the 25-man crew announced by naval authorities as rescued from the two life rafts. The 12 others are believed to have gone down with the ship, which sank in 30 seconds after having been almost broken in half by a torpedo explosion.

There was no previous warning of a submarine's presence, related the engineer, and the ship sank so rapidly that those of the crew who could simply jumped overboard.

German Machines Cross Don, Roll On Over Own Dead; Foe Claims Voronezh

By Henry C. Cassidy
Associated Press Staff Writer

Moscow (Wednesday), July 8.—The German army, despite stubborn Russian resistance, has driven still deeper into the Don Basin southwest of Staryi Oskol, the Soviet midnight communique said today.

Red Army forces in this sector "retired to previously prepared defense lines" after a smashing attack by 200 German tanks and a large infantry force, the communique acknowledged.

Violent Battle For Voronezh

Another violent battle was said to be continuing west of Voronezh, on the vital Moscow-Rostov Railway, east of the Don and about 65 miles northeast of Staryi Oskol.

There was no indication in the communique that the Germans had advanced in the Voronezh sector, but a supplement issued by the Soviet information bureau said "our artillery and infantry for two days defended one village against superior enemy forces." This appeared to indicate the village had been given up.

At the approaches of this village, the supplementary communique said, the Germans lost more than 1000 men in killed alone and in another sector of the Voronezh front 700 Germans were killed in a combined tank and infantry attack.

Foe Pays Great Price.

Commenting on the fierceness of the fighting in the Staryi Oskol sector, the communique said:

"Eighty German tanks were disabled. Enormous losses were likewise sustained by enemy infantry. Our men mowed down the Hitlerites by point-blank machine-gun, automatic rifle and rifle fire."

(The German high command said the city of Voronezh had fallen in a drive 130 miles east of Kursk and 60 miles beyond the high-water mark of Germany's 1941 advance. From Voronezh, the German command said, the advance was continuing toward Povorino on a secondary Moscow-to-Caucasus railway connection 140 miles farther east.

(The official French news agency reported in Vichy that the Red Army had launched a violent counter-attack against the southern flank of the Nazi wedge, striking toward Kharkov from Izyum and Kupyansk, and pushing the Germans back across the Krasnaya River.)

Advance Over Own Dead

A Tass correspondent reported that every foot of the German advance into the ravine-cut chalk hills of western Voronezh Province was over the piled bodies of Nazi dead. He wrote that six trains totaling 247 cars had taken German wounded back from the Don River battle zone alone, yet still new troops surged on in their places.

10,000 Czechs Slain Since June, but Sabotage Goes On

Ankara, Turkey, July 8 (Delayed) (AP).—Ten thousand Czechs have been killed since Reinhard Heydrich was assassinated in Prague early in June and 25,000 German soldiers, assisted by 100,000 secret police are working night and day to halt sabotage inside Czechoslovakia, a German arrival told German residents here today.

Germany is sending thousands of workers and establishing many new war factories in Czechoslovakia since the heavy British raids on German industrial towns, he said.

Sabotage in Czechoslovakia was reported constantly increasing as a result of wholesale executions and bands of marauders are operating from forests around Prague, it was stated.

D. C. Flier Loses Life in Far East

Father Learns of Son's Death Hour After Getting Last Letter

Lieut. Col. Roland Birnn, 3162 Westover Drive Southeast, received a letter yesterday morning from his son, Lieut. Richard Roland Birnn, 22, U. S. Army pilot, somewhere in Australia, saying he was "well, working hard and don't worry."

An hour later, when Colonel Birnn reached his office in the War Department, he was officially notified that his son had been killed "somewhere in the Far East."

"It was a hard blow," Colonel Birnn, also a pilot, said last night. "My wife and I were cheered so much by that letter. And just a few days ago we received a cable from Richard saying that he had been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross by Lieut. Gen. George Brett. He didn't say what he had done to win it, but it must have been for some unusual performance."

LIEUT. BIRNN

Lieutenant Birnn, a native of New York, attended Paul Junior High School here and later went to Georgia Tech. He entered the Army as a flying cadet in June, 1940, and received his wings at Kelly Field, Tex. He was then sent to the Philippines and was there when the war broke out.

The young flier saw action, his father said, and was one of those

One Twin Jew, Other Aryan, Nazis Say

Stockholm, June 7 (U.P.).—Nazi science has just decided that two Viennese twins, a boy and a girl, 20, are not brother and sister and they are not of the same race.

Their mother, according to the Nazis, is a "pure Aryan."

Her husband is an Austrian Jew.

The mother went to the officials and sought to prove that a "pure Aryan" was the father of one of the twins. The Vienna Anthropological Society was called in to examine the "pure Aryan," the Austrian Jew and the mother.

Their verdict was that there was a striking likeness between the girl twin and her mother, while the boy twin resembled the Austrian Jew. Blood tests were said to show that the girl belonged to the "pure Aryan" blood group "A," while the boy belonged to the blood group "B."

The twins were said, therefore, to be half-brother and half-sister, and the half-sister became exempt from the racial laws against Jews."

More Harm Than Good

British End 'High-Powered Publicity Mission' to America

By the Associated Press

London, July 7.—Commons cheered today as Brendan Bracken, minister of information, declared that "a high-powered publicity mission instructed to force Britain down the throats of the American people" would do more harm than good, and that no more British lecturers would be sent to the United States because their efforts already had turned out that way.

Bracken spoke in reply to criticism of Britain's propaganda effort from both right and left.

Responding to complaints that he had sent "socialites" to propagandize in the United States, Bracken said he had laid down an "absolute rule" that no more lecturers be sent.

He added that a prominent American had estimated that less than 8 per cent of the American population was irreconcilably anti-British and "could only be cured by the undertaker."

Bracken disclosed also that he had created a political warfare executive to coordinate the work of many diverse propaganda agencies.

He said Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden formulated the policy and he himself administered it, and "we have always been in complete agreement."

With some critics charging inefficiency and others alleging leftist tendencies in British propaganda services, Parliamentary Secretary Ernest Thurtle disclosed that Britain would spend about $34,400,000 on propaganda at home and abroad during the current fiscal year, an increase of $9,740,000 over last year.

Of the Information Ministry's budget, 16 million dollars was spent on publicity services, Thurtle said, with more than half of this going for overseas propaganda.

Bracken also reported that the R. A. F. had dropped 145 million propaganda leaflets on enemy and enemy-

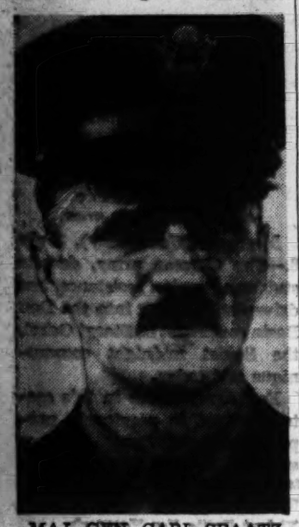
Spaatz Commands Airmen in Europe

Flying General Was Known in 1914 At West Point by Nickname 'Toughie'

By the Associated Press

London, July 7.—Maj. Gen. Carl (Toughie) Spaatz, a flying general who was a hero of the fledgling American Air Force in the World War and who piloted the "Question Mark" to its historic endurance record in 1929, has been appointed commander in chief of the United States Army Air Forces in the European theater of war.

General Spaatz, a Pennsylvania red-head who has been an Army career man for 32 of his 51 years, has been in charge here since June.



MAJ. GEN. CARL SPAATZ
Commands AEF AIRMEN

Previously he was chief of the Air Force combat command in Washington.

His new appointment was announced only today as he conferred Distinguished Flying Crosses on three of the American airmen who participated in the Fourth-of-July bombing of German-held Holland.

Those he decorated for the war's first American raid on German-held western Europe were Second Lieut. Randall M. Dorton, jr., of Long Beach, Calif., and Sergeants Robert L. Golay of Fredonia, Kans., and Bennie C. Cunningham of Tupelo, Miss.

They were the crew of the Douglas Boston bomber piloted by Capt. Charles C. Kegelman of El Reno, Okla., who already has been awarded the Distinguished Service Cross for bringing his plane home despite damage from German antiaircraft fire so heavy that the machine actually fell to the ground.

General Spaatz's headquarters also announced the names of the 20 other participants in the raid, eight of them missing since two of the six American-manned planes were shot down. Missing were:

Second Lieut. Frederick Loehrl of Seattle, Second Lieut. Marshall Draper of Beverley Hills, Calif.; Sergts. Robert Whitman of Centralia, Wash., and James W. Wright of Stockton, Calif., members of one crew; Second Lieut. William C. Lynn, Los Angeles; Second Lieut. town not given), Sergt. William Boyd Grant of Louisiana (home Murphy of Baltimore, Md., and Sergt. Charles Kramarewicz of Norwich, Conn., members of the other crew.

General Spaatz himself won the Distinguished Service Cross for shooting down three German planes in September, 1918, during the St. Mihiel offensive.

Served in Hawaii

Aviation was so untried in that day that it was an adjunct of the Army Signal Corps. Spaatz, graduated from West Point as an infantry lieutenant in 1914, had transferred to flying in 1916 after service in Hawaii.

He served on the Mexican border, then went to France as officer in charge of training at the aviation school at Issoudon.

After the war he led an Army "flying circus" that toured the United States in connection with the victory loan drive.

There followed periods as a pursuit commandant at Selfridge Field, Mich., as commandant at Mather Field, Calif.; Kelly Field, Tex., and air commandant for the Eighth Corps Area.

On New Year's Day, 1929, Spaatz and a crew of four took off in the "Question Mark" from Los Angeles metropolitan airport to set a record for sustained flight.

Their plane was a tri-motored Fokker Army transport, its three engines totaling only 675 horsepower, its cruising speed 70 miles an hour. They stayed up 150 hours, 40 minutes and 15 seconds.

The "Question Mark's" record was a sensation 13 years ago. Even though the flight ended because of motor failure, it pointed the way to what planes might do. The record soon was surpassed in a rash of endurance flights by civilians.

During the worst of the London

blitz in 1940 Spaatz and Brig. Gen. Ralph Royce of Philippines fame studied German air tactics at close range, often risking their lives to prowl the streets watching raids in London and Dover.

Thirteen finally were assembled on the two rafts.

Deck Officers Killed

The chief told this story:

About five minutes after the ship went down, approximately 1 p. m., a submarine surfaced about 300 yards away and its commander, who spoke broken English, asked for the captain of the ship. Told that the officers were killed, he asked the chief engineer aboard the submarine. There the sub commander, a dark-complexioned, sunburned, unshaven and stockily built man of about 25, wearing shorts, no shirt and a blue cap with yellow insignia, talked to the survivor on the after deck.

"I think this is a surprise to you," said the submarine commander.

"Anything can happen in war," was the reply.

"I am sorry this had to happen to you," continued the submarine officer. "I'll give you two loaves of bread."

Here followed the presentation of two loaves of dark-brown, hard bread, three meat cans full of water and the submarine commander's attempt to wish his victims a "happy voyage."

Photographer Believed Nearby

He extended his hand, but the chief did not take it, merely saying, "I thank you for your bread and water."

The commander appeared to become quite angry and walked toward the conning tower, but came back again and asked the chief to shake hands, with the same result. A third try likewise was rebuffed.

(The chief believes it probably was the commander's purpose, for propaganda reasons, to have a handshaking photographed by one of the three other men on the conning tower.)

The chief asked the commander how far away they were from the coast, and the commander replied, "Go west to the coast." The submarine then went away in an easterly direction. The men on the two rafts were rescued by a naval vessel the next afternoon.

who flew out from the Philippines when Gen. Douglas MacArthur made his dramatic dash to Australia.

"The boy continued to fight," Colonel Birnn said, "and saw plenty of action in many engagements as a bomber pilot out there."

Lieutenant Birnn was the only son of Col. and Mrs. Birnn. Besides his parents, he is survived by a sister, the wife of another Army flier, Lieut. John P. Bloom, now stationed at Myrtle Field, S. C.

Chinese Drive Japs Back In Kiangsi, Retake Yungkang

By International News Service

Chungking, July 7.—Chinese forces in eastern Kiangsi Province are driving Japanese troops back and have forced the enemy to withdraw south and southeast of Kwangfeng, a communique revealed today.

The Chinese also have recaptured Yungkang, 30 miles southeast of Kinhwa, the communique stated.

Earlier reports stated that Chinese counterattacks near the border of Honan and Shansi Provinces had inflicted heavy casualties on the Japanese, who were estimated to have lost 1700 killed and wounded during the last few days.

2,500,000 Jap Casualties

Chungking, July 7 (AP).—The Japanese have suffered casualties of one million dead and 1,500,000 wounded in five years of war in China, an army spokesman said today as the embattled Chinese went into the sixth year of their war.

The Chinese, in addition, have taken 29,924 prisoners during this five-year period in which 14 major engagements and 10,375 minor engagements were fought, the spokesman said. He estimated that 900,000 Japanese troops were on duty in China and that the Japanese could put 2000 planes into the air.

The five years of war in China, the spokesman said, have cost the Japanese 2504 planes.

(In Tokyo, the Imperial headquarters claimed that the Japanese had inflicted more than five million casualties on the Chinese in dead, wounded and missing, including 2,338,000 dead. The announcement said 111,111 Japanese have been killed in China.)

Throughout China, the start of the sixth year of war was marked with mass meetings, parades and sporting events. Presents were distributed to Chinese soldiers wherever possible.

Reds Praise China's Effort

Moscow, July 7 (AP).—The Soviet press praised China's "courageous and heroic struggle for national liberation" today as the Chinese-Japanese war entered its sixth year.

"Japan expected through blitz operations to end this war in a very short period," the army newspaper, Red Star, said. "Time has proved the lack of foundation and the error of this expectation. Not a single operation by Japanese troops has brought defeat to the main force of the Chinese Army."

Japs Float New War Loan

Tokyo (From Japanese Broadcasts), July 7 (AP).—On the occasion of the fifth anniversary of the conflict with China, the Japanese government floated a 500-million-yen (about $118,000,000) war loan today.

U. S.-Made Planes Compose 25% of R. A. F. Total Overseas

By the Associated Press

New York, July 7.—One-fourth of the R. A. F.'s warplanes overseas and 13 per cent of the home front in the United Kingdom are United States made, the British Information Service disclosed today.

It gave these authorized statistics on the R. A. F.:

occupied territory during the first six months of 1942.

Defending the British Broadcasting Co., which has semi-independent status, although government-supported, Bracken called it "the largest and most trusted broadcasting instrument in the world." He said it reaches 200 million hearers a week.

The Axis powers look upon it as a mighty enemy," he said.

The Secretary said that postal and telegraph censorship, for which 12 million dollars was being spent annually, was now closely coordinated with that of the United States. This censorship, he said, has played "a notable part in dealing with activities of enemy agents, both in the United States and Central America."

Germans Raid Northeast Area Of England Again

London (Wednesday), July 8 (U.P.). German planes flew over an area of northeast England for the second consecutive day early today.

Both incendiary and heavy explosive bombs were dropped on two districts, starting fires. Similarly, on the preceding night hundreds of incendiaries were dropped, starting numerous fires.

Wire-Trailing Rocket Used to Tangle Planes

By the Associated Press

London, July 7.—The rugged old skipper of a tramp steamer told today, with official sanction, of a wire-tailed rocket weapon British merchant ships have used secretly for more than a year to entangle enemy planes swooping down to attack them.

The contraption fired from the decks is a projectile which opens into a parachute with long wires attached.

Describing his first use of the rocket weapon, the old captain told a naval officer:

"We had just been attacked and what with all the excitement I pulled the string too soon. The blighter saw the wire and he dodged it. He did the most wonderful acrobatics dodging that wire. It was a treat indeed it was."

"Never mind," counseled the naval officer. "Next time you'll remember to pull the string a second later."

"Maybe," said the captain, "but I ought to tell you that after those acrobatics that pilot fell upside down into the sea."

Meantime, a last-minute censorship was clamped down on the disclosure of a spectacular development in Britain's antiaircraft defense after the London Daily Mail had protested against the revelation.

Details of the new secret weapon, the result of five years of experimentation, had been released for publication in morning newspapers when the censorship was imposed with the explanation that "new instructions have been issued."

A front-page criticism by the Daily Mail against exposing the weapon presumably influenced the decision.

The new device, it was said, has already been used successfully against enemy raiders.

British Bend Back Rommel's Line

battle would not be long adjourned.

Rommel's chief difficulty now is communication, and while his forces are resting and awaiting the arrival of new supplies from across the Mediterranean, the Allied air forces are striking at his ports of entry.

Allied Bombers Active

American and British bombers concentrated throughout yesterday in heavy attacks on shipping at Bengasi, Libya. Other Allied aerial forces struck with bombs and machine-gunning at El Daba, which was engulfed by the then speeding Axis columns last week.

With the Axis forces bent back—like a fishhook, as one British observer put it—the British were hopeful of developing the Axis movement into a general dislodgement to the west.

However, the British hastened to point out that the threat to Alexandria had by no means passed. Axis planes struck overnight at the Nile Delta, but the raids were described as small-scale.

U. S. Cruiser, 28 Ships Sunk In Arctic Convoy, Nazis Claim

(Dispatches from enemy countries are published with the warning that they frequently contain misleading information intended for propaganda purposes.)

By The Associated Press

Berlin (From German Broadcasts), July 7.—The Germans today claimed the sinking of an American heavy cruiser and 28 merchantmen out of a convoy in Arctic waters between Spitsbergen and the Norwegian North Cape.

(There was no confirmation of the German claim from any other source. In the last previous big Arctic convoy battle the Germans said they sank 18 Allied ships, when actually 6 were sunk.)

A special announcement from Hitler's headquarters today said the convoy consisted of 38 merchant ships carrying planes, tanks, ammunition and food supplies bound for Archangel with a heavy escort of Allied warships.

The attacks upon the convoy started on July 2 300 to 400 miles off the Norwegian coast. The convoy escort was said by the Germans to have included battleships, cruisers, destroyers and corvettes.

"In close cooperation, German submarines and air formations sank a heavy American cruiser and 19 merchantmen totaling 122,000 tons," the announcement said. "Submarines sank 9 ships totaling 70,400, making a grand total of 29 ships of 192,400 tons.

"The remaining vessels were dispersed. The battle still is going on.

"German Red Cross planes rescued a number of American sailors."

WPB to Unfreeze Huge Stocks for War Plants

Order Permits Sale of 150 Key Materials

The War Producion Board yesterday moved to release for war production "hundreds of thousands of tons" of critical war materials now frozen in idle inventories.

The release order, said WPB, will return to war production channels materials worth "hundreds of millions of dollars" which are now blocked by war regulations, mainly as the result of curtailment of production in civilian plants or because certain war plants are not authorized to use the materials.

A WPB statement said no accurate estimate of the amounts of materials to be salvaged in this manner could be made, but declared that "the total is known to be extremely large." For example, WPB stated, some 250,000 tons of copper and copper base alloys alone are expected to be made available.

The order permits the sale—"without formalities of any kind"—of 150 materials—designated "war materials"—to the armed services, the Maritime Commission, certain other war agencies and to persons who belong to certain classes of purchasers identified in connection with the list of materials.

The WPB statement explained that its orders limiting nonessential production, issued in anticipation of conversion to war production and to conserve scarce materials, contain provisions restricting disposal of inventories thus frozen.

These restrictions are now replaced, WPB announced, by the new regulation which sets up uniform rules governing idle inventory sales of certain kinds.

WPB cited as an example of the kind of relief to be afforded by the order the case of a domestic refrigerator manufacturer who was left with a large stock of copper tubing when further refrigerator manufacture was stopped. The tubing was badly needed by a firm in the same city making tank assemblies. Until yesterday the sale of the tubing could not be made without official WPB approval.

MRS. WILLKIE HELPS OPEN CHINA RELIEF DRIVE—Gen. Hsiung Shih-fei, chief of the Chinese military mission to the United States, receives a flower for his lapel from Mrs. Wendell Willkie in New York yesterday. At left is Mme. T. Y. Pei. Hsiung, who arrived in this country in April, has taken a residence in Chevy Chase, Md.

Lopez, Elected ColombiaHead, Arrives Here

Dr. Alfonso Lopez, President-Elect of Colombia, arrived in Washington yesterday, and was greeted by President Roosevelt on the south lawn of the White House.

Last night he was guest of honor at a stag dinner at the White House, which was followed by a motion picture show. President Roosevelt earlier told reporters that the pictures would be a Mickey Mouse or Donald Duck cartoon and some showing what is happening on the war production front.

Dr. Lopez, a banker and economist, was accompanied to Washington by his son, Pedro Lopez y Michelson, and three former cabinet officers—Jorge Soto del Corral, former minister of foreign relations; Alfonso Araujo, former minister of Education, and Alberto Jarmillo Sanchez, former minister of labor.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull met the Dr. Lopez and members of his party at Union Station, and escorted them to the White House. Mr. Roosevelt gave Dr. Lopez a hearty hand-shake, and stood at attention with him while an honor guard of soldiers, sailors and marines presented arms, and the Marine Band played the national anthems of Colombia and the United States.

The President then presented Dr. Lopez to Vice President Wallace and other high officials of the Nation.

At his press conference earlier, Mr. Roosevelt said that Dr. Lopez was an old friend and he said he planned to talk to him until 1 or 2 o'clock in the morning.

Today Dr. Lopez and his son will move from the White House to the historic Blair House, which will be their official residence as guests of the Nation. They will visit Congress at 12:15 p. m. today. At 8:15 they will be tendered a dinner by Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles at the Mayflower Hotel.

No engagements have been announced for tomorrow. On Friday at 12:15 p. m. Dr. Lopez will attend a special session of the governing board of the Pan American Union, at which Secretary Hull will preside. A luncheon by the Pan American Union will follow.

At 8 o'clock Friday evening Dr. Lopez will be tendered a dinner by the Ambassador of Colombia at the Mayflower Hotel.

No Indispensables, Asserts Marshall

Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff, wants no "indispensable" officers in the Army.

He ordered commanders in all branches yesterday to train subordinate officers thoroughly in the duties of their superiors.

"This," he said, "is essential to insure continuity in efficient training and administration in spite of normal attrition and temporary absences, and become doubly important during combat. No organization of the Army can afford to have an "indispensable' officer."

Army Nurses From Bataan Honored Here

Nine Army nurses who arrived Friday in New York from Australia, after being evacuated from Bataan and Corregidor, were awarded royal blue citation ribbons in a surprise ceremony at a Women's National Press Club luncheon yesterday at the Willard.

For their service in the face of "real hardships, privations and sufferings" during the fighting on Bataan, the nurses were given ribbons identical with those awarded to six earlier arrivals at Red Cross headquarters last Thursday.

Still in civilian clothes because they had not had time to procure their uniforms, the nurses were addressed by Col. Carlo Romulo, aide de camp to General MacArthur, who wore a colonel's insignia for the first time, after receiving news of his promotion from lieutenant colonel in a cable from MacArthur yesterday.

"I saw these nurses in action under heavy fire at Bataan," Colonel Romulo told 225 members and guests of the club, "and in every situation they were serene, calm, cool, collected—living symbols of the determination of this great Nation of freemen to achieve victory.

"Sometimes I think it is a profanation to speak of these two battlefields, Bataan and Coregidor. The men who remain there, those who were not as lucky as we, prefer not to be spoken of. Rather than speak of those heroes, let us pray for them—the men who fought and starved at the same time, eating one meal a day, a handful of rice, every day for two months, hoping for help that never came."

Mary Beard, director of Red Cross nursing, emphasized the "tremendous need" for additional nurses, with 2500 required each month by the Army and 500 by the Navy. Applicants must be registered nurses, she said, which reduces the number from which they may be drawn.

Those who were decorated yesterday were Helen Loretta Summers, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Leona Gastinger, Montgomery, Ala.; Lucy Iris Wilson, Big Sandy, Tex.; Beth A. Veley, San Jose Calif.; Mabel V. Stevens, Verdigre, Nebr.; Ruth M. Straub, Milwaukee, Wis.; Mary Lucy Moultrie, Columbia, Ga.; Mollie A. Petersen, Cogswell, N. Dak., and Grace D. Hallman, Ashburn, Ga.

Joint guests of honor with the recent arrivals were the six Army nurses who received their citations last week—Lieuts. Eunice C. Hatchitt, Harriet G. Lee, Mary G. Lohr, Juanita Redmond, Florence MacDonald and Dorothea Daley, all now first lieutenants after receiving promotions yesterday.

Mighty Midget Diesel Engine Expected to Conquer Subs

American inventive genius and industrial capacity have given the Navy an important new weapon in its war against Axis submarines—a revolutionary type high-speed, lightweight Diesel engine for sub chasers.

An official announcement from the Navy Department yesterday revealed the successful development of the new engine and disclosed that it is already in mass production.

Quantities of the new power plant—dubbed the "pancake" because of its unusual design—will soon be ready for installation in small antisubmarine vessels now being built.

Officials expect these new, improved craft to turn the tide aganist the Axis in the uncompromising war now raging off our coasts. They will be faster and more maneuverable, carry more armament, and have a greater cruising range than similar craft now in service.

The "pancake" is officially claimed to be the "lightest ocean-duty Diesel engine in the world" and unofficially to be the "best engine any sub chaser ever had."

It occupies about one-third the space of the most successful Diesels of the same horsepower previously developed. This saving of space and weight will enable new sub chasers to carry additional armament, more fuel, or additional engines to boost their speed .

Much of the additional efficiency of the power plant comes from a new reversible marine propeller developed along with the engine. This factor not only saves weight by eliminating the need of heavy reverse gears but also makes the sub chasers more maneuverable.

The new Diesel has four banks of four cylinders each, located around a vertical crankshaft. The engine, reduction gear and propeller pitch control are designed as a complete unit.

Following the last war, the Navy sought a new power plant to replace the unsatisfactory gasoline engines used on sub chasers.

The finished product—both engine and variable-pitch propeller—are now in production at the electromotive division of General Motors at La Grange, Ill.

War Sidelights

Sevastopol Hit by 2700 Planes in Day

Moscow, July 7 (AP).—Vice Admiral E. S. Oktyabrsky, Soviet Black Sea fleet commander charged with defending Sevastopol, and his associate, Major General Petrov of the Red Army, escaped from Khersones Peninsula outside the fallen city "when rifle bullets already were whizzing around them," the newspaper Izvestia reported tonight.

The versatile admiral was said to have piloted both bomber and pursuit planes over the Sevastopol front during the thickest fighting.

As an example of the severity of the Nazi assault, Izvestia said 1000 German plane flights a day against Sevastopol were ordinary, that on June 13, 2700 Nazi plane flights occurred, and in one day the Germans dropped 9000 bombs on the Soviet positions.

Nation of Thin Men

Bern, Switzerland, July 7 (AP).—France has become a nation of thin men.

A Lyons dispatch today said doctors estimated the French people since the armistice of June, 1940, had lost at least 440,000,000 pounds, or an average of 11 pounds per person.

Before the war began the average Frenshman ate 66 pounds of bread or flour products monthly, as against half of that amount now. The meat, sugar and cheese intake now is 25 per cent of the prewar regime butter and oil is 30 per cent and coffee 12 per cent.

Czech Bags 22 Nazi Planes

London, July 7 (AP).—Flight Lieut. Charles Kuttelwascher, the R. A. F.'s Czech night fighter ace who specializes in hovering over German airdromes in occupied France and Belgium and shooting down returning German bombers, was awarded a bar today for the distinguished flying officer's medal he received five weeks ago.

Since then, it was disclosed, "Kuttel" has shot down 12 more unwary Germans, bringing his total to 22.

Tiger Adds to Egypt's Woe

Cairo, July 7 (AP).—As if nightly air-raid alarms and an enemy army some 70 miles away were not enough, a tiger broke loose from the Alexandria Zoo today and headed for the city. Keepers' shots finished that menace.

Mrs. McLean's Newport Estate Sold for Taxes

Newport, R. I., July 7 (AP).—By the Sea, the estate of Mrs. Edward B. McLean, widow of the former Washington publisher, with an assessed value of $136,000, was sold today at city tax sale for $11,361 to James Donovan, also of Washington.

The purchase price was $1 above the amount of taxes due for 1939, 1940 and 1941, hte tax collector said.

WLB Orders Pay Raise for 4000 New England Textile Workers

Price Ceiling Plea of Mills Is Overriddeen

By Ben Gilbert
Post Staff Writer

Overriding a plea by employers that they could not afford to pay higher wages under existing price ceilings, the War Labor Board yesterday ordered nine Rhode Island and Connecticut textile finishing plants to pay a wage increase ranging from 5 to 7 cents an hour to 4000 employes.

In ordering the increase, the board stated that the plants involved were "out of line" with the rest of the finishing industry, and that WLB could not recognize "substandard or unstabilized wages," even though "it is fully recognized that several of the subject companies are presently lacking in financial ability to pay increased wages." WLB ordered the increase by a vote of 6 to 3 with industry members of the board dissenting.

President Roosevelt at his regular press conference yesterday afternoon focused additional attention on WLB wage rulings by stating that a general wage increase for 187,000 workers in "little steel" would obviously increase the cost of living. WLB officials doubted that the President was closing the door to any increase to the steel workers, but expressed the belief that he had thus frowned on a "substantial" wage boost.

Against Jump in Living Costs

When asked whether he would like to see living expenses go up, the President replied that this was kindergarten stuff.

He reassured his questioner, however, as an afterthought, that certainly he was against any further jump in living costs.

Mr. Roosevelt declined to be involved in any detailed discussion of the Government's wage policies. He said he did not know when he would make a statement on his attitude in respect to wages during the war.

The President said yes and no when he was asked whether a standard was needed to guide the War Labor Board in reaching its decision in the "little steel" controversy.

A plea of the C. I. O. United Steel Workers of America for a wage increase of $1 a day is now before WLB. The decision in this case is being eagerly awaited as an indication of the fate of wage increase demands from hundreds of thousands of other war workers.

A general wage increase of 10 cents an hour was requested in the textile case by the C. I. O. Federation of Dyers, Finishers, Printers and Bleachers of America. The board ordered the wages of those receiving 64 cents an hour or less increased 7 cents an hour, the wages of those receiving 65 cents increased 6 cents an hour, and those receiving more than 65 cents an hour increased 5 cents.

"Little Merit" to Comparison

Dr. George W. Taylor, vice chairman of WLB, in writing the board's opinion in this case, pointed out that the union negotiated wage increases of 10 cents an hour for men and 7 cents an hour for women employed in metropolitan New York and New Jersey during March and April. A minimum of 85 cents an hour for men and 62 cents an hour for women was established in New York and New Jersey at that time, compared to an average of 63.5 cents an hour for the nine New England plants in this case, and an average of 69.5 cents an hour for the whole finishing industry, Dr. Taylor said.

The industry members of the board in their dissenting opinion stated that the comparison of wages in New England finishing plants with New York and New Jersey firms had "little merit" since the firms were not competing. They added that the New England finishing plant wage scales were above the level of New England cotton textile firms which now have wage disputes before WLB.

Pointing out that present ceiling prices permitted New York and New Jersey finishers to absorb their wage increase, but does not permit the New England finishers to do so, the industry members stated that the success of the price control program "will prove to be of much greater value to the working man than the granting of such wage advances as ordered by the board in this case."

Decline in Volume Expected

The companies had complained against the wage increase on the ground that they expected their volume of business to drop during 1942, thus increasing unit overhead costs and making it virtually impossible for them to operate at a profit under present price ceilings.

"The War Labor Board concludes, however," Dr. Taylor answered for the board majority, "that a solution to the resulting profits difficulties of such companies is not to be found through the recognition of substandard or unstabilized wages. This would not only be grossly inequitable to the employes affected, but would be a highly impractical way to attempt to operate a business in these days of increasing demand for labor.

"It is concluded, therefore, that the existence of present price ceilings and the possibility of a decreased volume of business should not preclude the establishment of a stabilized wage scale in these plants."

During the course of hearings before a panel of the board, the companies offered to pay an increase of 5 cents an hour if present price ceilings were adjusted accordingly. The companies later indicated that they would ask the Office of Price Administration to raise present ceilings if an increase were ordered. Yesterday when OPA was asked to comment on the WLB ruling, OPA stated that "no increase in ceiling prices is contemplated at this time."

collected in the President's Nation-wide salvage campaign. The President told reporters that this was better than the lowest estimates but not nearly so good as the highest.

William R. Boyd, jr., chairman of the Petroleum Industry War Council, said the oil industry and the American people could feel proud of the amount of rubber collected thus far.

"But nobody should regard this as all we are going to get o· as enough rubber," Boyd said. "We'll never have more than is needed again until this war is over. What we are trying to accomplish by this particular rubber drive is to gather all there is so our Army and Navy won't have 'too little.'"

Meantime motorists on the East Coast were asked to discontinue immediately all nonessential use of gasoline, regardless of the amount they were entitled to on their ration cards.

In a joint statement, Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson, Undersecretary of the Navy James V. Forrestal and Deputy Petroleum Coordinator Ralph K. Davies said that "driving as usual" by motorists in the ration area was preventing war workers from obtaining fuel for essential transportation.

"Regardless of personal inconvenience," they said, "we ask the motoring public to comply conscientiously with this appeal, because it is the only way by which existing gasoline supplies can be made available to war workers who must use their cars to drive to and from their work.

"Motor gasoline stocks have been drawn on so heavily from filling stations by 'driving as usual' that in many areas along the Eastern Seaboard, scores of war workers have been unable to botain enough gasoline to get them to their jobs. This condition threatens to hamper seriously our war production program . . ."

Gillette Urges Alcohol Plants

Senator Gillette (Democrat) of Iowa, suggested yesterday that the Government cancel some of its contracts for plants to produce synthetic rubber from petroleum and build new facilities for plants to produce synthetic rubber from grain.

Gillette made the suggestion after hearing testimony by Chairman Donald M. Nelson of the War Production Board that the need for copper and other vital materials precluded the construction of new grain alcohol plants at this time.

The Iowa Senator said that if this condition existed, there was all the more reason why the Government should shift its emphasis away from the petroleum process to what he said was the more simplified procedure of producing synthetic rubber-yield butadiene from grain alcohol.

"These grain alcohol plants," he said, "can be built with one-tenth of the critical materials and in from one-third to one-fourth of the time it takes to construct a petroleum-process plant."

is concerned in practical aspects of the matter. In the present case, he is said to believe that real harm may have been done by overlapping the rubber drive with over-all salvage. The theory is that two campaigns can't be successful at the same time

Some Phases of Drive Begin

Nelson and Lessing Rosenwald, head of WPB's Bureau of Industrial Conservation, announced a drive for collection of discarded metals and rubber and household fats last week. Officially, the drive does not get under way for several days, but some phases of it already have begun and a national advertising campaign started this week.

The background for the exchange of letters between Nelson and Ickes was laid when the President first announced his intention to start a "quickie" rubber drive several weeks ago. The announcement caught Rosenwald's bureau as it was about to launch the overall drive on which officials had spent weeks of careful planning.

WPB officials felt that Ickes, supported by the oil companies, had "jumped the gun" on them. Some consideration was given at WPB to urging the President to hold off his drive until it could be coordinated with WPB's own program, but instead it was decided to delay the overall campaign and lend a hand with the "quickie."

Eisenhower Is Promoted to Lieut. General

President Roosevelt yesterday nominated Maj. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, commander of American troops in the European theater, to be lieutenant general.

At the same time, he named Brig. Gen. Thomas T. Handy, who succeeded Eisenhower as Assistant Chief of Staff for operation, to be a major general.

Two colonels—John E. Hull and Albert C. Wedemeyer of the Infantry—were also nominated as brigadier generals. All of the promotions are temporary.

WAAC School Will Offer Army Diet

By George S. Mills
Associated Press Staff Writer

Fort Des Moines, Iowa, July 7.—Judged by the menu at least, the life of a WAAC here isn't going to be bad at all.

Unless, girls, you are allergic to such things as baked ham and pineapple, scalloped potatoes, stewed tomatoes, mustard pickles, bread and butter, orange sherbet, wafers and coffee.

That's the bill of fare for the evening meal of July 20, the day the first members of the Women's Auxiliary Army Corps report to the officers' school where Uncle Sam's feminine soldiers will be trained to replace men in noncombatant Army jobs. The other July 20 meals:

Breakfast—Oranges, branflakes, half a pint of milk, butterfly (sweet) rolls, buttered toast, jelly, poached eggs, tea and coffee.

Lunch—Tomato essence, crackers, cold cut sandwiches, combination salad, caramel ice cream, iced tea and coffee.

School officers said the cost of feeding a WAAC and a male soldier would be about the same, but the women were expected to consume smaller portions. All meals will be served cafeteria style.

Here's what the cooks have in mind for Sunday dinner, July 26:

Fried chicken, snowflake potatoes, giblet gravy, whole kernel corn, sliced tomatoes, TOFFEE ice cream, wafers, orangeade and coffee.

The Sunday night lunch will be built around tuna fish salad and assorted sandwiches, with spiced beets, fruit gelatine, cupcakes, lemonade and coffee.

Wednesday night, July 29, would be a poor night to date a WAAC if she could get out (which she cannot). That evening's menu includes onions.

U. S. Will Honor Merchant Marine Heroes

America's unsung heroes of the sea—the merchant marine sailors who brave enemy submarines to carry supplies to Uncle Sam's outposts and Allies—are going to be recognized with a special medal.

The Maritime Commission announced it has requested Paul Manship, New York sculptor and medal designer, to create a design for a distinguished service medal to be awarded to merchant seamen who show outstanding conduct or service in the line of duty.

the first in three weeks, and second, to a lack of time for preparation of a formal statement on the shakeup.

The new production board to be unveiled today will bear virtually no resemblance to the present organizational structure.

In the first place, the new organization is intended to elevate Nelson to a position of top overseer of production, relieved of all administrative and operational details and in a position to make major policy decisions gearing the country's production to the changing needs for equipment at world battle fronts.

Under the new setup, Nelson would become the Nation's "economy strategist," a term lately evolved at WPB to differentiate Nelson's new tasks from those of the military strategists.

Working under Nelson in the new organization and sharing administrative responsibilities would be three deputy board chairmen. One of these is expected to be William L. Batt whose service on the Combined (United States-Great Britain) Raw Materials Board and on the United States-Canadian Material Coordinating Committee would seem to have fitted him to take over a large share of operational functions associated with production for the United Nations.

Knowlson Mentioned

The second deputy chairmanship is slated to go to J. S. Knowlson, director of WPB's division of industrial operations. Knowlson was expected to serve as Nelson's deputy on the recently formed Combined Production and Resources Board, a kind of "international WPB," on which Capt. Oliver Lyttelton, British Production Minister, is cochairman with Nelson.

Selection of the man for the third chairmanship remains to be determined and is the crux of the Nelson-Somervell controversy.

Nelson's plans, it was said, called for appointment of Ferdinand Eberstadt, civilian chairman of the Army and Navy Munitions Board, to the position. Eberstadt was to have moved over to WPB and to have brought most of the board's personnel with him.

The munitions board is the Army-Navy agency which handles questions involving supplies of raw materials for munitions making and through which the armed services are assigned ratings which enable them to obtain materials in certain amounts for certain types of equipment.

It was the intention of the WPB reorganizers largely to absorb the munitions board's functions. At this point Somervell and the service chiefs balked.

Russian Labor Movement Is Not Free, A. F. L. Holds

By the Associated Press

The American Federation of Labor has "refused to recognize the Russian labor movement as a free labor movement," whereas the C. I. O. has considered it "on equal terms," a member of the A. F. L. executive council said yesterday.

A British effort to obtain British-American-Soviet labor collaboration to promote the war effort has been fruitless thus far, with the A. F. L. failing to accept the proposal.

Sir Walter Citrine, secretary of the British Trades Union Congress, presented the proposal to the A. F. L. executive council last May.

Daniel J. Tobin, general president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters and member of the A. F. L. council, disclosed the A. F. L.'s answer, in part, at least, in an article in the July issue of his union's organ, the International Teamster.

Tobin's article contended that the gulf between the C. I. O. and the A. F. L. was widening and that the attitude toward the British proposal demonstrated the difference in viewpoint between the two organizations.

"The C. I. O. leaders," said the article, "say that there is considerable progress being made toward unity. This is nonsense. Both sides have agreed to talk to each other, and that is about all.

"The A. F. L. has refused to recognize the Russian labor movement as a free labor movement, claiming that the government of Russia controlled and appointed the trade union leaders and laid down the rules for them to work under.

"On the other hand, the C. I. O. went out 100 per cent to meet the Russian labor movement and the British trade union movement and practically recognized them both on equal terms.

A. F. L. President William Green said after the conference with Sir Walter in May that the A. F. L. had not rejected the proposal, but there was some discussion in the form of "collective bargaining" on the subject. The nature of the A. F. L.'s counter-proposal was not disclosed. The British labor leader returned to England about two weeks ago after confessing disappointment to intimate friends over the results of his mission. His report has not been made public.

3-Day Registration for New Gasoline Ration Coupons Will Begin Tomorrow

160,000 Due To Sign Up In District

A total of 8 million motorists in 17 eastern States and the District of Columbia are expected to register for gasoline coupon books during the three-day registration period starting tomorrow. More than 160,000 District motorists are expected to sign up.

The registration will be "simple and painless," an Office of Price Administration statement said.

The auto owner or anyone he wishes to send simply goes to the designated registration center nearest his home, armed with his auto registration papers. He fills out and signs a simple form telling what kind of car he owns, and its license number. The registrar then writes that information on the cover of a book of coupons, writes the A-book number on his car registration papers, gives him an A sticker for his car, and the autoist goes away, with the authority to purchase enough gasoline during the next 12 months to run his car approximately 2680 miles.

"That's all there is to it," OPA stated.

28 Registration Centers

Gasoline registration in the District will be held in 28 public buildings. These buildings will be open from 7 a. m. to 9 p. m. tomorrow and Friday, and from 7 a. m. to 1 p. m. on Saturday. To avoid congestion, persons whose names begin with the letters "A" to "E" are requested to register tomorrow, with those whose names begin with letters "F" to "M" requested to register Friday and those whose names begin "N" to "Z to register Saturday.

Car owners who feel that they need additional gasoline may apply for the extra gas on special forms which will be available at the registration centers. The forms are to be taken home to be filled out and then transmitted to the nearest local ration board.

Owners of taxicabs, buses, ambulances, trucks and other commercial vehicles, and drivers of Government-owned vehicles will deal directly with local rationing boards to receive special books "tailored" to their needs.

Registration at Schools

High Cost of Living Begins To Hit Chicago 'Budget Baby'

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

"BUDGET BABY" Sharon Derer and mother cut cake

By the Associated Press

Chicago, July 7.—The high cost of living has begun to catch up with Chicago's "budget baby."

While pretty blue-eyed Sharon Derer frolicked with friends at a party on her third birthday anniversary yesterday, her budget-minded parents brought up to date the list of her expenses.

It showed Sharon cost them $283.94 in her third year, compared with $225.05 the second, and $270.17 the first—a total of $779.16.

Despite the higher third year cost, Sharon's parents are as convinced as ever that "babies aren't a luxury."

When Sharon was born, July 6, 1939, her father, Joseph, 34, was earning $1600 a year as an icer of refrigerator cars. Now a milling machine operator engaged in war production, he averages $1800.

The mother, Louise, 28, said that besides the higher cost of food and clothing, Sharon was now eating more and a greater variety of food, "and most of the clothing given at showers for her birth is either outgrown or worn out," she added.

The third-year cost breakdown:

Milk, $37.88; eggs, $10.55; ice cream, $12.90; candy, $6.15; canned fruit, $23.55; canned vegetables, $5.10; fresh vegetables, $18.76; canned and package soup, $9.88; pudding and custard, $1.59; cookies and pretzels, $6.01; cereals, $4.87; noodles and macaroni, $1.50; soap, $8.87; fresh fruit, $18.57; doctor, $30.50; toys, $4.16.

Drugs, $8.81; clothing, $33.82; insurance ($500 policy), $10.40; haircuts, $1.40; shoe polish, 80 cents; blanket, $1.52; paint for remodeling baby furniture, 80 cents; scrapbook and tabs, $1.95; kiddie park entertainment, $4.35; Christmas gifts (from Sharon), $9.15.

Christmas cards and stamps, $1.30; valentines, 25 cents; Easter basket, candy, $1.60; tooth brush and powder, 30 cents, and birthday party, $5.66.

Not included in expenses were two $25 denomination defense bonds.

Mrs. Derer said she began an analysis of family expenses shortly after she and her husband were married "to see how we spent our money and whether we could afford a baby."

After calculating in advance that a baby need not be a luxury, she added, the expense record for Sharon was kept "to determine whether our estimates were correct."

The budget began as a means of solving a family problem, continued as a hobby "and now it's becoming an informal research problem," she said. "I'm going to try to keep the record for ten years. We've had many calls and letters from people interested in Sharon's budget."

One Spy to Have Separate Counsel

eyes open."

There were, said Gen. Cox, strong and urgent reasons for the emphatic secrecy that was being practiced. "You'll have to guess what they are," he added. "For one thing, this country is very definitely in the war . . ."

Neither the prosecution nor the defense would discuss the identity of any of the witnesses, who are housed in various hotels and rooming houses here. It was learned, however, that one principal witness was Mrs. Gerda Melind, 24, of Chicago, who was engaged to Herbert Hans Haupt, one of the four who landed on the Long Island beach.

Haupt's father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Hans Haupt were also summoned as well as Mrs. Melind's father, Herman Struckmann and at least a dozen others from Chicago. Neither the prosecution nor defense would say for which side these witnesses would testify.

President of the Military Commission is Maj. Gen. Frank R. McCoy, who refused to make any statement yesterday. Henry Paynter, of the Office of War Information, said, however, that bulletins would be issued from time to time.

General McCoy will preside over the first Military Commission set up in America since President Lincln's assassins were hanged by the last one. Legal authorities explained that the commission is the American counterpart of a court-martial-with-power-to-punish-civilians. Its proceedings are not a trial, in the ordinary sense, for the prisoners might conceivably not be present during the session.

Indeed, it appeared last night that nobody will be present beside the seven generals who will call in prosecutors, defense counsel and witnesses when they require them.

Espionage Is Charge

Before the commission will be the four charges filed against the Germans by Attorney General Biddle and Maj. Gen. Myron Cramer, the Adjutant General. Study of the charges yesterday showed that the eight Germans were held as spies, that the word "saboteurs" first applied to them and widely adopted was a misnomer. The critical words of the charges say that the eight Nazis, "being enemies of the United States . . . acting for a belligerent enemy nation . . . secretly and covertly passed, in civilian dress . . . without being in the uniform of the German Reich . . . through the military and naval lines of the United States" . . . for the purpose of espionage, sabotage "and other hostile acts."

Like "premeditated and deliberate" in a murder indictment, such phrases are the legal labels of a spy charge.

The text of the charges gave no hint, and the close-mouthed Army men in charge of the proceedings have released no answer to the most fascinating question of the whole spy drama:

"How were they caught?"

Group to Study Canvass Here On Car Sharing

Plans to canvass the city for the purpose of stimulating the share-your-car movement will be discussed at a District Building conference Friday morning.

The meeting was called by Mrs. Charlotte Warner, chairman of the consumer committee, civilian mobilization division. Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer, Howard Wentworth, his assistant; Conrad Van Hyning, mobilization division chairman, and Mrs. Warner will discuss the forthcoming house-to-house survey which will be made to marshal car owners and prospective riders to and from work.

President Asked to Create Single Oil Supply Officer

Boston, July 7 (AP).—The Atlantic Coast Oil Associations Conference today urged President Roosevelt to organize the supply and distribution of petroleum products under one responsible officer, and protested imposition of increases in the price of gasoline and light fuel oils in only the 17 Eastern oil-rationed States.

In a telegram to the White House, the conference said its members concurred in Price Administrator Leon Henderson's statement that the increased costs resulting from submarine warfare against the tanker fleet should be shared by the whole people.

The telegram said that the consumers were "exasperated" rather than apathetic in their reaction to suggestions that they convert heating plants from oil to coal, since the cost would be from $75 to $100 in each case, and "no figures have been advanced reliable enough to convince our consumer that he will be assured of his fuel requirements even if he does convert to coal."

62 Begin Work In High School Aviation Class

Sixty-two high school graduates yesterday started studies at Roosevelt High School in the first day of a six-week "preaviation" course designed by the Board of Education.

Plan of the course, under the direction of Hardy Pearce, director of physical education in District schools, with some aid from the preflight training bureau of the Navy, is to insure preference for these boys over untrained high school graduates at Navy flight training centers later, it was said.

Training includes rigorous physical exercises, like those used in the Navy's preflight training, and instruction in physics and advanced mathematics. Pearce said that if the course is successful it is planned by the Board of Education to incorporate it in the high school curriculum this fall.

Agriculture Gets July Funds; Senate Widens Parity Fight

prieve to the President.

The day brought the Administration its first clearcut victory in a battle that had raged for two months in conference and which Representative Woodrum (Democrat) of Virginia told the House was "almost assuming the proportions of a national scandal."

Cannon Plot Denounced

Woodrum and Majority Leader John McCormack took the floor against an amendment by Chairman Clarence Cannon of the House Appropriations Committee to continue the ban on below-parity sales of grain except for drastically limited uses.

Cannon's amendment was defeated on a roll call vote 185 to 59. Then the House by a vote of 167 to 0 passed a substitute, freezing grain for livestock and industrial uses drawn, by Representative Tarver (Democrat) of Georgia, chairman of the House conferees.

On four previous occasions the House had voted to clamp a tight ban on subparity grain sales. Yesterday it weakened, despite a warning by Cannon that "the country is waiting to know who is going to change his vote, and is particularly interested in why he changes his vote."

Cannon, who has supported the American Farm Bureau Federation's stand against subparity marketing, denounced language used in a letter written by the President to seven farm, labor and religious leaders. The letter condemned "pressure group" influences and said opponents of his "food for victory" program would be held to account by the public.

Cannon Is Bitter

Cannon, in a bitter speech, denied the President had written the letter. He said both a letter written by the seven leaders and the Presidents' reply were prepared by "bureaucrats" in the Agriculture Department, whom he also accused of "trying to break farm prices." He said a reference to "power hungry" farmers in the letter "ought to go in the joke book" and called it "contemptible."

"That letter speaks of pressure groups," Cannon said. "There is no pressure group in the United States equal to the Department of Agriculture. It has thousands of employes all over the country and every one of them has been doing everything he could to oppose the expressed will of the House."

Woodrum Defends President

Woodrum, ranking member of the House Appropriations Committee, told the House that Cannon's amendment would merely continue the deadlock and carry word to the country that Congress "is unable to legislate." Woodrum said he would "rather follow the leadership of the President where the interests of the farmer are concerned," than of any House member who had spoken.

Before concurring in House emergency fund action, the Senate shoved to passage the Bankhead-Russell bill guaranteeing 100 per cent parity loans to farm producers of six basic commodities. Just before passage, Senator O'Mahoney (Democrat) of Wyoming made an unsuccessful effort to return the bill to committee. His motion was rejected by the bare margin of 26 to 27 votes.

McNary Fights Plan

During two days of debate, Senate Minority Leader McNary, O'Mahoney, Senator Gillette (Democrat) of Iowa and others, chiefly from corn States had opposed the loan measure. McNary condemned it as discriminatory against farm producers of non-basic crops, and threatening private grain agencies with destruction by cornering vast wheat supplies in the Commodity Credit Corporation. Senate Majority Leader Barkley argued that "if the bill is socialistic, we are already 85 per cent socialistic because we have 85 per cent of parity loans." Raising the loans to 100 per cent would cost no more since it would dispense with AAA parity payments, proponents contended.

Parity loans for wheat would assure grain farmers of $1.34 a bushel in loans from the Government, against the 96 cents a bushel they now receive for wheat on the farms. Parity loans for corn would be 97.6 cents, against the average 81.9 cents farm price on June 15. Other basic commodities on which parity loans would be mandatory include cotton, peanuts, tobacco and rice. Rice, now selling above parity, would require no loans.

Roll Call

The vote on final passage in the Senate of the bill authorizing loans of 100 per cent of parity on six crops follows:

Tire Checker Approved Sale, Hundley Says

The District Court trial of Hiram Ben Hundley was expected to enter its final summation stages today following testimony by the Washington tire dealer yesterday that the tires he is charged with selling illegally had been approved for sale by authorized inspectors.

Under cross-examination by Assistant United States Attorney John L. Laskey yesterday, Hundley admitted that the tires "don't look like" they had been run 1000 miles, but claimed it was possible they had been used that long. The Government accuses Hundley of selling new tires—in violation of an OPA rationing order—to the Star Publishing Co., the Premier Purchasing Co., and the Diamond Service Co. It is charged the tires had been falsely marked as used.

Under the OPA regulation, a used tire is defined as one that has been in use for 1000 miles. The defense contends that all of the tires sold by Hundley after December 12, 1941, the date that the freezing order took effect, were "change overs"—slightly used tires turned in by customers for exchange.

Hundley testified that a District inspector checked and "okayed" 1719 tires at his business headquarters, 3446 Fourteenth Street Northwest.

Goodyear Air Dock Damaged by Fire

Akron, Ohio, July 7 (AP).—Firemen brought under control within an hour tonight flames which broke out at one end of the huge Goodyear Air Dock, once the home base of the dirigibles Akron and Macon, and now used for assembling sections of aircraft.

The "extent of the damage and the origin of the fire are not completely determined," Goodyear Aircraft Corp. officials stated. Production continued without serious interruption at the other end of the dock, which is 1175 feet long.

$500 Bank Roll Is Kicked Around In Georgia Capitol

Atlanta, July 7 (AP).—Spurned by its owner, a $500 roll of currency was kicking around Georgia's Capitol today.

Agriculture Commissioner Tom Linder paid the money to the State Democratic executive committee Saturday to enter the race for nomination as United States Senator. But yesterday the committee ruled he had not met the regulations and wasn't qualified.

Joe Boone, assistant committee secretary, took the money back to Linder's office and when the much-irked commissioner declined to accept it, he tossed it on a desk.

Later the money had disappeared, but Linder said he didn't know where it was and added, testily:

"It may be in the trash can for all I know."

NYA to Close State Offices, Drop 10,000 in Retrenchment

In a severe retrenchment to bring its activities into line with reduced appropriations, the National Youth Administration announced yesterday it would close all its State offices. Their functions will be taken over by 11 regional offices.

The local administrative units for New York City and the District of Columbia also will be closed.

Between 9000 and 10,000 employes will be dropped, NYA said.

The regional offices will be at Boston, Harrisburg, Pa.; Charleston, W. Va.; Columbus, Ohio; Chicago, Atlanta, St. Paul, Topeka, Austin, Tex.; Denver and Los Angeles.

Glenn S. Callaghan, former West Virginia administrator, will be director of the Charleston (W. Va.) regional office, which will serve the District of Columbia, Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland and North Carolina.

Congress cut the NYA appropriations from 151 million dollars for 1941-42 to approximately 60 million dollars for 1942-43.

The NYA announced also it was abolishing its information division, and that Marie Lane of Trenton, N. J., previously in charge of the girls' work program, had been selected to head the NYA division of youth personnel, succeeding Dr. Mary Hayes, New York City, who has resigned.

Regional OPA Administrators Get Subpena Powers

Price Administrator Leon Henderson yesterday strengthened the rationing enforcement powers of his office by granting subpena powers to regional administrators to require any individual to produce books and records for examination.

Meanwhile, a Senate Appropriations subcommittee still had reached no decision on the funds to be allocated to his office for this fiscal year. Senator McKellar (Democrat) of Tennessee said action may not be taken until late this week.

Henderson asked for $210,000,000. The Budget Bureau trimmed that to $161,000,000 and the House voted only 75 million dollars. Henderson has indicated the organization cannot function properly on less than $161,000,000.

War Industry Will Induct 20 Million

coming into the labor forces for the first time will be from women who have never worked except in their own homes and young people just reaching working ages.

"To secure the necessary workers and the anticipated increase in the armed forces in 1943 will necessitate additional conversion of workers from non-war industries, and the addition of approximately 3,600,000 persons in the active labor market who are not ordinarily included in the working forces. This latter group will be principally women.

To attain the necessary workers for war activities, General McSherry said "we must change many of our employment concepts." Employers, he said, can no longer afford to set arbitrary age limits; they must appreciate "the value of women in skilled, semiskilled and unskilled occupations;" they "can no longer afford to discriminate against Negroes and workers of other minority groups," and aliens, where it is possible under Government restrictions, must be considered for war production jobs and as replacements in civilian occupations.

"So far as the man power itself is concerned from the national standpoint," he said, "we have an ample supply for this year if we use our entire available supply without discriminatory practices."

General McSherry said one of the most serious problems interfering with the pace of the war production program was "the large amount of turnover caused by labor pirating—the indiscriminate increasing of wages for certain types of work and other inducements to attract skilled workers from other industries.

Senator Elbert D. Thomas of Utah, member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, told the institute tonight that Japan will "not be destroyed by conquest from without," but that she "destroyed herself by deliberately turning her back upon the ideals which made her great."

"Japan, with Germany and Italy, stand today the enemies not only of the world, but also the enemies of the great German, Italian and Japanese peoples and culture," said the Utah Senator, who spent five years in Japan as a missionary.

U. S. Indicts 54 Bund Officers

is wanted, also, in Hartford, Conn., on a Federal charge of violation of the 1917 Espionage Act.

Kunze's name appeared in one indictment which charged that on October 1, 1940, a command was issued over his name technically urging all bundists to comply with the Selective Service Act but adding:

"We represent the standpoint, however, that an induction in the military service is not justified as far as it concerns bund members and American Germans, for in the Selective Service law the citizenship rights of bund members and the defenders of Germandom are unconstitutionally severed.

"Every man, if he can, will refuse to do military duty until this law and all other laws of the country and of the States which confine the citizenship rights of bund members are revoked."

Although he declined to say how many bundists inducted into the Army had followed the command, Correa asserted that Army officials had arrested a number of men who said they would not fight against the German fatherland.

The indictments revealed another command, issued in Kunze's name, advising bund members not to mention their connection with the Nazi organization when complying with alien registration requirements.

Attorney General Biddle described the indictment of the 29 men as "simply another phase of the department's intensified campaign against actual or potential saboteurs of the American war effort."

"This is war," he said, "and we will fight with every weapon at our command."

Today's move appeared to climax an investigation of several months during which two men committed suicide rather than testify before a grand jury. The men were George Froebese of Milwaukee, who jumped under a railroad train in Indiana, and George Schwindl, who ended his life by gas in New York.

Among those named in both indictments were: Wilbur V. Keegan, counsel for the Amerika Deutscher Volkesbund until last January with offices at Teaneck, N. J.; August Klapprott, leader of the bund's Eastern department; William Luedtke of Saddle River Township, N. J., secretary of the bund; Gustav Elmer, national treasurer, of New York; Dr. Otto Willumeit, head of the Chicago division of the bund nd now awaiting sentence in Hartford on his plea of guilty to espionage and conspiracy, and Herman Schwinn, interned leader of the bund's Western district.

Others described as unit leaders indicted on both counts were: Otto Fentske, Max Rapp, Hugo Weiss, Bruno Clemens Knupfer, William C. Kunze, John August Grill, Walter Borchers, Carl Bregler, all of New York City; Karl A. Bachmann and Karl Richard Wendlandt, both of Buffalo; Louis Schatz, Troy, N. Y.; Ernst Martin Christoph, Summit, N. J.

Also John C. Fitting, Union City, N. J., Ferdinand Callsen, South Bend, Ind.; Josef Belohlavek, Cleveland, Ohio, Carl Frederick Berg, Minneapolis, Minn.; Walter F. Schneller, jr., and Joseph Bachmaier, both of Erie, Pa., and William Ottersbach, Seattle, Wash.

Indicted only on the Selective Service count were: Hugo Richard Steimle, interned National Youth leader; Herman Agne of Philadelphia; and Hans Diebel of Los Angeles.

Named in the denaturalization proceedings were Kuhn and Elmer, Herbert Otto Finders, Scarsdale, N. Y.; William C. Kunz, Conrad Koehler, Ernst Sotzek, Henry von Holt, Erich Ewald Kittkau, Alfonse Rambacher, Urban Kugler, Mrs. Lucy Baltrusch, Christian Auch, Werner Ulrich, Ernst Glas, Karl Boltrauch, Martin Heinrich, Paul Benzenhofer, Kurt Sassenhagen, John Older, Franz Xavier Schneller, all of New York.

Also Herman H. Hoeflich, Nanuet, N. Y.; Gott Hief Faigle, Yonkers, N. Y.; Richard Schmidt and his son, Edward, both of Poughkeepsie, N. Y.; Justice Hommel, White Plains, N. Y.; Leo Cyler, New City, N. Y., and William Heller of Poughkeepsie.

Laughs in the News

Lightning Starts Irrigation Pump, Electric Bill Is $26

The telegraph news wires carried these briefs yesterday:

Mother Nature played a mean trick on Frank Edgerton of Aurora, Nebr. He was puzzled when he received a $26 electric bill for the pump at the large irrigation unit because he thought it had not been running since last August. Investigation showed a lightning bolt had fused two wires together, starting the pump, which filled a small lake nearby to overflowing.

Seven months, to the day, after Pearl Harbor, Charles Hall of Quincy, Calif., learned that the United States was at war. He returned after mining alone far up the Feather River since October 12. His draft board broke the news.

In Iberia, Mo., Henry Shackleford spread salt for his cattle to eat. They ignored it, but his hogs devoured it eagerly. Then Shackleford learned he had squandered his family's entire supply of sugar.

A clerk in a Denver grocery store scrawled "beans" on a scrap of paper and left it in the cash register at the end of the day so his boss would know where to find the receipts. The next morning the boss couldn't find the $303 in the pile of beans. Burglars had visited the store during the night. They could read, too.

A misplaced vowel cost Eng Lang, New York Chinese restaurateur, $5. Lang was fined after a health inspector testified in Municipal Court that Lang had told him he had used rancid fat to make soup. Lang paid but insisted:

"I told him soap—not soup."

In Albany, N. Y., Frank L. Frazier's gasoline and tire worries ended abruptly. While he was petitioning his ratio board for additional fuel allowance—and four new tires, his parked automobile rolled down a hill, crashed into city hall—wrecked beyond repair.

A Boise, Idaho, tire rationing board rejected the application of Lieut. Col. Norman B. Adkison of Idaho Selective Service Staff for two new tires. Said Adkison:

"I wouldn't mind so much, but they claimed it had not been established that Selective Service is engaged in activity essential to the war effort."

Senate Confirms Admiral Fletcher

It also confirmed nominations of these captains to the temporary rank of rear admiral:

George D. Murray, born in Boston, Mass., and residing in Washington, D. C., and Charles W. Crosse, born in Sun Prairie, Wis., and whose usual home address is Stoughton, Wis.

House Group Approves City Blackout Bill

The House District Committee yesterday gave final approval to the amended District blackout bill and Chairman Jennings Randolph is scheduled to ask for its passage by the House tomorrow.

The bill, which gives all-out powers over private property to the Commissioners for the duration, will be equipped on the floor with a War Department amendment designed to forestall conflict between military and city authority.

In a letter to the committee, Secretary Stimson asked for a clarifying amendment "in order to avoid the possibility of conflict and misunderstanding as to the jurisdiction and duties of the War and Navy Departments and the Commissioners." He approved the bill itself as lending "material aid" to the war effort.

The amendment, indorsed by local officials, simply specifies that no provisions of the bill shall interfere with or limit the powers of military and naval authorities, or nterfere with their activities or disposition of personnel.

The bill as it goes to the House for acton empowers the Commissioners to requisition private property whenever they feel it necessary for defense purposes; authorizes them to take whatever steps they believe required for the city's protection; permits them to borrow another million dollars for civilian defense financing, and exempts the city from liability in accidents which involve civilian defense organizations or personnel.

Only other action taken by the committee at its meeting yesterday was to approve a bill tightening the regulation of insurance systems operated by fraternal orders.

Described as an effort to block "unscrupulous individuals" from promoting shoestring insurance plans under the guise of fraternal orders, the bill provides that in order to be eligible for an insurance license a fraternal organization must prove itself to have been a "lodge system with ritualistic form of work and representative form of government for at least three years." Licenses would have to be renewed every year.

'Potomac' Prosecution Studied by Bryan

Assistant Corporation Counsel Irving Bryan yesterday took under advisement the question whether the Potomac River Line, Inc., violated an air-raid precaution order when the S. S. Potomac rode up the river "lit up like a Christmas tree" on the night of June 17, during Washington's dusk-to-dawn blackout.

More than a dozen witnesses testified at a hearing in Bryan's office yesterday. Charges against the steamship company were brought by Southwest air-raid wardens, who said that about 500 passengers were unloaded from the boat at the Maine Avenue Southwest pier while music and merriment continued under full lighting aboard.

Present to meet the charges was B. B. Wills, president of the line. He said he ordered the boat blacked out when he heard the "alert" sounded. For 50 minutes, he argued, the boat remained stationary midway between Hains Point and the pier. Even after he saw the streetcars and buses operating with lights, he said, he kept the boat dark until he was certain the alarm period was over. Then, he continued, the lights were turned on and the trip was completed.

The question to be decided, Bryan said, is whether the company could claim exemption from the regulation on the ground that the vessel was operating as a transportation vehicle. The blackout order, issued June 12 by the Board of Commissioners, provides exception for "navigation lights and aids to navigation, both air and water."

William Rinehart, assistant deputy warden, told Bryan that he had directed Wills to dock the boat with only the running lights on. He said also that he had tried to talk with Wills when the ship tied up at the pier, but that Wills had said he "had more important things to do."

Wills contended that he could not speak with the wardens, since, he said, he was concerned with unloading his passengers. E. S. Johnson, zone warden, claimed he had about 15 wardens, equipped with flashlights, to help passengers ashore and that this could have been done with the ship's lights turned off.

Raymond Guest Flies Back From Europe

New York, July 7 (AP).—Raymond R. Guest, who described himself as a farmer of Bayard, Va., was one of 16 passengers who arrived today from Europe aboard a transatlantic flying ace. "I wasn't there for fun. I can tell you that," was Guest's only comment. He is the brother of Winston Guest, international polo player.

Dudley Williams, traffic manager of the American Export Airlines, was another passenger. He said living costs in London were "higher than those in Washington, D. C."

College Park Airport Head Critically Burned As Plane Hits Power Line, Crashes in Flames

WRECKAGE—Twisted framework and bits of fabric are all that remain of the monoplane in which Julius Schiel, 22, manager of the College Park Airport, was burned yesterday in a crash landing. Schiel reportedly was trying to bring his plane down in a small clearing when the engine stopped and the ship struck an electric wire, setting it afire

Julius Schiel, 23, of Summit, Va., manager of the College Park Airport, was in critical condition at Casualty Hospital last night, suffering from burns he received when his plane struck a power wire and burned at Lakeland yesterday afternoon.

Spectators said that the motor of the light training monoplane cut out shortly after it left the airport. Schiel, lacking altitude to return to the field, apparently attempted to land in a small clearing in the center of Lakeland. The plane struck the wire and somersaulted to the ground in flames, landing on its back.

Schiel crawled out of the cockpit and spectators dragged him from the wreckage and tore his burning clothing off. He was rushed to the hospital by the Branchville Rescue Squad, where he was said to be suffering first, second and third degree burns about the entire body.

Spectators said that had the plane not hit the wire, it probably would have crashed into a nearby store before it came to a stop after landing. Four dwellings and the store were grouped around the 100-yard square field where the crash occurred.

Schiel, who had about 35 hours of solo, was a cadet pilot with the Civil Aeronautics Authority and had planned to enter active duty in the Navy Air Corps next week. He was managing the College Park Airport in the absence of George Brinkerhoff, owner, who is serving as a flight instructor for the Army in Georgia.

U. S. Girls' Dormitory Rooms on Preview

Rooms for the $1440-a-year Government girl, furnished at a cost of less than $75 each, were open for press inspection yesterday at the Interior Building as a preview of living quarters in Government-built dormitories, expected to be completed around October 1.

Still in the experimental stages, the rooms offered a two-way choice in furnishings although size, cost and space were almost identical. Gladys Miller, furnishings consultant for the Public Buildings Administration, emphasized that she was striving for "colorful rooms, yet they must be inexpensive and easy to maintain"—and visitors saw "just that.

In the otherwise drab basement of the Interior Building are two 8 by 10 rooms, equipped with such regard for space that the dweller may move about comfortably. One feminine reporter observed that the hypothetical Government girl would have sitting space for seven callers, using chair, bed and ottoman.

Concerning rental price of the rooms, Miss Miller prefered not to say definitely, but indicated that PBA was aiming for "under $25 a month." Furnishing price is far under the World War I figure of $300 each, she pointed out.

One, identified as "the painted room," has walls tinted in a pale restful green. The other, unpainted, is in the natural gray of the temporary building construction, cemesto board. Both have windows that slide to the right or left, instead of up and down, and both have venetian blinds.

The painted room boasts an armchair and ottoman in matching cretone, a polished oak bureau, a "cosmetic cabinet" with mirror and enclosed shelves for milady's jars and bottles, a table that doubles as a desk, a tall lamp, a closet "built so that a girl 5 feet 11 inches tall can hang up an evening dress without mussing it," and a bed.

This last item, Miss Miller says, is even more experimental than the rest of the room, as it is too low. One of suitable sitting height will be substituted.

Also there is a blackout slide that eliminates light and ventilation, a gay sateen curtain, and a small, washable rug. These are far from definite, as Miss Miller feels that the maintenance problem may be too great.

'Blitz' Scouts Arrive Today To See Capital

Four "blitz" Scouts, so named because of their work during England's prolonged air raids, will be in Washington today and tomorrow on a sightseeing tour that includes the Capitol, Arlington National Cemetery and the National Cathedral.

The English boys are John Bethell, 16, of Birkenhead; Roy Davis, 18, Southampton; Stanley Newton, 18, London, and Hugh Bright, 17, Glasgow. All Scouts of the "king" rank, they will be guests of Americans of the equivalent Eagle Scout ranking here.

Their hosts tonight will be Richard Rogers, 3620 T Street Northwest; Jerry Brentlinger, 6229 Twenty-third Street, Arlington, and David McCabe, 6124 Thirty-third Street Northwest. A fourth will be announced today.

The English boys will arrive at Union Station today at 2:30 p. m. A city-wide Scout rally at the Sylvan Theater will begin at 7:30 p. m., when the Navy School of Music Band will play. Group singing of "America" and "God Save the King" will be led by Rock Kirkham, assistant Scout executive.

The visitors will be guests at the British Embassy at 9:30 tomorrow morning and then will go to the Washington Cathedral. Two will attend the Kiwanis Club luncheon at the Willard and two others will be guests of the Junior Board of Trade at the Hotel Annapolis.

Senator Arthur Capper (Republican), Kansas, a national official of the American Boy Scout organization, will receive them at his Capitol office at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow.

They will lay a wreath on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington National Cemetery at 4 p. m. and then will visit the Lincoln Memorial.

Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Stuart C. Godfrey will hold a buffet supper in their honor at their home, 3703 Thirty-third Place Northwest, at 5:30 p m. They will leave at 8:30 p. m. for Buffalo, N. Y., the next stop on their 11-day tour of American cities.

West Potomac Links May Yet Be Saved

The Public Buildings Administration indicated yesterday that plans may yet be altered so that the nine-hole public golf course in West Potomac Park may not have to be abolished to make way for a dormitory.

The War Department already has disclosed its willingness to give up its parking lot on what formerly was the polo field in the park. If the Navy Department follows suit, the dormitory plans may be restudied with the view of utilizing more of the polo field site and less of the golf course for construction, it was said.

Neither the Army nor the Navy parking lot is being used to any great extent.

15 Aviators Killed in 5 Separate Crashes

By the Associated Press

Trenton, Ga., July 7.—A four-motored Army bomber of the B-24 type crashed and burned on a mountainside two miles north of here late today. Sheriff Grover Tatum of Dade County said all five men aboard the plane were burned beyond recognition.

Pilots from Lovell Field, Chattanooga, who came here soon after the crash, said clearance papers, partly destroyed, indicated that the bomber had been based at Barksdale Field, Louisiana. Witnesses said the pilot apparently flew too low in an effort to improve visibility during an electric storm.

Sioux City, Iowa, July 7 (AP).—A two-motored Army plane on a routine flight crashed into a hillside here this afternoon killing its four occupants.

The dead were identified as Lieut. Parker C. Everitt, Corpls. Robert W. Shores and Joseph H. Plew and Srgt. Jack Barr Jones, all of Felts Field, Spokane, Wash. Home addresses were not available.

Macon, Ga., July 7 (AP).—Two Army Air Corps officers were killed today when their plane crashed at Harris Field near Fort Valley.

The men from Cochran Field here, were identified as Lieuts. John J. Offut, 30, of New Castle, Pa., and Robert E. Adams, 22, of Huron, N. Dak.

Spartansburg, S. C., July 7 (INS).—The death of Second Lieut. Theodore F. Galloway, 23, of Syracuse, N. Y., when his plane went out of control and crashed last night, was announced today by the Spartansburg Army air base.

Vancouver, British Columbia, July 7 (INS).—Three Canadian fliers were killed late today when a Royal Canadian Air Force twin-motored training plane crashed about 10 miles from Vancouver.

Volcano Continuing To Erupt on Sicily

Rome (From Italian Broadcasts), July 7 (AP).—Mount Etna, Sicilian volcano which began erupting last week, is continuing to pour lava, ashes and stones over an area of uncultivated land several miles wide, the Italian radio said today.

Some of the volcanic ashes have been carried as far as the City of Catania, about 20 miles away, the radio added.

Capital's Ideal Father Collects His Reward At Ideal Party With Wife and 7 Children

"Congratulations, daddy." Ten-year-old Florence Harpold (right) and her sister, Juanita, 11, present The Post trophy to their dad, Marine Sergt. William C. Harpold, who was chosen as Greater Washington's Ideal Father last month. Looking on are Mrs. Harpold and Gerald G. Gross, who conducted The Post's third annual Father's Day contest

After watering the cow, putting out some feed for the chickens and locking the farmhouse, Marine Sergt. William C. Harpold loaded his wife and seven children into the jalopy yesterday and drove into town for an Ideal Father's reward.

Selected as Greater Washington's ideal dad in the Father's Day contest sponsored by The Post last month, Sergeant Harpold reigned as a king for a day.

At a gala banquet table set especially for the family at the Olmsted Grill, the marine received an engraved plaque from his two daughters, exchanged wedding anniversary—the thirtenth—greetings with his wife and was reunited with a long-lost uncle.

"We had a wonderful time that we'll never forget," he said when it was all over.

"You said it, pop," piped 12-year-old William Cody Harpold.

The roast turkey was carved personally by Chef Rene Roux. Manager L. J. Mitchell hovered about to make sure that an ideal dad got an ideal party. All seven of the youngsters, from William Cody, the eldest, down to 23-month-old Jack, deported themselves like cherubim, though it was the first time they had eaten in a restaurant.

The uncle present was Sergt. Arthur J. Harpold, stationed at Camp Gordon, Ga. Coming to Washington last month for a physical checkup, he chanced to learn that his nephew was stationed here when he picked up a copy of The Post and read of Sergeant Harpold's selection as winner of the ideal father contest.

On duty at Marine headquarters in Arlington, Sergeant Harpold continues to operate his small farm at Croom, Md., in Prince Georges County.

He had to hurry through his dessert last night in order to get home in time to milk the cow.

Exhibits From Lincoln Death Trial Placed on Public View

The National Park Service yesterday placed on public view the pistol, photographs and other exhibits that helped convict the conspirators against Abraham Lincoln.

Today eight alleged saboteurs go on trial here before a military commission ,the first of its kind that has sat in judgment since Mrs. Mary Surratt and six men were convicted of plotting against Lincoln's life.

The idea for the special exhibition, which will be continued indefinitely at the Lincoln Museum on downtown Tenth Street, originated with A. E. Demaray, associate director of the National Park Service. The N. P. S. operates the museum, housed in the old Ford's Theater, where Lincoln was shot.

Relics on display include the single-shot Derringer used by John Wilkes Booth to kill the President, the boot cut from Booth's broken leg by Dr. Samuel Mudd, carbines carried by Booth while he was in flight, the assasin's diary, portraits of the seven conspirators who stood trial and numerous other items.

Appointed by President Andrew Johnson, the military commission that tried the seven consisted of Maj. Gen. David Hunter, Maj. Gen. Lew Wallace, Brevet Maj. Gen. August V. Kautz, Brig. Gen. Albion P. Howe, Brig. Gen. Robert S. Foster, Brig. Gen. James A. Ekin, Brig. Gen. Thomas M. Harris, Col. Charles H. Tompkins and Brevet Col. D. R. Clendenin.

Brig. Gen. Joseph Holt, judge advocate general of the Army, was prosecutor and Reverdy Johnson of Maryland, principal defense lawyer.

Besides Mrs. Surratt, those sentenced to hang were David E. Herold, Lewis Payne and George A. Atzeroth. Michael O'Laughlin and David Arnold were sentenced to life imprisonment. Edward Spengler received a six-year sentence.

Yesterday was the seventy-seventh anniversary of the execution of Mrs. Surratt and the three men.

D. C. Men Inducted In Army June 25 Report Tomorrow

A list of men inducted into the Army June 25 who will return to duty tomorrow at 10 a. m. after a 14-day furlough was issued yesterday by the District Selective Service headquarters.

It included the following:

Clarence W. McFarland, Anthony F. Conigliaro, Robert E. McLaughlin, George J. Kilroy, Jr., William J. Malone, Jr., Joe B. Gale, Andrew F. Kristovich, Daniel T. Ghent, Daniel C. Sullivan, James B. Clarke, Jr., James M. E. O'Grady, Marvin J. Weinstein, Thomas W. Cecil, Jr., John D. Clark, Luther E. Harrison, Jr., John J. Payne.

George R. Swanson, Hector T. Allen, Graham G. Oakes, George A. Welch, Charles G. Domh, Richard M. Kennedy, James A. Botelho, Francis T. Cronin, Ralph E. Goodale, Milton C. Boswell, Samuel H. Quinz, George Biaschak, Frank A. Calfiisch, Larry T. Meade, William E. Chambers, Jr., James W. Prady, Addison A. Smith, Paul A. Davis.

Ringside Table

With Mary Harris

BUSIEST MAN IN TOWN is Dick Lam, manager of the Lotus. Besides overseeing the record Lotus business, he's also readying his new Chinese Village at Eighth and H Streets Northeast, for its opening this weekend and has been active in making arrangements for the Chinese pageant that marked the end of the fifth year of China's war with Japan. . . . Lotus' new Beverly Hills Revue is a hummer. Princess Chio looks like a Chinese doll with her black bangs and creamy complexion, dances like a cyclone, sings "You're a Sap, Mr. Jap" with great verve. Tap dancing Don Weissmuller is the cousin of Johnny (Tarzan) Weissmuller, is as smart on a nitery floor as Johnny is in a swimming pool. The weird Dell Brothers who play fiddle and guitar while standing on their heads were recently at the Capitol Theater. And little-bitsy Bunny Hare has a new swing screamer, "Where Were You Last Night?"

Lou Breese is "sending 'em" in the Victory Room with his unusual swinging of folk tunes and that trumpet quartet. And it's camp meetin' time when the Breese band launches into "Tennessee Fish Fry."

A STYLISH POOCH. If you see a beige Yorkshire terrier bearing a general resemblance to an elegant floor mop, but wearing a blue hair ribbon, it's Sally who belongs to beauteous dancer Cordoba now appearing on the Shoreham Terrace. The idea of the ribbon is only partly decorative since it serves to keep Sally's hair from falling over her eyes in the fashion of the ordinary Yorkshire terrier. When Sally's not dressed up she just wears a rubber band in her hair.

HOBBY LOBBY. Ray Donahue, singing saxist of the Lounge Riviera, occupies his spare time with radio, is a third-class commercial operator . . . Within an hour after he arrived at El Patio, Little Jack Little was inquiring about the location of the town's best golf courses . . . Lighting effects are not exactly a hobby of the Crossroads' owners, Edgar Baum and Eddie Smith, but the special lighting they personally devised for Crossroads could serve as a model for anyone's nitery . . . They used to laugh at the hobby of Plymouth's Eddie Whitesell—his bantam car. But not now. Eddie's midget jeep gets 30 m. p. g. . . . When Bob Hellman of the Neptune Room isn't dashing off things like Schubert's "Unfinished Symphony" with partner Bertie, he loves to do stunts in magic; the sort of thing that makes people squeal "Ee-e-k!" . . . Maestro Bert Bernath of the Pall Mall Room used to raise tropical fish. But his present hobby is raising a family . . . Black clothes are the hobby of blonde Gloria Hope, singer in the Mayflower Lounge. She sticks to 'em even in summer time.

Del Rio has just chalked up a fine mark in all-out patriotism. At a staff meeting it was agreed that every Del Rio employe would put $5 a week into war bonds. That's the way to help the Man with Whiskers.

AL NORTON,
Merry-Land's merry master of music and ceremonies

MYSTIC INFORMATION. Leo, the seer of Mayfair, says that after this war there will be no crowned heads; that George VI will be England's last King . . . If your handwriting is full of lovely curlicues, you needn't be proud of it. Lucille Lincoln, graphologist of the Starlight Roof, says that sort of writing indicates a secretive and deceptive disposition.

HISTORY DEPARTMENT. Alert to history in the making is Jules James, owner of Restaurant "400." He placed a handsome picture of J. Edgar Hoover in "400" right after the capture of the Nazi saboteurs . . . Sid Willoughby of Burt's Trans-Lux, Washington's first star nocachordist, instructed Milton Davis of the Rainbow Room, only Washington maestro to lead from the novachord . . . Everyone knows that the Balakaika Orchestra appeared in the "Balalaika" movie, but it's not so generally known that these musical Rooshians also played in the cinema version of "The Chocolate Soldier" . . . Carson, dancing at the Casino Royal, stopped right in the middle of his act recently. In a sailor at the ringside he'd recognized Val Eddy, star xylophonist at the C. R. last year . . . Eve Knight of the King Cole Room, was born in Tidewater, Va., made her radio debut at 15 on Station WCSC, Charleston, S. C. . . . Now that we think of it the River Bend Wednesday "Piggy Parties" are becoming practically historical. They've been going on for about four years with never a single flop . . . Hi Hat's Jack Neal used to play on Cunard pleasure cruises to the tropics. Many of the fine liners he sailed on are now in Davy Jones' locker.

Maestro Paul Kain of Glen Echo, a Californian himself, wants every native son and daughter in Washington to attend "California Night" at Echo on July 15. He says to tell all Californians, "Please come right up on the bandstand and introduce yourselves to me." He means it, too.

SUMMERTIME DELICACIES. The brook trout Meuniere at La Salle du Bois. Also the pompano Papillote which is wrapped in parchment paper before cooking. . . . The avocado pear with fresh fruit salad as prepared at the Burlington is the ideal hot weather dinner. . . . The luscious crab cakes at Olmstead's Restaurant could typify Maryland cookery at its best.

LOUISIANA FLASH! A last minute bulletin from the Louisiana announces jubilantly that Rae Scott's all-girl band will open tonight instead of next week as first scheduled. So tonight's the night to get your first glimpse of Washington's first all-girl dance band, a crew of lassies who can really swing, are all pretty and all under 20. Let's go!

State Dept. Annex Is Out; Plans Go On

Undaunted by the fact that the building is definitely out for the duration, two Federal commissions will assemble next week to argue architectural details of the State Department Annex.

The Post learned yesterday from an official source that no annex to the State Department or building for any other agency is to be erected at Seventeenth Street and Pennsylvania Avenue Northwest. As much was indicated in The Post two months ago.

Facing the State Department Building, the site in question was hastily acquired by the Government last January. Operators of a parking lot, a garage, beauty shop, real estate office, tea room and other tenants were given three weeks' notice to move.

Since then, however, the tract has stood idle. Originally proposed as the site of a State Department annex, the project has been abandoned ostensibly because of inability to obtain priority ratings for construction materials. However, an inter-bureau controversy over occupancy of the building—if it ever is built—reportedly contributed to the impasse.

It was learned yesterday that action might be taken this week on restoring the valuable downtown land now covered with "keep out" signs, to temporary use. The parking lot, at least, probably will be reopened, though it is doubtful whether any of the store sites in the square will be retenanted.

Next Friday the National Capital Park and Planning Commission and the Fine Arts Commission are scheduled to meet jointly to discuss the height of the State Department Annex and where its main entrance shall be.

But no building is going to be erected on the site, at least not before the war is over.

Robert Hinckley Leaves Commerce For War Position

The resignation of Robert H. Hinckley as Assistant Secretary of Commerce, effective as of July 1, was announced yesterday by the White House.

Hinckley has been in charge of the Government's civil aviation program and it was understood he is to become associated with the Sperry Gyroscope Corporation.

William A. M. Burden of New York, who has been with the Defense Supplies Corporation of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, will take over Hinckley's duties temporarily as a special assistant to the Secretary of Commerce.

President Roosevelt accepted Hinckley's resignation with regret, adding that "I am glad to know that your new work takes you into the production of vital war equipment."

Cabmen Vote Union Rates, Hankin Ouster

Nearly complete reports on the United Taxicab Union's two-day ballot on questions involved in the District's taxi controversy showed drivers overwhelmingly in favor of the union's proposed zone rates and also in favor of Gregory Hankin's removal as chairman of the Public Utilities Commission, it was announced early today.

Edward A. Glenn, president of the United Taxicab Drivers, announced the following returns, which he said represented the opinions of 85 percent of those voting:

Favoring the United Taxicab Drivers zone rates, 1508; opposed, 3. Favoring Hankin's removal, 1470; opposed, 14. Favoring continuance of negotiations, 1439; opposed, 43. Favoring taking cabs off the streets in another "vacation" strike if the negotiations fail, 1401; opposed, 75.

At the same time, John H. Royer, jr., president of the Combined Cab Companies, said that about 1000 drivers of the Premier, Arrow, Yellow, Bell, Washington and Checker Cabs were expected by tomorrow to have signed petitions for the companies' compromise zone map. This map, submitted to the PUC Monday, sets the old zone boundaries in the Northeast and the proposed PUC boundaries in the Northwest sections of the District.

The conference to be held this morning between the PUC and representatives of the cabmen seemed last night to be developing into a form of public hearing, although, when announced, the PUC specified that it was to be an informal conference, "preferably small," and would definitely not be a hearing.

Edward A. Glenn, however, said last night that 12 members of the union would be present this morning to thresh out taxi problems with the commission, and Hankin said that he hoped the "conference" would reduce the problems to a minimum.

Immaculate Church Opens Play School

The Immaculate Conception Catholic Church, Eighth and N Streets Northwest, has launched a vacation recreational school to help continue the work of the closed Temple Recreational Center at Tenth and N Streets Northwest.

Meanwhile, Luther Place Memorial Church at Thomas Circle announced plans for providing volunteers to accompany Temple Center devotees on swimming trips to the Jewish Community Center pool on Fridays, from 3 to 4. m. The Rev. John Gensel, summer assistant pastor and a former lifeguard, will head the volunteers.

And Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, Ninth Street and Massachusetts Avenue Northwest, has offered use of its facilities to house the Mothers' Health Club of Temple Center when arangements can be made. The congregation of Ascension Episcopal Church, Twelfth Street and Massachusetts Avenue Northwest, two weeks ago opened its doors to the center.

The Temple Center was forced to close June 15 because of the pending sale of the Temple Baptist property which housed it. The Temple Baptist congregation soon will break ground for a new edifice at Sixteenth and Juniper Streets Northwest. The Mother's Health Club will meet at Temple Church until the building is razed, then continue its meetings at Mount Vernon Church.

The daily schedule of the vacation recreation school at Immaculate Conception Church, as announced by the Rev. Joseph A. Gedra, follows:

Prayer and salute to the flag, 9 to 9:10 a. m.; liturgy, 9:10 to 9:40, optional to Non-Catholics; picture study and story, 9:40 to 10 a. m.; religious study, 10 to 10:20 a. m.; supervised recreation, 10:20 to 10:40 a. m.; singing, 10:40 to 11:05 a. m.; cultural program, 11:05 to 11:35 a. m.; civic and service program, 11:35 to 12 p. m., and recreation, 2 to 4 p. m.

Volunteers assisting will be students from Capuchin College and Trinity College, Catholic University and from Immaculate Conception Academy. Father Gedra will direct the school, and his aide will be Miss N. Nash of the National Catholic Welfare Conference. The Rev. Dr. John K. Cartwright is pastor of the parish.

Soldier Hangs Self With Necktie In Union Station

Pvt. Elmer Joseph Scott, 35, Fort Bragg, N. C., hanged himself yesterday with his necktie in a lavatory in Union Station. Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald, District coroner, issued a certificate of suicide.

The body was found by an attendant, James Diggs, 919 Eastern Avenue Northeast. Police said a noose fashioned from the soldier's necktie was looped over a coat hook.

Scott had been tentatively identified, Detective Sergt. John Baker said, through a draft registration found in the man's pocket. Since he did not have the customary Army identification tags, Army officials held a board of inquiry last night at the morgue to determine definitely his identity.

Scott's home was in New Kensington, Pa.

KIDNEYS MUST REMOVE EXCESS ACIDS

Help 15 Miles of Kidney Tubes Flush Out Poisonous Waste

If you have an excess of acids in your blood, your 15 miles of kidney tubes may be overtaxed. These tiny filters need help now every day and night to help flush out your system of excess acids and poisonous waste.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes show there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Delegate Rosenberg Backs Davison

Maurice D. Rosenberg, Alexandria delegate to the Virginia General Assembly, last night announced his "complete support" of the candidacy of former Alexandria Mayor Emmett C. Davison for election to Congress from the Eighth Virginia District, subject to the Democratic primary on August 4. Davison is seeking the Democratic nomination against Representative Howard W. Smith of Alexandria.

In announcing his support of Davison, Delegate Rosenberg said he had agreed to accept management of the "Davison for Congress" committee, which has been set up to organize Davison clubs throughout the District. The clubs, he said, will be established independent of the candidate's official campaign organization, although "the activities of the two units will be closely coordinated."

Headquarters for "Davison for Congress" clubs will be opened today in Alexandria and Arlington, and additional offices will be opened within the next 10 days. Ralph L. Hepburn will be in charge of the Alexandria office at 920 King Street.

James J. Gorman has been named manager of the Arlington branch at 3008 Wilson Boulevard.

The campaign to be conducted by the clubs will operate under the slogan, "Ballots as well as bullets can win the war," in connection with Davison's "win the war" platform.

EAT NUTRITIONAL FOOD

Every day, eat this way

MILK and MILK PRODUCTS . . . at least a pint for everyone—more for children—or cheese or evaporated or dried milk.

BREAD and CEREAL . . . whole grain products or enriched white bread and flour.

ORANGES, TOMATOES, GRAPEFRUIT . . . or raw cabbage or salad greens—at least one of these.

MEAT, POULTRY or FISH . . . dried beans, peas or nuts occasionally.

GREEN or YELLOW VEGETABLES . . . one big helping or more—some raw, some cooked.

EGGS . . . at least 3 or 4 a week, cooked any way you choose—or in "made" dishes.

OTHER VEGETABLES, FRUIT . . . potatoes, other vegetables or fruits in season.

BUTTER and OTHER SPREADS . . . vitamin-rich fats, pasteurized butter, and leafy greens.

OFFICE OF DEFENSE HEALTH AND WELFARE SERVICES
PAUL V. McNUTT, DIRECTOR, WASHINGTON, D. C.

TWENTY years from now this young man will be ready to take his part in the world for which his father is fighting.

No one can tell just what that day will be like. We believe it will be bright with hope. We know it will be charged with responsibility.

And for this we must build him strong.

Such is the basic idea behind the government's National Nutrition Program. Our country can no longer afford to have any of its children growing up on inadequate diets.

It is also one of the important reasons why the Office of Defense Health and Welfare Services has published its official nutrition chart, so that every mother can know which foods build sound and stalwart bodies.

You see this chart reproduced here. The government has urged every food dealer to display it, every homemaker to pin it to her kitchen wall. But even more, it urges that you give your family these important strength-building foods—some from every group in the chart, every day.

The kids of today will have a great tomorrow. And America will need them strong.

The Public Comes to Aid Of Oriental Filmgoers

Help Select Features Sought by Pearl Buck; Roy Rogers to Greet Youngsters Tomorrow; Items of News and Gossip of the Theater

A WEEK OR SO AGO, when Pearl S. Buck, as president of the East and West Association, appealed to the Washington drama desks for a list of 10 or more pictures deemed suitable to convey an authentic notion of what America is all about to the lands across the Pacific, it may be recalled that we passed the matter along to the public. The response was generous and presumably will be helpful to Mrs. Buck.

ROSALIND RUSSELL

As is rarely the case in such circumstances, there was a remarkable unanimity reflected in the lists submitted by our readers—necessarily too numerous and too lengthy to reproduce here. As typical of all the rest, those submitted by Constance McClure Steel, Rosamond Fowler, W. D. Groesbeck and a correspondent who signed only the initials "M. S. C." have been forwarded to the East and West headquarters, in New York, for whatever aid they may render.

Among the pictures the citizenry seem to feel most anxious for the Orient to see are "Sergeant York," "Blossoms in the Dust," "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," The "Hardy Family" films and "Cheers for Miss Bishop." We coincide largely with their view.

With the Film Daily Year Book, for example, listing 18,618 titles released up to the season of 1941-42, it was a bit of a chore Mrs. Buck invited the boys and girls of the press to shoulder. Selecting them as representative of various classifications, rather than as an infallible 10, or more, to edify and clarify the trans-Pacific mind, we should say that the following ought more or less to fill the bill: "Sergeant York," "Blossoms in the Dust," the better of the American biographical films—the two Thomas A. Edisons, "Life of Alexander Graham Bell" and the like—"Cheers for Miss Bishop," "Our Town," "Four Daughters," "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," a selection of the "Hardy" pictures, "Gone with the Wind" and "Babes on Broadway" as a study in ambitious and perservering youth, with diverting musical trimmings. Such a group would cover a pretty expansive spread of years and get down to a fairly broad sweep of the fundamentals of life in a democracy. And don't chide us for this meager list. We haven't had time to read that complete catalogue of 18,618 features upon which Mrs. Buck and her associates may draw.

It Pays to Advertise, and No Fooling!

Fresh up from a preview screening of "Take a Letter, Darling"—as these words are put one after the other, that is—the guys and gals of the drayma departments are still chortling amusedly to themselves over the gaily diverting inconsequentiality of as smart and entertaining a comedy of the advertising game as has come along since goodness knows when. Rosalind Russell, Fred MacMurray, Robert Benchley, Constance Moore and an amiable young fellow named Macdonald Carey—abundantly and ably supported, of course—make this inverted study of romance in the plushier precincts of big business as delightful and unbelievable a charade as any "escapist" ever would want to see. Emphatically, everyone, "escapist" or not, will want to see it.

Because this glossy Paramount item reverses the usual order of things by making Miss Russell the boss and Mr. MacMurray the secretary, Carter Barron of Loew's, Inc., is carrying the idea over into his plans for a unique guest list for the Thursday opening at the Palace. Instead of Mr. Barron's inviting the usual "Blue Book" of Washington bigwigs, Irene Weber, his secretary, is sending out the invitations to all of their secretaries, from the White House down. If you want to meet all the buffers between the outside world and the great and near-great, the Palace, Thursday night, will be the place.

Field Day for the Hero-Worshipers

Youth will be having its fling at the Earle Theater tomorrow. With the doors opening at 10 a. m., Roy Rogers has dedicated the first performance of the bill to the boys and girls of the Capital and will greet them personally in the lobby, between the hours of 10 and 10:30. All of the juveniles in attendance will receive an autographed picture of Republic's famous cowboy star, who happens to be headlining the Earle's stage bill this week with his proud Palomino, Trigger. Trigger will not be in line at the reception in the lobby, but will do his stuff later on, when his spot on the bill is reached.

At the risk of the limb's breaking plumb off, with us this far out on it, we, nevertheless, will hazard the prediction that the next news break of prime importance to Washington's summertime amusement-seekers will come from the National Theater. Don't ask us what or when, and it is a little too early yet to stop, but it won't do any harm to look and listen.

As a result of their recent "test performance" of Malcolm Ross' "Town Meeting" and later appearance with Melvyn Douglas on the Watergate Russian War Relief program, the Leon Askin Players are now a permanent group and will be on call for any dramatic activities in connection with the war effort. They will cooperate with the Office of Civilian Defense and any other agency in the Capital that may stand in need of their services. Headquarters will continue to be at 2020 Massachusetts, in the Walsh mansion.

Powell Dance Wows Soldiers

Eleanor Powell's code tap dance number in M-G-M's "Ship Ahoy" appealed particularly to the boys at Fort Monmouth, N. J. It would. They're in the Signal Corps.

"You can sure tap that stuff out," was typical of the comments from the soldiers in praise of the star's unique tap code routine.

In sending autographed photos to her Signal Corps admirers, Miss Powell signed her name in—you guessed it—in code.

HUMPHREY BOGART,
usually cast as a desperate violator of the law, occasionally gets a break on the other side, as in the Warners' forthcoming "Across the Pacific," for example. As pictured above, Mr. Bogart, in this subject, nips a Nipponese plot against the Panama Canal, following an exciting journey aboard a Japanese ship from Halifax to Colon. "Bogey" is the boy!

HEDDA HOPPER

'Mission to Moscow'

Hollywood, Calif., July 7.—"My Four Years in Germany," by our then Ambassador James W. Gerard cleaned up a fortune for Warners 25 years ago, so now they're rushing to the screen "Mission to Moscow," the story of our recent Ambasador to Russia, Joseph E. Davies. They hope to have it ready for release October 1.

LILLIAN HELLMAN

The former Ambassador will make several trips here to see that he and his family are done right by, because his wife and daughter will be portrayed in the picture. His own life story is pretty interesting.

His mother was a preacher and poor; and his wife, as you know, was the daughter of Post (of Post toasties) and was the rich Mrs. Hutton before becoming Mrs. Davies.

No matter what you hear, Maj. Willie Wyler is not going to Russia with Lillian Hellman to work up material for a picture that will show them in the favorable light that the English were in "Mrs. Miniver."

When Willie entered the service, he entered the war, and that's where he's going—to war, not to a desk or director's job.

I commend Walter Wanger for having courage enough to say pictures should be made here in Hollwood where the technicians, stars and materials are. After all, Washington doesn't ask Detroit to move their tank or plane factories to Washington.

It makes for confusion and a multiplicity of costs, having pictures made all over God's green acres—except, of course, those made in actual battle.

When Director John Ford was taking scenes of the battle of Midway, he was on a water tower, and when he'd finished, he came down to get into his car, but that had been hit by a shell and blown to smithereens

David Hempstead is certainly putting on a campaign to borrow Olivia de Havilland to play opposite Cary Grant in "Bundles for Freedom." The part fits her like a glove.

You needn't think, because Mark Hellinger and Irene Dunne were huddling, that it was romance. He was talking to her about his new story, "Reminiscences," and Mark was in a serious selling mood.

Do you remember Arthur Kennedy, who played Jimmy Cagney's composer-brother in "City for Conquest?" Well, he's being tested for "Keys of the Kingdom."

With so many shorts being made to whip up patriotism, I wonder why those sketches on the "Cavalcade of America" aren't on the screen. Helen Hayes played Julia Ward Howe, relating the incidents which inspired her to write "The Battle Hymn of the Republic."

It was as poignant as anything I've heard recently, and it would be even more so on the screen, naturally, with Helen in it.

It was pretty unkind of a columnist to call Janet Blair snooty. The poor kid's working her head off and doing a grand job in "My Sister Eileen"—and that comes right from Roz Russell.

Janet is self-conscious about her blonde hair, because she was one girl who swore she wouldn't go Hollywood. She hasn't. That color hair was ordered by her studio. Her career's moving up so fast it keeps her jumping keeping pace with it

POLITICS: Recently Philip Murray's Steelworkers Union announced that John L. Lewis' hatred of President Roosevelt stemmed from the President's refusal to consider him as a Vice Presidential candidate . . . When Lewis still was supporting Roosevelt, he once told the President: "You and I are the most notorious men in America" . . . "You don't mean 'notorious,'" said Roosevelt. "A man like John Dillinger is notorious. You mean famous, don't you?" . . . "Yes," confessed Lewis, "but I am too modest to say that."

JOAN CRAWFORD

DRAMA DEPT.: Last week the 80-year-old author of "The Blue Bird" Maurice Maeterlinck, was introduced to a lady who told him she had read his "Pelleas & Melisande" . . . "As a matter of fact," she complimented, "I read it twice" . . . "Really?" replied Maeterlink. "Just as if it were a dirty book."

SPORTS DEPT.: Bob Allison, sports announcer for WNYC, saw a distinguished looking man who was scheduled to broadcast for China Relief, and who had arrived 20 minutes early. Allison told of his golf game and the man suggested that they play sometime. "I play for 25 cents a hole," said the announcer. "Is that too steep for you?" . . . "It is, for me," the man confessed. "I never play for more than 10 cents a hole. I'm sorry, but we might have had a good game" . . . Then Allison heard the man introduced over the air—J. P. Morgan's partner, Tom Lamont.

LOCAL NEWS: Shooting galleries will be the next business casualties of the war program. When the present supply of ammunition is exhausted, ther'll be no replenishment . . . Zero Mostel, the cafe society comic who has been a professional for less than four months, is being signed by M-G-M . . . Bubbles of Buck and Bubbles, and Rochester, of the Jack Benny show, will appear in the movie adaptation of "Cabin in the Sky" . . . Harry Langdon, the veteran screen comic who introduced Joan Crawford to the movie industry, now is making a comeback, via Columbia Pictures. His leading lady will be Sylvia LeMarr, Joan Crawford's stand in.

WAR DEPT.: The French newspaper, "Pour La Victoire," reports this incident: A Frenchman in Paris went to the Gestapo, and asked to become a naturalized German. "Why?" the Nazi officer asked him. . . . "Because only the Germans have food and pleasure," the Frenchman replied. . . . "But if you become a German, your friends might hate you," he was warned. . . . "I know it," he said. . . . "You might be drafted into the German army," said the official. The Frenchman shrugged. . . . "You might be wounded," the officer continued . . . "I know it," said the Frenchman . . . "You might be sent to the Russian front," said the officer, "and there you might be killed . . . "So what?" said the Frenchman "So there'll be one damn German less."

TRAVEL DEPT.: Before the recent Doolittle expedition, some of his officers were in their quarters, discussing their leader. They stated that he was an unusual general—one who, instead of telling them where their assignments were, led them there . . . Doolittle arrived at that moment, and asked them: "Ready for a good job?" . . . "General," said Lieutenant Davenport, "We'd bomb hell for you" . . . "That's just what we're going to do," said Doolittle. "We're going to Tokyo."

BUSINESS DEPT.: Charles Boyer, Jimmy Cagney, Bob Hope and Groucho Marx started to enter Harvey's Restaurant in Washington, when they were surrounded by a mob of autograph hunters. Sam Rosoff, the subway builder, arrived and tried to get into the restaurant, but couldn't push through the crowd. "How'm I going to get in?" Rosoff yelled. . . . "Dig yourself a hole," Marx suggested, "and tunnel through."

FLAG DEPT.: Mrs. Eugenia Clair Flatto, grand hostess of the American Gold Star Mothers, went to City Hall to present a large cotton flag to Mayor LaGuardia. This was to assure the public, through the resultant publicity, that we can make American flags without using Japanese silk . . . Mrs. Flatto, who is wealthy, wore on her dress a large flag-pin made of rubies, diamonds and sapphires . . . When she presented the cotton flag to LaGuardia, Fiorello pointed to the costly pin and suggested: "If you're trying to convince me—that's a better convincer."

New Amusement Week Offers Wide Diversity In All Mediums

"TAKE A LETTER, DARLING." Turn-about comedy of secretary vs. employer with Rosalind Russell as the high-geared executive who hires Fred MacMurray as her man Friday and then proceeds to pursue him madly until he catches up with her. Women in big business come in for a lampooning in this latest Palace feature. Opens Thursday.

Earle

"GREAT MAN'S LADY" stars Barbara Stanwyck, Joel McCrea and Brian Donlevy. The story concerns a Philadelphia socialite who sets out with her young Lochinvar in buckskin to build a city in the prairie wastes. The entrance of a gambler with more than his share of fair play changes their plans considerably. Featuring songs, comedy and dances, the stage revue will present Dennis Day, for the first time in Washington since he became so popular on the Jack Benny program. Also appearing will be Ames and Arno, the Gaudsmith Brothers and of course the Roxyettes. Opens Friday.

Capitol

"MOONTIDE" brings to the screen in his first American made picture Jean Gabin, former box-office attraction of the French film. Gabin plays a bait fisherman on the West Coast who marries a waitress and then suffers the revenge of a parasitic companion. Ida Lupino plays the wife and the supporting cast includes Thomas Mitchell, Claude Rains and Jerome Cowan. Opens Thursday.

RKO-Keith's

"LADY IN A JAM" brings Irene Dunne to the screen as a screw-ball heiress who pursues her depleted fortune to Arizona is nearch of a fabulous gold mine. Patric Knowles accompanies her as the psychiatrist engaged to cure her irresponsible ways. Ralph Bellamy, Eugene Pallette and Queenie Vassar head the supporting players. Also on the same bill is the latest issue of the "March of Time" entitled "Men in Washington" which gives us a bird's-eye view of the men in the key positions in our national defense setup. Held over.

Columbia

"TORTILLA FLAT" makes its second-run appearance after an extended engagement at the Palace. Spencer Tracy, John Garfield and Hedy Lamarr bring to life the popular characters of John Steinbeck's best seller. The locale is southern California and the story deals with the simple life of the peons who are the descendants of the era of Spanish grandeur in this country. Akim Tamiroff and Frank Morgan play the principal supporting characters. Opens Thursday.

Metropolitan

"MY FAVORITE BLONDE" co-stars Bob Hope and Madeline Carroll in the yarn about a ham vaudevillian who gets mixed up with Nazi spies. A cross-country race that starts in New York and ends in Hollywood highlights the picture. A villainous list of heavies support the stars headed by Gale Sondergaard and George Zucco.

Trans-Lux

"HEALTH FOR DEFENSE" is the short subject that leads the new bill. Gene Tunney informs on vitamins, the correct exercise and socialized medicine for a longer life ratio. "Better Bowling" will introduce experts to demonstrate this sport's finer points. The cartoon for the week is "Cinderella Goes to a Party." H. V. Kaltenborn edits one more news pictorial before going on his six weeks' vacation, and Tex McCrary continues to interpret the news, revealing trends and undercurrents therein.

Pix

"KEEP 'EM LAUGHING" is a revival of the first picture Jack Benny made. The story takes place aboard a giant ocean liner and features musical numbers and skits by some top entertainers. The cast includes Nancy Carrol, long absent from the screen; Mitzi Green, Patsy Kelly, Sid Silvers and Frank Parker. Also on the bill will be the only two-reeler Bob Hope ever made. It's called "Going Spanish," and was made in the days before Hope became a national success. Opens today.

Little

"THE MAN WHO SEEKS THE TRUTH" is the story of a jovial banker who feigns deafness in order to test the loyalty of his sweetheart and his family. Made in France, the picture stars Raimu, who demonstrates the brilliance and versatility that made "The Baker's Wife" so popular in this country. The cast includes such well known French actors as Jacqueline Delubac, Alerme and Gabrielle Dorziat.

Willard Roof

"EAST LYNNE" continues to run merrily along much to the enjoyment of its nightly patrons. A New York cast performs with considerable finesse and talent for comedy this ancient heritage of the gas-lit days. Isham Keith, Ellen Love, Richard Midgely and Janie Middleton head the cast. Beer and pretzels may be had for the asking. Performances are at 8:45 p. m., and the play runs through Saturday. CROSS ROADS—14 pt lt italic . . . .

Cross Roads

"GEORGE WASHINGTON SLEPT HERE," the Moss-George S. Kaufman comedy of the city dweller who buys a farm will be the third attraction of the season. Heading the cast will be Catharine Ryan, Forney Reese and LeRoy Gaintner. "Separate Rooms," marital farce, will continue until the new opening. Opens Monday.

Open Air

"ROXIE HART" with Ginger Rogers heads the double bill at this unique kind of movie house. This is the story of the burlesque performer who got mixed up in a murder and whose efforts to capitalize on the publicity value of the incident led to further tragedy. "Blue, White and Perfect" is the second feature and finds Lloyd Nolan in another of his Michael Shayne, detective, roles. Opens Thursday.

Glen Echo

"COASTER DIPS" is still the most popular thrill ride at this gay Washington playground. It is just one of the 50 different amusements that are absolutely safe. Swimming in the Crystal Swimming Pool with low rates for service men. Dancing may be enjoyed on week nights in the Spanish Garden Ballroom, where the music of Paul Kain and his talented crew have everything the swing addicts want.

Wilson Line

"S. S. MOUNT VERNON" continues to attract Washingtonians on its daily sailings down the Potomac to Mount Vernon. Attractive amusements at Marshall Hall park are added for the moonlight sailings which afford opportunity to dance under the stars.

S. S. POTOMAC leaves its berth at the foot of the Seventh Street wharves for regular moonlight cruises down the Potomac.

Sen. Byrd's Son Gets Army Leave, Visits Sick Mother

Private Richard E. Byrd, 19, son of Senator and Mrs. Harry F. Byrd of Virginia, was granted a leave of absence from Fort Meade, Md., yesterday to visit his mother, who is ill at the Shoreham Hotel.

"Dick" Byrd enlisted in the Army last Wednesday and was sent to the recruit reception center at Fort Meade. Officers there said yesterday he was "a modest, unassuming fellow" and that "scarcely anyone knew he was the son of Senator Byrd."

Young Byrd had just completed his freshman year at Washington and Lee University, Lexington, when he volunteered for the service.

750 Women Deliver Price Rulings Today

Instructions on the setting, and especially on the advertising of price ceilings will be delivered to District merchants today by 720 civilian defense women volunteers carrying out an OPA program designed for the cooperation of storekeepers and housewives to prevent Nation-wide inflation.

Each woman yesterday was given a list of 10 merchants with whom she is to leave the OPA bulletins today. Extremely anxious that this not be regarded as a "snooping" campaign, OPA officials reiterated last night that the women would ask and answer no questions, and that there was no follow-up of the visits contemplated.

Each woman is expected to give about three hours of her time to making the rounds today. The volunteers were obtained through the registry maintained by the Civilian Defense Volunteer Bureau, the Civilian Mobilization Committee acting as the clearing house between the OPA and the Volunteer Bureau.

The pamphlets to be delivered are the first two OPA bulletins on maximum price regulations. The first book explains the general principles of ceiling prices as safeguards against inflation and list the "cost of living" commodities for which the March, 1942, price level must be the maximum.

The second booklet explains how to adjust prices for articles not actually in stock in March—such as bathing suits and, of all things, rubber bathing shoes. It also has illustrations of the acceptable way of advertising price ceilings, which principally is to have the signs conspicuously displayed for each individual item or class of items.

Envoy's Wife Joyful as She Becomes Citizen

Tears of joy over her acquisition of American citizenship were shed in District Court yesterday by German-born Mrs. Erna Teller, 1320 Sixteenth Street Northwest, as she took the oath of naturalization.

She is the wife of Hugh H. Teller, former vice consul in Stuttgart, Germany, who is now attached to the State Department. Married in 1928, the couple left for the United States last year, when all American officials were ordered out of Germany.

Among the 50 others who took the oath before Justice T. Alan Goldsborough was Capt. Richard Victor Ricardo Alfaro, formerly of Panama, who had been commissioned in the Army Medical Corps on the basis of his application for citizenship. Captain Alfaro lives at 4211 Forty-third Street Northwest.

Rejected for naturalization by Justice Goldsborough was Mrs. Ada Frances Brown, 60 years old, who refused to take the oath because, she said, her adherence to religious scruples of the Jehovah's Witnesses forbade it.

Others naturalized included:

Edith Brown Engel, a repatriate; Astrid Irene Young, Netherlander; Rebecca Reines, Russian; Ramon Ramos Espino, Cuban; Lucia Esperanza Tesada-Guzman Willett, Mexican; Lillian Eva Twiggs, British; Rebecca Friedman, British; Marjan Franciszek Borowski, Polish; Johannes Folke Kullgren, Swedish; Miguel Rua Perez, Spanish; Israel Bimblich, Polish; Hamilton Victor Fitzroy Dasent, British; William Joseph Farrington, British; John George Lekapoulos, Greek; Anna Miller, British; Alba McCullough, British; Laura da Conceicao Fernandes de Carvalho, Portuguese; William Theodoor Maria de Groot, Dutch; Jessie Fenslar, British; Michael Constantinou, British; John Karnazis, Greek.

August Gustav Hauser, Swiss; Agnes Schneider, British; Albert Abraham, Waldman, Lithuanian; Bridget Rosello, British; Agnes Cadella Miller, British; Victor Ricardo Alfaro, Panamanian; Esther Guttman, Lithuanian; Egil Brisadier, Latvian; Robert Albert Black, British, Arthur Frankalis, Lithuanian; Trinco Esperancilla, Filipino; Paulo Quirante, Filipino; Frank Ernest Harver, British; Isaac Samuel Yarsel, Turkish; John Eustace Glotzis, Greek; Efraim Rosenfeld, Russian, and Gustav Karl Robien, Josef Roehrig, Ludwig Schroff, Hugo Bauer and Bertha Muller, Germans.

the hard depression years

The 1930's were tough years in the steel business. Stockholders were getting no dividends. Some years showed huge net losses. Many people said: "The country is over-built. It has more steel plants than it can use."

Right in that lean period United States Steel decided to invest $600,000,000 in putting its plants into tip-top condition, and adding some big ultra-modern plants.

There was no talk of war then. This plant investment was made simply on faith in the future of the country. The United States always had come back; it would again.

How fortunate for America at war that this $600,000,000 was invested.

War production is months ahead of where it would be otherwise.

United States Steel's production this year will surpass the peak year of 1929 by more than six million tons.

United States Steel's production of ship plates is greater today than the ship plate capacity of the entire steel industry in 1939.

The manufacturing plants of the United States Steel Corporation alone produce more steel than Germany. But we are still not satisfied. We are still expanding war production.

President Lopez

Though there have been many distinguished visitors to Washington in the last few months, there will be a special welcome for President-Elect Lopez of Colombia. He has come at the invitation of President Roosevelt. He and our President already know and appreciate each other. As President-Elect in 1934, Dr. Lopez came to Washington, and the Capital took a measure of him then as a man of distinction and a statesman of vision which has been amply justified by his record.

Like many other Latin-American statesmen, Dr. Lopez is a banker and an economist and is devoted to the economic development of his country. But he is not anything like as conservative as his professional cloth might indicate. To the full he shares the social awareness and public spirit of many of his countrymen. Actually he dislikes authoritarianism so much that he is seeking to reduce his own powers as President. Colombia has a strong democratic tradition, with a respect for the rights of the individual as strong as that of any country in this continent. Dr. Lopez's policy, indeed, has a familiar Rooseveltian touch in its application to agriculture and labor.

It is inevitable, therefore, that Dr. Lopez is an enemy of everything the Nazi system stands for. On the outbreak of our war the republic broke off relations with Berlin. At the moment the country—except for a conservative element—is stirred to indignation by the Nazi sinking of the defenseless schooner Resolute in which six Colombians, including a woman and child, were killed by machine-gun fire. It was, as Secretary Hull put it, "a particularly revolting and horrifying" affair. Maybe the incident may result in a declaration of war. In that event Colombia would be heartily welcomed in the Freedom Front. And the proximity of Colombia to the Panama Canal and the use of waters adjacent to the republic by enemy submarines are reasons for thinking that Colombia would make a valuable ally.

Second Thoughts

It is difficult not to look a gift horse in the mouth in appraising Gandhi's latest utterance. "India," says Gandhi, "is as much interested as her Allies in warding off attack." For that reason the Mahatma has affirmed his "reconciliation" to the presence of British and Allied troops in India for the duration of the war. To the extent that Gandhi's present attitude contributes to the defense of India, now menaced by the Japanese aggressors, it constitutes a development that will be welcomed by the United Nations.

Just the same, the question must be asked whether Gandhi's change of mind arises from a change of heart or is the result of pressures within India which the Nationalist leader found it unwise and inexpedient to resist. For if it is the first, there is the possibility that Gandhi will change his mind again. But if Gandhi, an astute politician as well as a holy man, was prompted by a decided public opinion in India, the Allies can breathe a sigh of relief. Because of developments in Egypt and in Russia, the maintenance of India as a bastion against the Axis is of the utmost importance.

For some months prior to the issuance of his latest pronouncement on the subject, Gandhi had been making increasingly strong demands for the withdrawal of Allied forces from India. His argument was that if this were done, the menace from Japan would subside. Indeed, he went further and on June 14 declared in his weekly paper, the Harijan, that he saw "no difference between the Fascist or Nazi powers and the Allies." All are exploiters, he explained, "all resort to ruthlessness to the extent required to compass their end."

This manifestation of acute moral and mental astigmatism by the Mahatma shocked public opinion in this country and other Allied lands. There are indications that it shocked Indian opinion no less. The Moslem press, for instance, began to denounce Gandhi in unmeasured terms, one of the papers going so far as to raise the question whether he was a Fifth Columnist. Without specifically replying either in the affirmative or negative, it declared that "all his activities savor of the Fifth Column technique." "For now quite a long time," said the pro-Moslem League organ, Wahadat, "this marvelous mahatma has been preaching mischief and anarchy in India."

It would appear that by taking an extreme anti-British, anti-Allied line, Gandhi was not uniting the Indian people, but only widening the sharp cleavages that exist in that subcontinent. He has now seen the light—at least for the time being. He is not yet prepared to advocate full Indian support of the war effort, though it is apparent that if the Allies go down, India's hopes of independence, now very real, will go down the drain. But at least he is now reconciled to the presence in India of Allied forces. That is something.

Everlasting Egypt

There are many who think that the decisive battle of the war is the one now raging at the desert approaches to the delta of the Nile and the ancient City of Alexandria. That is, the battle may be decisive so far as Hitler and his dream of world conquest is concerned. But, as for Egypt herself, the battle can be no more than an episode. In that reflection should be at least some comfort for those among us who fear the permanent extinction of civilization on this earth.

The multi-millennial history of Egypt offers the most notable illustration of how short-lived are conquests and empires founded on conquest in contrast to the things that make for civilization. Again and again the storied soil of Egypt has felt the heel of invaders and conquerors—the Hyksos, the Libyans, the Hittites, the mysterious "Peoples of the Sea" (who may or may not have been the people who conquered Troy), the armies of Cambyses and Alexander, the legions of Octavian, the fanatic warriors of Omar, King Baldwin and his Frankish Crusaders, Saladin and his Turks, St. Louis and his French knights, Napoleon and his whiskered grenadiers. Most of these names are by now so much historic mold and rust. But Egypt, the Nile and the timeless fellahin remain what they were in the days of the earliest Pharaohs. About all that is left of the greatest of Egypt's conquerors is the name of the city which another conqueror is now striving to enter.

Every invader from the earliest Hyksos to the latest Nazi must have felt a certain sense of futility and frustration in the clear and timeless atmosphere of Egypt. One recalls Napoleon's bombastic reminder to his troops of the 40 centuries of history that were looking down upon them. But he must have realized in the back of his mind that in such a history he himself would be an item of little more consequence than a flyspeck.

Condorcet, Hegel, Darwin, Marx, Bergson and others have taught us to think of the history of human culture as necessarily dynamic and evolutionary. But in one sense it could be said that there is nothing else in the world so static as human culture. At any rate, the history of Egypt and the rest of the fertile crescent affords, like the history of China, all the proof one needs that the human impulse to civilization will survive any and every force that can be brought against it.

Blocs In Wartime

That the President should have to try to persuade our farm politicians that in wartime the general interest comes first is more than a sorry indictment of legislative selfishness in a time of national peril. It calls attention to the great curse of our political system, namely, the domination of our legislation by special interests. This situation has certainly retarded our economic development. For, as Prof. Sumner H. Slichter points out in his Winthrop Ames lecture, at Radcliffe College, the effect of the pulling and hauling for subsidies and favors on the part of organized groups has constantly held back a policy of expansion.

Professor Slichter was speaking on the world of tomorrow. Like Thurman Arnold, he foresees a period of unparalleled prosperity, but only if our favorite form of politics will allow it. Prosperity can come only from expansion: the new method, the new product, the new industry. It can find a market and increase our wealth only by displacing the old. But the pressure groups which have such a grip on our politics and through our politics on our economy are the guardians of the existing way of doing things, and are always bent on subsidizing the old against the new. Thus the new has difficulty in coming into being, since, as Professor Slichter puts it, "those of us who have vested interests in the old are always more numerous and have more votes than the innovators and experimenters."

That is going to be the problem of tomorrow. At present we are faced with a situation in which the farm politicians, aside from trying to disrupt the war program, are seeking more out of what a War Labor Board panel calls the "consumer's pie" when that pie is in process of diminution. But they have an argument on their side which will be very difficult for the President to answer. Another special interest has been nurtured at the White House at the expense of the common good, namely, the labor bloc. At one time Congress appeared disposed to put this special interest to rout in the national interest. But the legislators were estopped by the Administration. That is one reason that, when our very survival requires the translation of our country's moral unity into national action, other special interests flourish in Congress. If the President hopes to see the common interest paramount in Congress, he must himself show the example. He may have an opportunity of doing so in the Little Steel case.

Daniel Willard

If there were more employers like Daniel Willard, who was president of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad for 30 years, there would be less of the class consciousness which of late years has marked our labor movement. He would have been the first to welcome the labor-management committees which are now spreading over our war industry. For the interest he showed in the lot of labor was never failing. That was recognized in January, 1931, when a group of 1600, mainly leaders of various railroad labor organizations, gave a dinner in his honor at Baltimore. At that time William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, said of Mr. Willard, "He is a tremendous figure in the history of employers and workers." To that encomium might have been added praise for the unstinting service he gave to the public in many undertakings, notably in World War I.

Mr. Willard, who is dead at the age of 81, was thus what might be termed an enlightened liberal. As such, and because he expressed his liberalism in a role of eminent responsibility, he will be remembered as a great American. His career partook, also, of the American tradition. He came up the hard way, but a way that has not been improved upon as a molder of character. Born on a Vermont farm, he started railroading as a track laborer on the Central Vermont Railroad. Yet, though brought up in a school of hard knocks, he was a fine gentleman, with a charity which seemed to spread like a benediction in any company he was in. Many people will share the mourning in which the Baltimore & Ohio has been plunged by the loss of Mr. Willard.

Reverse Lend-Lease

The debate which has just opened in the British Parliament on the effectiveness or otherwise of British propaganda will doubtless turn chiefly on activities in America. A large amount of material flows into every newspaper office in America on what wartime Britain is doing at home and on the battlefield. It comes from a press service maintained in Washington and several other cities in the United States. Doubtless the cost is impressive, and the personnel which is maintained to collect and write the releases must be quite large.

The wonder is that some of the most important news about British activities seems to be held back. Of interest to American readers, surely, would be the news of the reverse lend-lease aid which has come to the United States. Among the devices lend-leased by the British, for instance, is the famed radio-locator, which has been used so effectively in Britain against the German night bomber. James B. Reston, in his vigorous "Prelude to Victory," mentions other assistance. He asks: "How many people in this country know today, for example, that just as we rushed guns to Britain at the time of the collapse of France, the British rushed antiaircraft guns to Panama to help in the defense of the canal right after the disaster at Pearl Harbor? How many know that when the Germans were sinking our ships right and left off the East Coast we sent an S O S to the British for help in dealing with the U-boats, and got it right away? How many know that British fighter planes have been operating out of Cuba in an attempt to guard our shipping lanes?"

The answer is very few. But obviously the fault cannot lie with the British press service. For these are details which would enormously enhance British prestige, especially now that a cloud has come over that prestige as a result of events in the Middle East. The reason must be a restraint imposed by policy. If that is the case, steps should be taken without delay to drop the bars. Otherwise we shall be party to the creation of the dangerous illusion—an illusion that Mr. Dean Acheson sought on Monday to shatter at Charlottesville—that lend-lease aid is all one way, and that is outward.

SEAS

Your eyes are seas,
So deep, so dark,
So beautiful I am undone,
Whether they mirror moon and dusk
Or flashing flame of sun.

Your eyes are seas,
And in their depths
I find the calm anemone
And coral wild and wilder weed
And shadowed mystery.

Your eyes are seas,
And when I walk
Before the waters up and down,
My heart is trembling in the wind
Lest in those deeps I drown.

Dependence Declaration

As I write the Fourth of July is being celebrated very quietly. I do not hear the sound of exploding firecrackers or see the path of the rocket as it travels skyward. But, undoubtedly, there are fireworks at this very moment in the far off corners of the world, where men from all over the globe are fighting for an ideal.

During these crucial hours, when these countless martyrs are giving their lives in order that others might live in peace and contentment, it is fit and proper that every individual who is interested in justice and who has the courage at all times to apply the principles of real democracy, about which we have balked so much and for which we Americans are now fighting, pause and, with faces lifted to God, swear that, whatever may come these fighting men will not have died in vain.

If we continue in our failure to see to it that all human beings—from the pink skinned, blond-haired men and women from the cold countries to dark-skinned and crinkly haired men and women from the hot countries—have the same rights and privileges, then we shall be recreant to our trust, as we have been and now are, and the democracy we shall win, if any, will be of the tinkling cymbal and sounding brass sort.

There must be no compromise where justice is concerned. True democracy can be attained only if directed and guided by a burning consciousness and high appreciation of the rights of all mankind—including our present enemies against whom we are now fighting.

With prejudice and prescription now rearing their ugly heads in America and elsewhere, we the champions of democracy are, to say the least, in a very awkward position. Let us in America, here and now, make a new declaration, not a second Declaration of Independence, for true cooperation of all the peoples of the earth cannot be born of independence, but the first declaration of dependence upon each other of all the peoples and countries and nations of the world.

Loss Of Sevastopol

The sympathy of all friends of Russia will be with their heroic people in the loss of Sevastopol. The following passage from "War and Peace" by Leo Tolstoy, who was present at and described the siege of Sevastopol in 1854, has a special interest today:

"The whole course of the invasion of 1812, from the battle of Borodino till the last Frenchman had recrossed the frontier, proves to a demonstration that, in the first place a victory does not necessarily lead to conquest—is not even a sure promise of it; and, in the second place, that the power which decides the fate of nations is not inherent in conquerors, armies and battles, but has a quite different source."

Shooting Prisoners

Certain members of the American Legion have expressed the desire to "shoot" captured enemy aliens.

Such a philosophy may protect America, but it will not build the better world for which we are striving.

No Statesmen

Since the recent appointment of Thomas F. Meaney to the Federal bench I have watched with great interest the progress of this case through the Senate committee hearings and the vote in the Senate which confirmed this nomination.

I have also noted with interst the recent bitter protests of the people's elected representatives against the wave of ridicule and disrespect that has swept over them in the past few weeks.

Evidently our Congressmen are blind to the fact that it is just such incidents as the former that bring on such reactions as this one. It is evidently too much to hope that Congressmen can ever forget politics to the extent of being statesmen, even for one fleeting instant. It is truly pathetic to see men of intelligence, personal integrity, and personal courage, degrade themselves to a point where they are nothing but toadying, spineless sychophants, trying desperately and frantically to curry favor with first one, then another, individual or group. They sell their political honor with never a qualm, yet they protest indignantly against the people's cry of "dishonor" and "shame."

It is perfectly true that such a situation is dangerous, as one of our legislators protested, but the danger lies in the attitude of Congress, not that of the people.

Overtime Inequity

I see by Jerry Klutz's "Federal Diary" column that the unfair discrimination against many low-paid Federal workers is to be continued. Thus our fellow-employes, skilled and professional, in some agencies, and even in field establishments within some of the same agencies will continue to be paid a minimum of 30 per cent more for exactly the same work as are those less favored who are unfortunate enough to be caught in this bloated crucible of war effort called Washington.

It is axiomatic that living costs are higher here than in any other region in the United States. Fair treatment of Federal employes would, therefore indicate a wage differential exactly opposite to that now existing. Anyone living here, male or female, single or with a family to support, and attempting to maintain a respectable standard of living will testify to that.

The average Federal worker is patriotic in spite of his surface cynicism, and wants to do his utmost to help his country. In the face of staggering living costs and without pay for the overtime he works he gladly contributes his tithe for the purchase of War Bonds, while like workers in industry and in Government employ outside the Capital give only a fraction of their overtime pay. The little man in the Government service is voiceless, he is afraid to "stick his neck out," he has few champions, and those he has cannot agree, which results in such deplorable dog-in-the-manger tactics as those recently used by the postal employe group which appears to be to blame for the failure of Congress to end the injustice of paying overtime to some and not to all.

Rommel And Egypt

In The Post of July 3 there appears an Associated Press article headed "Rommel's in Napoleon's footsteps." This article recounts briefly the story of the French commander's expedition to Egypt in 1798. It concludes with these words: "Of Napoleon's great adventure of 144 years ago, few reminders remain save Napoleon's own exclamation, which Nazi marshals well might ponder:

"Soldiers, from these pyramids 40 centuries look down upon you!"

Comforting as it may be at this critical moment to think of the French failure to hold Egypt and of the eventual collapse of the Napoleonic Empire, we would do well to ponder the fact that the Germans have long been among the most assiduous students of Napoleon's career. Two of the best biographies of Napoleon were written by Germans—Fournier and Kircheisen. More than 40 years ago another German, Roloff, published the standard work on Napoleon's colonial policy. It seems entirely likely, therefore, that Rommel and his aides are thoroughly familiar with the vicissitudes of the famous French expedition to the land of the pyramids. It seems just as likely that they are not dismayed by its failure. Hope springs eternal in the human breast.

The German nation under Hitler is on the loose. So was the French nation under Napoleon. The former hungers for colonies. So did the latter. In Napoleon's time Egypt became an objective because the French hoped to substitute it for the ruined sugar islands in the Caribbean. They also hoped to use Egypt as a stepping stone to India. In our day the Germans lacking oversea possessions probably want to make it a German colony and they certainly desire to use it as a stepping stone to the oil fields of Iraq.

This Rommel may, of course, be a perfect ignoramus in historical matters. Unlike Napoleon, who loved to inflame his imagination with thoughts of Alexander the Great, the Nazi commander may know nothing of either his Greek or his French prototype. We cannot afford to assume such ignorance. The Library of Congress groans with books on Napoleon. Let us read these books or reread them in the light of present events in order to revise schoolboy impressions. Above all, we should put aside the complacent belief that time, blessed time, will fix everything up to suit us. Prussia, thoroughly whipped in 1806, had to wait until 1870 to obtain full revenge on France. If Rommel takes Egypt, it may take far longer than three years to chase him out. History did not repeat itself last winter.

Draft Baby Racket

One of the most equitable classifications of 3A men would be to list them according to the date of their marriage and the birth of their children. Those with working wives as well as those without children would be subject to the draft immediately. This method would reach the men hiding behind the skirts of draft brides and babies.

There are too many couples who have been married for several years, who have been giving all their love and affection to pet dogs, suddenly having draft babies, while some others were so self-centered that they were blind to the needs of the country except whenever an opportunity arose such as this war to clean up a lot of money. The country's security in time of war comes first and personal gain second. Those registered in 1940 and 1941 should be drafted before digging into the list of 1942 or taking boys of 18 and 19.

The Post Impressionist

Pillar To Post

For the first time since my arrival in Washington a little more than a month ago I find myself with sufficient time to record my pillar-to-post impressions. For I have been actually driven from pillar to post, figuratively if not literally.

Upon arrival, I followed in the footsteps of others and made a beeline to the Y. W. C. A., but the bee must have been quite intoxicated with sweets pilfered from a thousand late spring flowers if the route followed by my taxi was any criterion. We must have traversed the entire gamut of frigid, temperate and torrid, judging by the number of zones for which I was charged. On the way the driver held forth volubly on the vicious practices of Government office girls. These Lorelei, if his contentions were unbiased and his observations unprejudiced, have entered into a conspiracy to keep taxi men from earning an honest living. Before our arrival at the Strong residence he had convinced me that only the direst fate awaited a girl who tipped a District cab driver less than 15 cents. It also seems there is a Public Utilities Commission.

The Strong residence offers many advantages, but unfortunately permanence is not among them. Brief life is there our portion. With thousands of girls coming to the city without the least idea of where to stay, and hotels asking only $4 a night to solve the problem, it is essential that the Y. W. C. A. offer its hospitality for a limited time only to each scared and starry-eyed waif who appears. Personally I was among the scared group and was so far from starry-eyed that I didn't received a single bid to dance at the U. S. O. party I went to on the evening of my arrival

Ensconced at the "Y," the very first task is to find a room elsewhere. A few casual calls at houses displaying signs are sufficient to convince one that the signs are a permanent part of the dwelling and no indication of vacancies. The next step is to read the ads. I can think of nothing so disheartening to a girl as her first perusal of the "Rooms for Rent" columns in a local newspaper. The birds of the air have nests. The foxes have holes. But the daughter of man has nowhere to lay her head.

A large number of the advertisers specify gentlemen. Others are willing to ignore gentility, but still insist on masculinity. Separating the wheat from the tares, only a dozen ads remain.

Analysis of the few possibilities reveals a decided prejudice against smoking, cooking and washing. High prices and lack of proximity to the business section eliminate a few more. By this time the shelter-seeker has learned to read the cryptic symbols in which such ads are phrased and picks on a "lrg. rm., shr., unl. ph., pvt. fam., exp. bus, all conv." Naturally, by the time you arrive this gem is gone. There will be a vacancy at Thanksgiving if you care to leave your name. . . .

Shunning details, might I just say that in the first home in which I made my abode the landlady's son was a juvenile flutist who was learning to play "America." When he enlarged his repertoire with "Don't Sit Under the Apple Tree," I left. In the second home I came back early one evening (I work at night) and found my two roommates just leaving for dates. One was wearing my best party gown. The other was contented with my second-best dress. I am now in my third room, but, as I have said before, I've been here a little more than a month. The present quarters are not as spacious as the British Embassy, and sometimes at 5 a. m. I hear the noisy click of high heels on the stairway, but a girl has to live somewhere.

When I was little I loved to crawl under the tables and desk, even under the grand piano, and make them into houses and caves and dwellings with a roof on top of my head. I did not realize it then, but I was preparing for the cubicle which is now mine. It's expensive, it's hot, and confidentially, it does something that rhymes with sphynx.

Ironing presents a problem. By slipping into the Strong residence and looking as much "at home" as circumstances allow, it is possible to iron a blouse or two. The last time I tried it the second floor was in use. There was no iron on the third but the fourth proved ideal. It was, however, a bit dismaying when the boy friend asked if I could manage to press his ties.

Yes, there is a boy friend, but he's not a chance-met oaf, nor one of the innumerable caravan which has intruded on my privacy in restaurants, parks, streetcars or churches. War is war and a uniform undoubtedly sets off male charms, but I am still old-fashioned enough to consider a formal introduction a necessary preliminary to any more intimate association. (I had to go out with Ivan four times before we managed to get ourselves properly introduced.)

I can go out now without getting lost and I no longer forget to put my streetcar pass into my purse when I change bags. I know that a Baltimore cocktail is a bromo seltzer, and I can find Thirteen-and-a-Half Street. I am even getting over the tendency every new arrival has to explain to all and sundry who she is and why she came here.

I have even solved the evening gown problem. The boy friend has a passion for going to affairs that require formal dress. On these occasions I just put my gown and accessories into a suitcase, go to one of my former boarding houses, her myself in the bathroom, and change. So far I've never encountered my erstwhile landlady.

Ivan took me to the Soviet Embassy and I looked in vain for the hammer and sickle, but I'm sure the Reds will hammer at the Nazis till they're sickle fighting. That's a feeble pun, but it is his and if you use it, it will put me in solid with him.

One mystery remains unsolved. Every 15 minutes of the day and every hour of the night I hear the screaming sirens of fire engines. Each day I am amazed anew to see that the city still is standing. Why it has not long since been razed to the ground I do not know. Surely they can't all be false alarms. Or can they?

Inflation At Pause

By Mark Sullivan

Wages, Farm Prices Need Checking

THE HOME-FRONT battle against inflation, begun by President Roosevelt on April 28, is at a stage somewhat like the battle in North Africa. Inflation has made some gains, but is now at pause. The next phase depends on two pending situations at Washington, both critical, and the two forming a kind of stalemate. One situation has to do with wages, the other with crop prices.

SULLIVAN

For a key to the stalemate of crop prices and wages, start with the price of hogs. They sold this week (in Midwest markets) at the highest price in 16 years. If they go higher, cost of pork to the housewife will go higher—neither Price Administrator Henderson nor anyone else can prevent it. With cost of pork would go cost of beef, all sorts of meat. The cost of living would go up. And, if cost of living goes up, there will be more and more demands for higher wages in industry. Higher wages would lead to higher costs of goods—the spiral toward inflation would be under way.

All this, the Administration wishes to prevent—they are pledged to. In order to prevent it, they want to keep hogs from going higher. In order to do that, they want to keep down the price of the food which hogs eat.

THE ADMINISTRATION has on hand great quantities of wheat, which they bought up in past years, and some of which has deteriorated. This wheat the Agriculture Department wants to sell, as feed for hogs and cattle. They wish to sell it at about 83 cents a bushel. To this, the congressional farm group in the House objects. They wish to prevent the Administration from selling any of its wheat at less than so-called "parity price," about $1.34 a bushel.

This is the cause of a kind of deadlock between Congress and the Administration, and a minor deadlock between House and Senate. It is the cause of failure to pass the Agriculture Department appropriation bill, which ought to have been passed before July 1.

Turn now to the wage end of the stalemate. Leaders of labor in four steel companies have demanded an increase of a dollar a day. The demand is before the War Labor Board. If the board grants the raise, that will be a precedent for deciding several other demands before the board. It will also be a stimulant for yet other demands in many lines of industry. It would, in the judgment and fears of many, start an upward wage movement that might become runaway.

THE DECISION about wages is wholly in the hands of the Administration—in the wage field Congress has no control. On occasions last winter when Congress set out to pass legislation dealing with wages in wartime, and with other matters affecting labor, President Roosevelt asked Congress to lay off. He wished labor matters to remain in the hands of himself and his appointees. To this wish Congress deferred. The pending decision about an increase in wages in the steel industry is in the hands of a twelve-man board, the War Labor Board, appointed by the President and responsible to him. Decision about the increase of wages is wholly an Administration matter.

What the Administration does about wages is watched by the farm group in Congress, the leaders of farm organizations, and farmers generally. If the wage raise is granted, farmers would feel they ought to stand pat in their position about "parity price" for wheat and other crops. On the other hand, if the wage increase is not granted, the farm group would feel that wages are about to be stabilized. In that event, they would probably be willing to let the Administration sell its wheat at a price below parity. With rises in wages stopped and stabilized, the farm group might feel that the battle against inflation could be won, and might be willing to do their part.

The situation is crowded with intricacies, including attempts to do the impossible. The War Labor Board seems willing to stabilize wages, but at a higher average level than at present. At the same time the board wishes to increase what it calls "substandard" wages. Once a so-called substandard wage is increased, the average of all wages thereby goes up. Thereupon some other wages become substandard.

Also, the War Labor Board tries to balance hourly rates of wages in one industry, against total weekly wages in another industry. In some of the steel industry, workers get a high rate per hour, and work only the statutory 40 hours per week. In other industries men work the statutory 40 hours, and then work extra hours at 1½ times the hourly rate. To raise hourly rates in one industry to parity with total weekly wages in another industry, would be an upward spiral.

Until rise in wages is checked, and rise in farm crops is checked, nothing that Price Administrator Henderson can do in his field can be effective. This much has been learned, in a tedious lesson of education by experience. When price control of goods generally was suggested, a year ago, most of the Administration held that wages and crop prices should be an exception. This attempted immunity was a deference to political consideration, rather than to economic law. After several awkward months, economic law is coming to be recognized.

Rep. Weiss To Seek Probe Of Army War Show, Inc.

By the Associated Press

Pittsburgh, July 7.—Representative Samuel A. Weiss (Democrat), Pennsylvania, said today he intended sponsoring a congressional resolution calling for an investigation of Army War Show, Inc., and its contracts "throughout the country."

Weiss, in a statement, criticized the sale of Japanese-made canes at the Army War Show here Sunday night, which caused protests among the 65,000 spectators and resulted in the fining of 11 civilian hawkers yesterday. Police were ordered to burn the canes, which were the staffs of pennants inscribed "Army War Show."

The Congressman said:

"We buy bonds and stamps in order to buy planes, tanks and shells to lick the enemy. At the same time we buy canes and souvenirs made in Japan to help the enemy.

"This does not make sense and an investigation will at least prevent a recurrence.

"I also read of the kind of contracts awarded by the Army leaders in control of Army War Show, Inc., and I was amazed to learn that the concessionaires kept 70 per cent of the proceeds of souvenir sales and in addition received a 20 per cent rake-off on programs donated by the Bell Telephone Co. and sold by Boy Scouts without pay.

"This is outrageous, especially when advertisements clearly state that 'every cent is turned over to Army relief.'"

Three U. S. Judges Clear Colonel

St. Louis, July 7 (AP).—Three Federal judges have ruled that fraud allegations against an Army officer and a Government optioning agent in the acquisition of the site of the Weldon Spring (Mo.) TNT plant are "utterly without foundation or substance."

The charges were made by United States District Attorney Harry C. Blanton against Col. Rigby D. Valliant and R. Newton McDowell, Kansas City. He alleged they had "conspired" to include McDowell's 5 per cent commission and a 1½ per cent title charge in the purchase prices of the land.

As agent for the War Department McDowell obtained options on 268 parcels for the ordnance plant. After $1,073,802 was paid by the Government on 121 tracts, Blanton filed suit to set aside the remaining options and to acquire the land by condemnation.

Ruling in separate cases, Judges Charles B. Davis and George H. Moore yesterday upheld the validity of the option contracts, but Judge John Caskie Collet declared that value of the property should be fixed by condemnation commissioners.

Atlantic Charter

By Ernest Lindley

Home Rule for P. R.

THE PROPOSAL that the Puerto Ricans be permitted to elect their own Governor has been favored for some time by the present Governor, Rexford G. Tugwell, and by a number of other American officials having responsibility for our Caribbean policy. The development of self-government is an American policy of long standing, perhaps best exemplified in the Philippines. And if President Roosevelt's will prevails, it will become a world-wide peace aim of the United Nations. Indeed, he has interpreted the Atlantic Charter as applying throughout the world—although it is not clear that this interpretation has been fully accepted by Great Britain and the Soviet Union.

Politics in Puerto Rico, which elects its own Legislature, is lively, not to say violent. The island is troubled by overpopulation and a poor economic base, which have combined to yield widespread, abject poverty. One of Governor Tugwell's aims has been to put into effect an old law limiting the size of land holdings. This strikes at the big sugar plantation owners, many of whom are absentees, and the vested interests surrounding them. Tugwell has made special studies of the Puerto Rican problems as Undersecretary of Agriculture and Resettlement Administrator, and again as chairman of a special commission appointed by the President. He knew when he went there as Governor that he would have plenty of trouble. But the difficulties probably have exceeded his anticipation. For the shipping shortage has put a severe strain on Puerto Rico's economy and public finances. Rum, an important source of revenue, together with sugar, is not moving out, and imports have been cut because of lack of shipping space.

APPARENTLY Tugwell believes that this is a propitious time politically to promise another step toward Puerto Rican home rule. But whether or not this would ease his political difficulties, it would reinforce a basic American policy, for which the President is trying to obtain genuine acceptance by the colonial powers among the United Nations.

Undersecretary Welles has proclaimed in so many words that the old colonial system has gone forever. Certainly it is no part of the war aims of the United States to try to revive it. The President has attempted thus far with success, to prevent any agreements contemplating territorial aggrandizement. In deference to the American view, the British did not accede to the Russian desire for recognition of their special geographical interest in the Baltic states. The Russians withdrew the claim. Some observers interpreted this as an abandonment of the claim. Actually, that was not the case, although it may well be that, if a satisfactory scheme of general security grows out of the war, the Russians will let the matter drop.

BUT there has been no general renunciation of territories acquired prior to the present war. The future of the colonies lost by the British and the Dutch in the Far East, when the Japanese have been driven out, has not been clarified. Will they revert to their original owners? In most cases, some degree of supervision will be necessary, for economic as well as political and military reasons. Many of the colonial peoples are not yet ready for self-government. Some sort of trusteeship will be necessary, and in certain instances this might well be exercised by a group of nations, or the United Nations as a whole, rather than by the former owners or rulers. Such a solution probably might not be acceptable to the Tory die-hards who still think in terms of the British Empire. But it probably would be welcomed by the British who are thinking in terms of either a continuing partnership with the United States and Russia, or of a more general scheme of security against war.

This country does not need to prove its adherence to the principle of self-government. The record, especially in recent years, speaks for itself. But even within the relatively small American empire, the growth of home rule is not yet complete. The goal may be statehood, or dominion status, or even complete independence. The promise of another step forward in Puerto Rico would be another proof of our sincerity and might set a timely example for some of our partners in the war.

Life Insurance Firms Buy 180% More Bonds

New York, July 7 (AP).—Life insurance companies bought $1,231,000,000 of United States Government securities in the first half of 1942, an increase of nearly 180 per cent over similar purchases in the first half of 1941, the Institute of Life Insurance reported today in its midyear review.

Life insurance in force at midyear was reported by the institute at 128 billion dollars, a record high and averaging about $4000 per family, compared with $1202 per family at the time of World War I.

Argentine Enigma

By Virginia Prewett

Neutrality Versus Economic Necessity

EVER SINCE the Rio conference heavily underlined the decision of Argentina's Acting President Castillo to keep that country officially "neutral" in the world conflict, developments there have been of grave concern to the republics of the New World that are trying to build a common defense against the Axis threat. Observers agree that sooner or later Castillo and his advisers will have to take a clear stand with or against them. How this will come about and how soon remains a serious question mark.

In the meanwhile, the paradox of Argentina's course is daily growing more acute. To begin with, the role she is playing internationally has been mapped out for her by a group who though very powerful are a small minority. They are in control almost by accident. Castillo was the conservatives' choice for running-mate for the liberal Ortiz when these two parties formed a loose coalition for the 1938 presidential campaign. He was scarcely known on the national scene till Ortiz's near-blindness gave him executive powers and an isolationist group emerged into prominence around him.

DURING the two years that he has acted as president, the conservative-liberal coalition has shaken apart. Castillo and his supporters have key executive offices and dominate the Senate. The liberals control the Lower House. At times there has been a complete deadlock between the two legislative bodies. The Chamber of Deputies at one time went on strike against the obstructionist tactics of the senior branch.

Argentina's international role during this period has been confusing to follow. She is noted on the hemisphere scene for taking an independent, often a dissenting, stand at inter-American conferences. Yet at Havana, with war threatening, she seemed to adopt a more cooperative attitude. When the trade agreement with this country was announced, public officials and the American press called Argentine-American relations the brightest in years. But when the Argentine press and public vigorously condemned the Japanese attack on the United States, official action was taken to restrain them. The Rio conference threw Argentina back into her old role of chronic dissenter in inter-American councils.

Since Rio the other republics of the New World, in particular the three key nations Brazil, Peru and Mexico, have gone forward with the work of building a common hemisphere security in cooperation with us. Argentina's position has remained obscure. Her relations with the Axis are still intact. Yet the government has sent representatives to take places on the Inter-American Defense Board, which is preparing military defense. They have also sent delegates to the Inter-American Conference on Economic and Financial Control, now in session here for the purpose of blocking Axis subversive activities on the economic front. Argentine events seem to fall in contradictory pairs. The recent resignation of Ortiz put an end to all hopes that he would take over the presidency again and clarify the situation. It almost coincided with the Flag Day message of solidarity from the Argentine Chamber of Deputies to our House of Representatives.

At the same time, Argentina's noncooperative political stand does not fit in with the economic picture. She is today entirely dependent on the United States for the semi-manufactured metals and chemicals necessary to keep her industries going and for the farm machinery that plays so important a part in her agricultural economy. Her essential needs are being supplied. Argentina, in turn, is supplying us and our allies with much needed foodstuffs and materials. She has corn and wheat to burn and is the world's first producer of flaxseed, source of linseed oil. She is shipping quantities of wool, cattle, goat and kid skins, quebracho, used in heavy-leather tanning, important quantities of beryllium and even some tin, tungsten and mica.

EXCEPT for occasional small shipments that the British let through the blockade to "neutral" European countries, her exports are going to nations that are at war with the Axis or that have broken relations with them. Her commerce with Latin American nations has greatly increased since the war and her trade exchange with Brazil is especially important in the hemisphere war economy.

While this commercial exchange is proving an asset to the Allied cause, Argentina's relation with the Axis make Buenos Aires a major listening post for Axis spies and definite weak place in the defense system.

It is to be assumed from the record that Castillo and his advisers will try to straddle the fence as long as they can till they are sure that the Axis has no chance of winning. But there are several factors that will make this more difficult as time goes on.

In the first place, Argentina's usefulness to the Axis is fading daily. She could not get any bulk supplies to them even if she wanted to. Brazil's government has taken very decided measures to keep quartz crystal and industrial diamonds, two vital war materials that are compact and easy to smuggle, from leaking out to the Axis through Argentina or any other channel. If Argentina fulfills expressed intentions of cooperating in the measures against Axis fifth-columning that the economic conference now in session here may adopt, this will be a further block to them.

Secondly, the Axis is apparently not satisfied to see Argentina's supply ships shuttling back and forth between Buenos Aires and our ports. Three have already been sunk, the last one under conditions that leave little doubt that it was done deliberately.

In the third place, the Argentines themselves are becoming more conscious that the Axis directly threatens their security. The ship sinkings have aroused great public indignation. They also know that though we are sending them essential industrial supplies, we do not have any arrangement to supply them with armament, as we do Brazil, for instance. With a showdown approaching on world battlefields and warnings out that the Axis may even make a desperate attempt to land forces in the New World, Argentina's "neutrality" has resulted in her being very poorly armed. This is a dangerous position for any nation today.

Fines or Revoked Licenses Favored By Public for Gasoline Bootlegging

By George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., July 7.—With Nation-wide gasoline rationing reported as a certainty, one problem that will raise its ugly head is the problem of bootlegging and illicit sales.

In the rationed areas it is already a problem. A substantial number of persons interviewed by the Institute this week throughout the rationed States claim they have personal knowledge of violations of ration rules by service stations or garages.

The public in those areas is strongly in favor of punishment for such violations, but believes it should be in the form of fines or suspended licenses and not jail sentences.

Three Aspects Polled

The issue was approached from three aspects in the Institute survey. Voters in the rationed States were first asked:

"Without giving any names, have you heard of any cases where service stations or garages sell gasoline to customers without punching the full amount on ration cards?"

The results are:

Yes, have knowledge of violations	43%
No, have no knowledge of them	57

Respondents were next asked:

"Do you think there should be any punishment of service station operators or garages who disobey gasoline ration rules?"

The vote shows a majority of better than 3 to 1 in favor of punishment.

Yes	69%
No	17
Undecided	14

Finally, those who think there should be punishment, were asked what they thought the punishment should be.

Replies of the 69 per cent who believed in punishment falls into the following categories:

They should lose selling privileges, have their licenses revoked	26%
They should be fined	25
Should have jail sentences	3
Should be let off with a warning	1
Operators should be fired	1
No opinion as to what punishment should be	13
	69%

Tire Situation

While gasoline is still plentiful outside the rationed States, nevertheless Nation-wide rationing is proposed mainly to make the present automobile tires last longer.

The gravity of the situation was well illustrated by the Institute last month which showed that more than half of the Nation's 20 million car-owning families have tires that will last only one year or less at the present rate of driving.

More than four million of these say they can only go for another six months unless they are able to make drastic reductions in their driving.

Store Bread

YOU MIGHT care to know that the subject of boughten, or store bread, which was discussed here recently, elicited some information, much theory and many strong opinions, including that of one who insisted that it was better and said he preferred it to home-made bread which he denounced as amateur stuff.

On the wholesale bakers' side of the case it is set forth that they didn't deliberately undertake to alter the character of the bread which the great mass of us eat, but were nudged along by the American housewife who would go into a store and buy the biggest loaf she could get for her money. That is, if she saw two loaves, side by side, each weighing a pound and selling for the same price, but one smaller than the other, she would take the bigger one. So competition forced the bakers to do things which would create volume, but there is no sense in saying that any of this bread is blown full of wind with a bicycle pump.

The public, represented by the wives who buy groceries, also insists on economy in price and some of the experts who have written me say the public gets its money's worth but just won't pay enough to permit the big bakers to use the expensive ingredients which go into home-made bread and certain semi-private breads of limited circulation produced by small operators here and there. As to this vitamin business, one authority said that what we do now is to refine the life out of the flour, not for any ulterior reason at all, but in a laudable if over-successful striving for perfection and they try to put it back by hand, so to speak.

WE ARE the darndest fool people, anyway, on the subject of drugs and health and, instead of going to a doctor for what ails us, will kid ourselves that health is something that can be rubbed in or inhaled. That is why so many products which have a legitimate reason for being but actually aren't necessities and, in moderation, won't affect the health one way or another, are presented with intimations that they contain the elements of a prescription that a doctor might charge two dollars for and a druggist would charge 75 cents to fill.

I got a surprisingly good rise out of bakers and the haul of bread which ran to 22 loaves of many flavors and textures from as far away as Minneapolis, suggests a temptation to write something about store ham on the off-chance of stimulating a ham-shower. You never would suppose there could be so many varieties of a basic food until you read the recipes and methods which are as individual as the individual face.

I believe the case for store bread boils down to the fact that you get no more than you pay for. If you, meaning practically all of us, insist that a certain price is all we will pay for a certain food and the cost of ingredients, fuel, work and distribution is more than that price, the producer, who is no philanthropist, is going to take something off the quality and devise economies in the manufacture. In the case of bread he can't afford to give you butter and milk according to the home formula and he has to rush it through the baking without any waste of fuel or man-hours or plant-hours.

ONE BAKER who operates on a relatively small scale delivered eight loaves of his bread in person along with a letter which to me seemed rather learned, beginning with the traditional position of honor of the village baker in Europe and proceeding to the fact that you can't expect personal character, so to speak, in a loaf produced by the million by a great corporation.

But this baker's bread cost the consumer much more than the standard grocery store price and the bakery which he runs is strictly a family enterprise which he began with his wife and in which they and other members of the family still put in serious hours of conscientious work. He uses honey and butter and you can taste the difference but you also pay for the difference including the longer and costlier method of baking. I don't think I will tell you his name and address because, notwithstanding his claims that the general public will not pay the price of such bread, he and the family and the bakers who work with them are now putting out about 70,000 loaves a week and if we should run up their score to say 700,000 loaves they would become manufacturers. Anyway I don't think he cares for much more business because he says he is taking off only a small profit and doesn't want to get rich.

So now you know all about the bread situation.

The Russian Front

By Barnet Nover

Battle For The Caucasus

HITLER has barely five months in which to achieve his No. 1 objective on the Eastern Front. That objective is the destruction of the Red army as an army in being.

NOVER

If he succeeds in accomplishing this aim Hitler would still have Great Britain and the United States to reckon with, although he would then be able to hurl against the British bastion the full force of the Wehrmacht or, alternatively, drive on into the Middle East for a possible junction with the Japanese.

If, however, the Red army is still in the field next winter it will make little difference so far as the ultimate outcome of the war is concerned (though it may considerably affect the duration) how much deeper into Russia the German forces penetrate, how much additional Russian territory the Nazis take over.

IT IS THIS time element, this circumstance that the sands are running out for the Third Reich, that explains why Hitler has recently manifested a readiness to throw into the struggle for isolated objectives, such as Sevastopol, more troops and materiel than he previously found it necessary to employ in conquering whole countries.

The same consideration has, no doubt, to limit German operations on the Eastern Front to specific sectors, in contrast to last year when several major offensives were carried out simultaneously on an enormously extended front.

THE STRATEGY which the German high command has been employing since the late spring was anticipated by Marshal Timoshenko. He saw that the major German thrust would be in the direction of the Don, the Volga and the Caucasus. He tried to throw a monkey-wrench into the Nazi machinery by launching an offensive against Kharkov. He failed to recapture that key point although his efforts may have served to delay the Nazi drive.

In a recent speech the Soviet Ambassador, Maxim Litvinoff, chided the Allies for having failed to open a second front at a time that Timoshenko was on the offensive.

"There can be no sort of doubt," he said, "that if the German forces had been diverted from the Eastern Front at the moment when the initiative was in the hands of the Red army, when the German troops were weakened and demoralized, the whole military situation might have been changed and it would certainly have been possible to inflict considerable, if not final defeat of the main Hitler army. This moment was allowed to slip."

Be that as it may there can be no gainsaying the successes which the Nazis have achieved on the Eastern Front since Timoshenko's offensive petered out or the seriousness of the threat to Russia involved in these successes.

AT THE END of May the Nazis captured Kerch, thus wiping out a Russian salient on the Crimean Peninsula and acquiring a springboard from which they may be able to launch an attack on the Caucasus.

Sevastopol fell early in July after an epic struggle. And in little more than a week of fierce offensive action by an estimated million troops the Nazis came within reach of Voronezh which, on Tuesday, they claim to have taken.

The importance of Voronezh lies in the fact that it is an important junction point on the only major north-south railroad line from Moscow to the Caucasus that has remained in Russian hands since the loss of Kharkov. Hitler's present strategy, it is clear, is to isolate the Russian armies in the Caucasus from the Russian forces to the north, to separate the Caucasus from the rest of Russia and ultimately to take over the region between the Black Sea and the Caspian.

He is still a long way from achieving any of these objectives. But the power and ferocity of the present German drive in the south of Russia is not to be underestimated. We must be prepared for more Russian losses during the coming weeks and months.

THE IMPORTANCE of the Caucasus to the oil-poor Reich has often been pointed out by commentators. The fact should not be forgotten that the Caucasus is even more vital to Russia, at this time, than it is to Germany. Lacking the oil of the Caucasus the Red army, Russian industry and Russian agriculture would suffer severely. In the long run, of course, the conquest of the Caucasus would be immensely useful to the Reich, since it would help the Nazis wage a long war. But the negative, short-run advantages of depriving the Russians of that oil would be in itself a tremendous gain to the enemy.

In the meantime, while the Nazi menace to Russia is increasing, that to the British in Egypt has eased off, though perhaps only temporarily. Rommel's drive has been stemmed and General Auchinleck is now counterattacking. Since the fighting in south Russia and in Egypt are all part of one great battlefield we can take comfort in the latest turn of events in North Africa. As an anonymous writer in foreign affairs points out:

"If they (the Nazis) decide to strike to the east, they must take the Caucasus and threaten the Allied position in the Near East this year. . . . Whatever happens, one thing is certain: in order to meet the adverse factors threatening them next year, including the menace of increasing damage from air attack, they must before then deal a blow to the British position either in the Near East or in the British Isles themselves. Otherwise they will lose the strategical initiative, and it is this initiative which has been largely responsible for their successes so far."

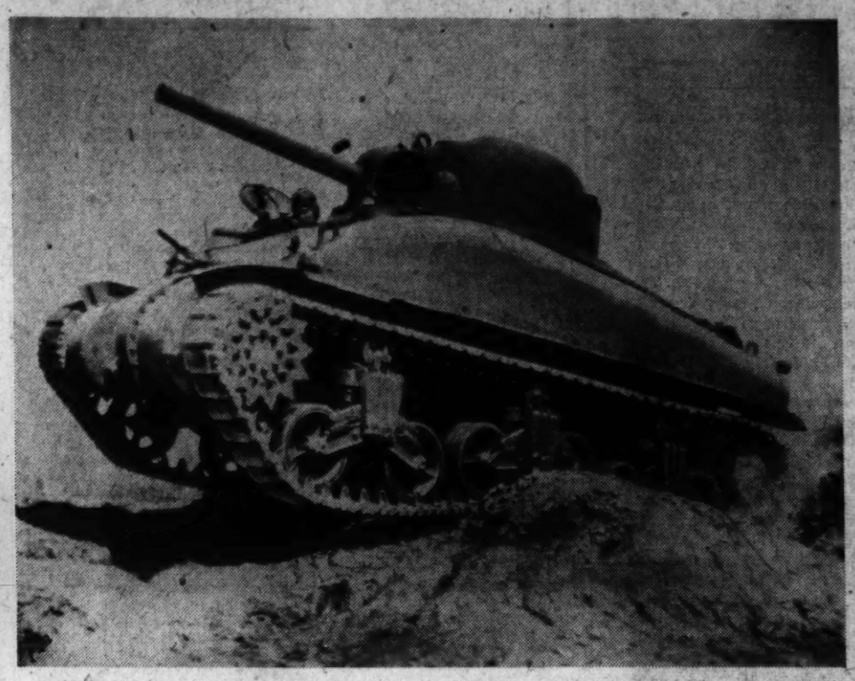
U. S. Tanks

The performance of American tanks in Libya has been a subject of both criticism and praise. The British have been using the M-3, our 28-ton medium tank, which they have dubbed the General Grant. This vehicle mounts a 75 mm. gun on the right side and uses rubber instead of steel tread. Newest American tank is the streamlined M-4. The British call it the General Lee. Here are comparative pictures of the two war machines.

M-3 (General Grant)—Mounting a 75-mm. field gun on the right side a 37-mm. cannon in a turret near the top and four machine guns, this type of tank first came off the assembly lines in April, 1941. It is of riveted construction. A close-up of its armament is below



M-4 (General Lee)—This newest of American tanks mounts a 75-mm. gun in a turret which turns 360 degrees. The M-4 is completely streamlined, is lower in silhouette than the M-3, has an all-cast body instead of riveted construction. A close-up of its cannon and array of machine guns is below

War Assembly Lines Give Grim New Meaning to 'F. O. B. Detroit'

JUST OFF THE ASSEMBLY LINES of the Chrysler-operated Detroit Tank Arsenal are these M-3 General Grants. Twenty-eight were in the line

By David J. Wilkie
Wide World Automobile Editor

Detroit, July 7.—An industrial saga without parallel in modern times is being written by men, money, materials and machines feeding the assembly lines of Detroit.

It is the story of a gigantic peacetime industry, accustomed normally to roll out up to 25,000 and more finished motor vehicles a day, converting almost overnight into an arsenal of war.

Instead of fine passenger automobiles, the assembly lines are spewing out Army tanks, bomber planes, aircraft engines, airplane sub-assemblies, marine motors, shell cases, cannon of varying type and size and scores of other items.

"F. O. B. Detroit" has taken on a grimly different meaning as the miracle of mass production has been adapted to the manufacture of war implements.

It had been said in authoritative quarters that the outcome of the war easily might depend upon how well and how quickly Detroit—the Detroit that means the Nation's motorcar industry—could perform the war production tasks assigned to it.

The question, "can Detroit do the job?" no longer is asked.

Detroit is doing the job; doing it in a degree far beyond the most optimistic expectations either of its car industry heads or of the Nation's war production chiefs.

Less than four months after it stopped assembling passenger automobiles for civilian uses, the car builders turned armorers were able to report their factories far ahead of schedule on war work. In some plants production levels had been attained that originally hadn't been expected before the late spring or early summer of 1943.

In others the sights had been raised to almost fantastic proportions. Operations that previously had been figured on the basis of hours and even days had been reduced to minutes. The motorcar makers had found, as one of their number once remarked, that "this job is right down our alley?"

Oddly enough it is a job that is being done without much fanfare and with few, if any, outward manifestations of the tremendous task and its far-reaching import.

At the factory gates men and women pour in and out by multiple thousands as shifts change and plant guards stand at every entrance. But elsewhere in the area there's little to indicate the terrific pressure that accomplished the "impossible" and hourly increases the productive volume.

The industry proved the job was made for it when it was able to report six months after Pearl Harbor that although it continued to make cars for civilian purposes up until February 10, it had delivered approximately $1,500,000,000 worth of armament to the United States and its Allies between December 6 and last June 6.

Orders on the industry's books currently total more than 15 billion dollars. Barring shortages of men, material and machine tools, the production level by the end of 1942 will be at the rate of nearly a billion and a half dollars monthly! That's in excess of four times the normal peacetime output of the industry.

It was the showing of the first six months of American participation in the war that led Alvan Macauley, head of the Automobile Manufacturers' Association and its council for war production, to assert:

"In goading American minds and hands into using mass production techniques of peace for the purposes of war, the enemies of free men have released the power that can ride them down, drive them to the earth, destroy them."

Turning out gun barrels, gun mounts, shell cases, ambulances, reconnaisance vehicles, cartridges and such items on a mass production basis was a relatively simple undertaking.

However, anything but simple was the task of putting into volume assembly the 28-ton "medium" Army tanks, the giant four-motored bomber planes that weigh nearly as much, the liquid and air-cooled aviation engines and other major instruments.

One simple section of a tank weighed more than an entire automobile; the aircraft engines were built with the precision of fine watches. Production rates are military secrets, but it can be told:

That the tanks are rolling out in volume from multiple assembly lines, being put together in the traditional manner of peacetime motor vehicles;

That the projected schedule for the great bomber planes, said by the experts to be capable of flying from the assembly plant to "any airdrome on the face of globe," long ago was announced as not less than one an hour;

That nearly a dozen onetime automobile factories are pouring out the precision-built aviation engines in a daily volume few of the motorcar makers a few months ago believed possible.

They are working with new materials, producing new machines and devices. Machines once used for milling cast iron now are working on armor plate. A shaper machine that once curled chips a thirty-second of an inch off mild steel now is used in some instances on stock almost as hard as the tool itself.

It is another tribute to the productive ingenuity of the car builders that in addition to achieving mass production levels on the machines of Mars they have been able also to take literally scores of design changes in stride without materially slowing down the output totals.

That is being done with the M-3 tank, which is giving way to an improved welded model designated the M-4. On the aviation engines and plane sub-assemblies design, changes have been too numerous to list, even if military policy permitted.

In virtually every instance, however, the changes have been made with little or no interruption to the flow of assemblies from the production lines.

Tanks, bombers, airplane sub-assemblies, aviation engines, guns, shells, marine motors, searchlights, compass bearings . . , it is a strange stream that men, money, material and machines are sending down the industry's assembly lines.

Man power and raw material alone will determine how great will be its volume.

Frills and Metal Clips Eliminated; Practical Styles Are Featured

This is one of a series which advises women of the changes concerning merchandise necessitated by wartime conditions.

By Martha Ellyn

Martha Ellyn

TIME was when lingerie was talked about in whispers. But la femme's casuals have become important enough for the War Production Board to consider that slips, sleeping garments and lounging robes can contribute to the textile and metal conservation program.

No longer will the modest-minded hide their curves behind the double-paneled slip. The WPB has decided that such slips are unnecessary. Also it has ruled out the tiny metal slides on shoulder straps. Although the little slides may seem infinitesimal, yet the millions used on slips absorbed much critical metals.

There's no use to get in a stew if you can no longer buy your slips with double panels and double-material yolks. This protection is not essential in a well-constructed slip of dependable material. Turn attention rather to selecting a slip that is fashioned adequately and of serviceable material that can stand much soapsuds.

Just because a slip isn't "seen," don't think that it should not be purchased with as much discrimination as your Sunday best dress. It is a good idea to try on a slip before purchasing to make sure that it fits smoothly and hangs straight all around. It should be about one inch shorter than the dress under which it is to be worn. And don't be guilty of adjusting a long slip at the shoulders. Adjust at the hem. If a slip fits properly, lowering or raising the shoulder strap will in most instances throw the garment out of line and it will not fit smoothly through waistline and hips.

Slip Improves Looks

And don't get the idea that you can wear a dress next to the skin—even a casual cotton. Not only does a well-fitting slip improve the looks of a dress, but it also protects the outer garment from wrinkling and soiling.

Shoppers don't have to be told to look for practical styles in lingerie in the future, because the War Production Board has taken care of that by eliminating frills, the extravagant use of materials and the maximum measurements of these articles.

Undergarments must be sold singly. Pajama-and-robe combinations and other two-for-one price combinations are as gone as two lumps of sugar for your coffee. Shoppers will have to forget the ensemble idea—matching nightie and robe and be on the lookout for robes that wear well and look attractive with all garments.

And the cold-blooded had best build up resistance by good nutrition and circulation, as wool cannot be used to make bathrobes or housecoats. But there's a fine selection of these available in quilted cotton and rayon, velveteen and serviceable cotton flannels.

Little-Miss-Up-to-Date is shown here in slip made in keeping with WPB lingerie requirements—no double panels, no metal shoulder strap adjusters. Restrictions don't annoy this trim-figured girl for this jaunty satin model fits to a "T." It has no bunching waistline, has sufficient room through thighs, is of correct length and washes satisfactorily. Price is $2.50. For information call National 4200, Extension 259

The life of any garment depends upon the correct fit, sturdy construction and proper care. Women can do a patriotic service by prolonging the life of the garments they now have.

Don't be guilty of "hiking up" a slip to the correct length by anchoring with a safety pin which may tear the material; rather, sew the straps. When a shoulder strap begins to dangle from the slip by a thread, that's the needle and thread signal that it should be secured firmly. The material to which any strap is attached should be reinforced. Straps should not be pinned for this makes a bump to show through the dress, and is not a very dependable method.

Thread-Slipping Is Problem

The seams of a slip should be cut on the bias. Many rayons are subject to "thread-slipping" under strain. This means that the threads slip over one another and pull apart. It is even possible for the entire length of the material to tear away from the seam, particularly if the seam is straight cut. When seams are cut on the bias, there is no direct pull on the threads. All of the seams in a slip should be cut on the bias, including those at the yoke and in the skirt where the panel normally is placed.

Slips that have their seams finished with a chemical compound, such as synthetic resin, will also relieve "thread slipping." The sturdily built woman may find that bias-cut slips do not fit as well as straight-cut garments.

With silks generally gone with Pearl Harbor, the majority of slips are now of rayon and cotton materials. Some very pretty cotton slips are being offered. Cotton-made garments do not require special attention to laundering. These can be washed in lukewarm water and mild soapsuds. The soap should be completely rinsed out as cotton, not soap-free, tends to turn yellow. Drying in the sunshine will help make them white.

If you treat rayon lingerie properly the life expectancy will be increased and the beauty maintained. Rayon slips can be kept as soft as a flower petal if laundered properly. Use any pure soap and lukewarm, soft water. Press while damp (if possible) using a warm iron, NOT HOT. It is better to iron with, not against, the grain of the fabric—on the wrong side. This keeps the cloth from stretching out of shape, permits the garment to retain its original fit.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Once 'Vulgar, Dirty, Socially Gauche, Ignorant Of the Arts and Sciences,' Man Was Transformed By Wife in 10 Years; But He's Coldly Resentful

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I read with intense interest both the letter from Anne, in your column of July 4, and your energetic counsel to that young wife with respect to an ameliorative program. The latter, please permit me to say, I digested with a growing feeling of futility and impending doom. For her, for Anne. In brief, your advise is quite empty. I speak from a decade of experience.

For, you see, I am the man. Not precisely THE man; not the very individual for whom the unhappy Anne now holds only barely concealed contempt; but I am he who is vulgar, dirty, socially gauche, ignorant of the arts and sciences and all the rest—including the dismal rules of punctuation. That is to say, I WAS he, ten years ago. Oh, I know him well! Anne's characterization of me—of my alter ego, that is—is pretty fair, though rather incomplete.

But there is this great difference: Anne's husband is merely a "benighted" individual on whom a vigorous "cultivating" program is yet to be tried; whereas I am a husband—or an appendage—who has already suffered long and who has, so to speak, been "remolded nearer the heart's desire," by such a regimen as you have outlined.

A decade ago, when my wife and I were married, I was—still am—an humble mechanic. The word "humble" I use only in a relative economic sense; I am far from humble spiritually. I was, and am at present, proud of both my occupation and the skill I commanded. My friends were chiefly unschooled mechanics and electricians, interspersed with a few railwaymen, truck drivers and day laborers: forthright people of simple tastes; easy to understand and worthy of understanding.

As the world appears to measure such things, my wife was a person of considerable culture. A college graduate: a—her profession does not matter; but a person with bookish tendencies and some social aspirations. But, to the long view, the most unusual thing about her is her vast and inflexible patience. Undoubtedly, having married me, she deliberately set about to remake me. It was, I must confess, a tremendous task; but years of nagging effort rewarded her with victory. Today I am all, I am everything, that she had wished for and striven for. Indeed, I am somewhat more, dear Miss Haworth, than she had bargained for. Hers will be seen, I fear, to have a Pyrrhic victory. For plus ca change, plus c'est la meme chose!

It was a dreary road. Composition, grammar, two foreign languages; mathematics, poetry; the appreciation of art; the beauties and pitfalls of philosophy; the wearing of clothes and the tedious cultivation of "social amenities"—these, under the rod of my unrelenting preceptress, were my interminable "avocation." Or my cross. At any rate, I learned.

I hope that I shall not offend against modesty when I say that, after several years of this discipline, I came rather to outdistance my teacher. This is not merely my own opinion; it has been several times subtly confirmed by those with authority in various fields. And as my knowledge grew, so also did my understanding. Amongst other things, the clod began well to understand that his wife was not altogether the considerate, loving, perfect woman he had once thought her to be.

His own tastes, you see, had never been considered; his own desires, never consulted; his old friends, excommunicated; his low pleasures, outlawed. There was never—nor is there today—any question of him. She was, and was ever to remain, the magnet, the cynosure, the rare jewel about whose brilliant facets his "good" metal could serve merely to cling, to protect and to suffer by contrast.

Let me hasten to my conclusion, which is actually not yet. I am very weary. More, I am sick: sick of it all. I am sick of her, and of her egotism, and her selfishness, and her shallow "philosophy," and her friends. I find this strained, hectic, artificial, "cultured" existence altogether and unutterably intolerable. In my native tongue—to hell with it!

And I shall put an end to it, either by separation or by divorce or by other appropriate means long considered. My dear wife has created for herself a monstrous thing, a creature that completely understands her, and now she must shortly learn, else I miss my guess, to play the role of Frankenstein.

I have served a hard master for the past ten years or so, but for the next ten I mean to serve myself. Away with all this pedantry and constraint and posing that "smells of the lamp"—or worse. Let me go back to the free, careless days of relaxation and beer and argument. (Not "discussion.") Back, I say, to that Ultima Thule of simple blessedness where the split infinitive is given its due weight along with the soiled sock.

But can I do it? Aye, that I can! For I have learned, dear Miss Haworth, the value of "relentless" patience and determination from an adept who, perhaps 10 years ago, may have been so misguided as to apply ill-considered advice from some such benevolent counselor as yourself. Sincerely yours,

CALIBAN.

Story Recalls Proverb About Sow's Ear

DEAR CALIBAN: If credit for your ironic mastery of language belongs to your wife—then permit me to say she has done one swell job on a thankless, erstwhile clod. It's pure pleasure to publish your letter—on account it makes such excellent astringent reading. However, you have far to go yet before you can justifiably congratulate yourself on having outstripped your teacher. At present, it seems to me, you have reached the stage, merely, where you have come abreast of her intellectual arrogance. You claim, mistakenly, that "as my knowledge grew, so also did my understanding." But no. Wisdom and understanding are synonymous, and humility is the beginning of wisdom. And humility, as you submit, and the whole tone of your letter corroborates, is a virtue as yet unknown to you.

It is odd that your furiously expedient address to the treasured knowledge of mankind—in particular, "the beauties and pitfalls of philosophy"—did not reward you, somewhere along the line, with some seeds of soul-growth. However, there are none so blind as those who will not see; and as has been said, "You can lead a horse to water but you cannot make him drink." Actually, you have learned little in your years of goaded application. You have simply taken on a high polish of lettered complacency; so that even your favorable reference to your former "unschooled" associates is subtly tinged with patronage. You damn your wife as an insufferable "egoist"—but as is ever the case when the intolerant pass judgment, you are simply putting the finger on your own major shortcoming: imputing it to her.

I wonder if your scintillating and surly recital doesn't amount, really, to saying, at length, what a proverb says better, to-wit: "You can't make a silk purse out of a sow's ear?" If your scholastic exertions had cleared your vision to any degree worth commending: if you were now truly out-thinking your wife, you would take the lead as a matter of course, in educating her to enjoy the blessed simplicities of life. The art of thinking seems to be out of your line. Emotional feeling, I believe, is more your specialty; and for 10 years now, you have been nursing a growing load of resentment, based on the honeymoon (or thereabouts) discovery that your wife didn't think you were plumb perfect, just as you were.

Friend, you have many more mountains to climb, before you can submit credentials as an "understanding" man. The one just ahead is your enormous and angrily defensive self conceit, that estranges you from your wife. Put it behind you, forevermore,—and you will be on your way to a dawning appreciation of the unarguable good she has brought into your life, though indirectly.

The Gentler Sex

Meeting Royalty

WEARING a tiara, which she explained was only her second-best one, Mrs. Henrietta DeGoofey, noted reformer, greeted members of her press conference yesterday.

Mrs. DeGoofey

"No, do not bother to curtsy," she admonished the women reporters. "I have not, as reported, been made Empress of the Aleutians. I am merely prepared for my next presentation to royalty.

"With kings and queens flitting in and out of town every other day," continued the president of the Do Something About It League, "I am determined not to be caught unprepared."

"But," protested a reporter for the "I Am as Good as You Are" daily, "I thought you were a democrat, a proletarian, a lover of the masses."

"I am a democrat," declared Mrs. DeGoofey. "I defy anyone to prove that he—or she—is a better democrat than myself. But you see I have been presented at court. I know how to curtsy. Therefore, when royalty comes to this country I feel that I should curtsy as much as possible—if for no other reason than to show that I know how it is done.

Will Teach Art Of Curtsying

"What is more, I have traveled abroad extensively. I am familiar with Old World customs and court procedure. It is perfectly natural for me to curtsy—in fact, I have been told that I do it with rare grace. Now, of course, with persons who have not been to Europe and who have never seen royalty, it is a different matter."

Mrs. DeGoofey announced she would hold summer classes for women wanting to master the technique of being presented to royalty.

"I understand," she said, "there is a heated controversy on as to whether both knees should be bent at the same time and also as to whether or not the heels should be kept together in a curtsy. I shall straighten out all these disputes at my school.

"I shall also give instructions in the dusting and polishing of tiaras. In that connection I am starting a drive to bring out of hiding all unused tiaras so that our American women may be properly outfitted at royal receptions. I understand many women attended the receptions for both the King of Greece and the King of Yugoslavia without tiaras. There is no excuse for that! We Americans can wear tiaras as well as anybody, and it is up to us to prove it."

The reformer further announced that she was starting a movement to have royal and titled visitors placed on view at Griffith Stadium so that more citizens could view them.

Right of Taxpayers To View Royalty

"I consider it a very undemocratic process," she said, "to exhibit Old World royalty and aristocrats to a favored few. There is an old saying that even a cat can look at a king, but that apparently doesn't hold true in America. Only a few socialites, officials and members of the press get to shake hands with—and curtsy to if they desire—our visiting royalty. I expect to make it possible for all taxpayers in this great democracy of ours to look, at least, at our royal visitors. I am going to take this matter before Congress which, whatever else you may say about it, has always been watchful of the rights of its letter-writing constituency."

Mrs. DeGoofey said her plan involved the building of a large revolving platform on which the royal and titled visiting celebrities would stand in their royal robes, crowns, decorations, et cetera, while a huge spotlight played on them and thousands of spectators cheered.

Basic Summer Frock In White or Beige

This seems the right place to stop to remind you that "basic" frocks for summer may be white or beige, as well as black or navy blue. Maureen O'Hara prefers the chalk white frock for summer, had one made with slim skirt, plain bodice with bracelet-length sleeves, slightly cowled neckline.

This type of "background" frock is very adaptable, may be worn on any occasion by merely varying the accessories. Maureen's dress is a wash rayon, the fabric resembling a rough linen. Cool, smart and practical.

It's About Time

By Dolores Boland

IT'S ABOUT TIME to make last summer's dark silk coat look like part of a new ensemble. When you make a printed dress whip up a cape collar of the print. Tack this to coat so it can be removed with ease and similar collars substituted

Swimming Fills Out, Trims Down, Puts Curves in the Right Place

By Ida Jean Kain

THERE'S no room for argument about swimming being the perfect summer exercise. Whether you are fat or skinny, or have round shoulders and a sway back, or your figure is generally flabby, get in the swim. It will straighten you out and put your curves in the right places—and cool you off!

The nicest thing about swimming is, of course, the water. And you can count on it to give each group of muscles their proper workout, and that makes for streamlines. If you need filling out anywhere, it builds firm muscle tissue and curves. And if you need trimming down, it tones down your bulges.

Middle Slimming

It doesn't matter much what stroke you use. For your purpose they are all good. But you can't beat the back stroke for filling out your chest and straightening your shoulders. As you circle your arms up and back through the water in that rhythmic reach you can almost feel your shoulders being straightened and the bust lifted. It will take care of any slack on the upper arms at the same time. While all this goes on, it stretches you slim through the middle.

The old-fashioned breast stroke is slow and tough. I can't see why Grandma worked so hard for fun but it's what made her into such a fine figure of a woman. Strike out with both hands, chest-level, separate arms, and swing back to shoulder, then in front to chest-level again.

All that hauling and pushing against the resistance of the water makes a wonderful builder-upper. You can do the same stroke at home, in a standing position. But to get in the muscular resistance, follow it with this: Place the fist of one hand in the open palm of the other, with elbows flexed and hands in front of chest. Push with one hand as you resist with the other and move hands from side to side at the same level.

Streamline Midsection

When you are floating in the water on your back, kick with your legs. That will streamline your midsection as no other exercise will. And if you take your dip in a pool, you can get a good workout even though you don't swim a stroke—just hang on to the edge of the pool and kick from the hips. Start off with 25 kicks and work up to 50. You can also do the side-scissors at the edge of the pool.

Capital Whirl

by Hope Ridings Miller

While 'New Rhythm' Accents Round at Popular Beach and Mountain Resorts, Washingtonians Stay Close to Wartime Work; Usual Summer Plans Shelved for the Duration

FROM NEWPORT comes word that the summer season "is moving to a new rhythm due to war conditions." . . . From Hot Springs, Va., floats in a report that the Homestead "is filled to overflowing with celebrities on brief vacations from wartime duties." . . . From Bar Harbor, Maine, echoes the rumor that notables who have summered there for decades are spending only weekends there this season. . . . And from one vacation spot that used to be among the most popular comes news that the biggest hotel there opened the season recently with but four guests and drew only half a dozen more over the recent holiday weekend.

In other words, any resort spot on the map must either "move to a wartime rhythm" this year or count itself out of the summer picture altogether. . . . Furthermore, for the first time in a generation, just about every popular resort on the list is having to get along without the glittering presence of Capitalites who formerly contributed heavily to the annual income and prestige of resort hotels.

Everybody in Washington seems to be staying close to home this season. Either that, or getting away for the weekend—with definite plans to be back in town on the Monday afterward. Dowagers, who formerly took off early in June for summer homes, are staying in the Capital to aid in the defense effort. Debs, subdebs and postdebs either have paying volunteer jobs here . . . or they're preparing for one later. For the first time in many summers, business schools are thronged with vacationing college girls, who aren't letting any wartime grass grow under their feet.

Full Summer Program for Morris Family

Indicative of the activities of many families in Washington is the current "busy bee" program now being carried out by Mr. and Mrs. George Maurice Morris and their two daughters and son. On the trail of summer plans the other day, I happened to meet Mrs. Morris and asked her whether she and her family had any vacation ideas on tap.

"Not many," she said. "Our summer is pretty well filled already."

Mrs. Morris herself, for example, is now handling tickets for the forthcoming Lily Pons concert (Army-Navy benefit) and is also carrying on her two-day-a-week work for the American Women's Voluntary Services. Miss Patricia Morris, who could be attending a continuous round of younger-set parties here, is devoting herself to a more serious pursuit. She is taking a social service course given by the Friends Association in Baltimore, and she will be hard at work until August 21. Miss Hillis Morris, who made her bow to society last autumn, is now in Mexico with the group that went there in connection with the "Experiment in International Living" project. You'll remember that the same type of project was responsible for the trip Sister Patricia made to Peru last summer.

Hugh Morris, who tripped off to Alaska last July, returning home just in time to enter Dartmouth College in the autumn, is taking basic Marine Corps training along with his regular college course so that when he finishes Dartmouth he can go straight to Quantico.

Next month Mrs. Morris will accompany her husband to the meeting of the American Bar Association in Detroit, where he will be inaugurated as president of the organization; and while no definite plans have yet been made, she hopes also to fly with him to Argentina for the meeting of the International Bar Association in September. "I'm afraid, though, they'll want a lawyer to fill that plane space . . . instead of the first lady of the bar," said Mrs. Morris. "So I'm not counting too much on that trip."

Colombian Head Feted at White House

"There are to be no more published White House dinner lists . . . for the duration." That's the current social edict from 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue . . . and it applies even when there's a state dinner on the program, such as there was last night when Dr Alfonso Lopez, President-Elect of Colombia, was honor guest.

Only bit of information that I could glean was that the event was to be "just a men's dinner;" and that the company would include Colombian Ambassador Gabriel Turbay and "a number of United States officials." Also present, of course, were members of Dr. Lopez's official party, including his son, Pedro Lopez y Michelson, who, with his father, was an overnight guest at the White House.

In keeping with the pattern established for visiting dignitaries some time ago—when President Prado of Peru was here, to be exact—Dr. Lopez and his son will move across the street to Blair House this morning. At 12:15 p. m. the Colombian President-Elect will visit Congress, and this evening he will be guest of honor at a dinner to be given by Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles at the Mayflower.

Burden Slated for Little Cabinet

Call it coincidence if you will—that's certainly what I call it, at any rate—but several of Mrs. William A. M. Burden's friends are now remembering what a fortune teller prophesied at a luncheon several months ago. The scene was the Salle du Bois, and the hostess was Mrs. Clarence Norton Goodwin, who summoned the soothsayer to the table. He turned to Mrs. Burden first "to read her future;" went into great detail about what she could expect from life and ended up by saying, "Your husband is in line for a very high job . . . probably in connection with something he is doing now."

Yesterday, when the announcement that Hinckley had resigned as Assistant Secretary of Commerce hit the headlines, reports were making the rounds on Capitol Hill that Burden, who is now with the Defense Supplies Corporation, was to take his place.

Myrl Hodgson Is Bride of J. T. Burkett

Before an improvised altar banked with palms and early summer flowers, Miss Myrl O'Neill Hodgson became the bride of John Thomas Burkett, jr at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the home of her parents, Mr and Mrs. Reginald Mure Hodgson, on Sixteenth Street. Mr. Burkett is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Thomas Burkett of Little Rock, Ark. Mr. Burkett came here from Little Rock to attend his son's wedding. The Rev. Sparks W. Melton of Norfolk, Va., officiated at the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white gown with a lace bodice fashioned with a square neckline. The full, mousseline de soie skirt fell in a circular train that was edged in a ruffle of lace. Her veil of illusion fell from a lace cap and she carried a bouquet of white rosebuds and baby's-breath.

Sister Serves as Maid of Honor

Miss Elizabeth Hodgson served as maid of honor for her sister, wearing a yellow lace and mousseline de soie frock. A veil fell from her matching tufted cap and she carried a bouquet of talisman roses. Mrs. Frank Walter, jr., was gowned in a pink mousseline de soie frock with a matching cap. She carried a bouquet of deep pink roses. Another attendant was Miss Bettie-Louise Steele who wore an aqua mousseline gown and carried a bouquet of yellow roses.

Harry R. Kern, jr., of Winchester, Va., served as best man and ushers were Frank Walter, jr., and B. Cecil Rhoads. A reception followed at the home of the bride's parents. Mrs. Hodgson received with the young couple wearing an orchid and American beauty frock and a corsage of red roses. Assisting at the reception were Mrs. Townsend A. Tatterson, of Honolulu, aunt of the bride; Mrs. Charles W. O'Neill, the bride's grandmother who came up from Richmond, Va., and Mrs. A. N. Hodgson of Charlottesville, Va.

Will Make Home In Kansas City

When the couple left for their wedding trip through the Smoky Mountains, the bride wore an aqua suit with yellow accessories and a corsage of yellow carnations. They will make their home in Kansas City, Mo. Mr. Burkett attended the University of Arkansas, the University of Missouri and the University of Virginia as well as National Law School here.

Among the out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Logan Veazey, of Richmond, Va., Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Smith of Elizabeth, N. J., Mrs. Arthur L. Brown of Richmond, Mrs. Abbot Marsh, of Norfolk, Mrs. Harry R. Kern, jr., of Winchester.

'Hi There! Umbrella—

Harris & Ewing.

—you're casting a shadow on a couple of mighty attractive young Service Juniors." They are, to be specific, Miss Mary Miller, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Frank Miller, and Miss Betty O'Shea, daughter of Lieut. Col. and Mrs. George J. O'Shea, United States Marine Corps

Grosvenors Off For Summer in Nova Scotia

Off to spend the summer in Nova Scotia are Dr. and Mrs. Gilbert H. Grosvenor, who have a summer home, Bien Breagh, in Baddeck. Heretofore the large Grosvenor family has managed to get together just about every summer at this spot, but the family is scattered to all points at present. However, Mr. and Mrs. Torfinn Oftedal, she was the former Gloria Grosvenor, expect to spend part of August with her parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Melville Grosvenor, son and daughter-in-law of the Grosvenors, have taken a cottage at Gibson Island for the summer while Dr. and Mrs. Walter Kendall Myers, son-in-law and daughter, have leased a place at Scientists Cliff, Md., for the season.

In Peru are Mr. and Mrs. Cabot Coville, still another son-in-law and daughter of the Grosvenors. Mr. Coville is with the United States Consulate in Lima.

Virginia Jowers And F. N. Kidwell Are Married

The marriage of Miss Virginia Earl Jowers and Francis N. Kidwell took place last evening at 7:30 o'clock in the Ninth Street Christian Church, with the Rev. C. C. Roberts officiating. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Jowers. Mr. Kidwell is the son of Mrs Cora Bissett.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an aqua green ensemble, street length, and a cluster of orchids. Miss Wynell Jowers, cousin of the bride, served as maid of honor. She wore a gold crepe frock and a corsage of orchids. John Moreland was best man.

Marriage Postponed

The marriage of Miss Janet Sheila Moran of Washington, and William Boyd Tyer, jr., which was to have taken place today, has been postponed because of Miss Moran's illness. The ceremony had been scheduled at All Saints Church at 4 p. m.

Helen Byrd Is Honored

Entertaining in honor of Miss Helen Byrd last night, Mrs. George Mesta was hostess at a small dinner for a younger set group at the Sulgrave Club. Miss Byrd arrived at the club yesterday to visit Mrs. Mesta.

Miss Byrd, who is the daughter of Admiral and Mrs. Richard Byrd of Winchester, Va., will leave this morning for Arizona. There she will visit Mrs. Mesta's niece, Miss Betty Tyson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Tyson at the K Bar, their ranch there.

Delphine Colquitt Fetes Bride-Elect

Miss Delphine Colquitt entertained at a tea and kitchen shower yesterday afternoon in honor of Miss Ann Buchanan who will be married on Saturday to Lieut. Donald Thomas Regan.

Guests at the party included Miss Barbara Baker, Miss Suzanne Slingluff, Miss Peggy Whitely, Miss Betty Buchanan, Miss Helen Dunigan, Miss Betty Larkin, Miss Jacqueline Nicklin, Miss Ellen White and Miss Audrey Cowan.

Member of Brazil's 'Rockefeller' Family Here on Special Mission

The gigantic task of transporting oil from Peru down the whole 3000 miles of the Amazon River to Brazil seemingly holds no terrors for Lauro Guimaraes, youngest son of the "Rockefeller" family of Brazil.

Mr. and Mrs. Guimaraes, who are making their home at the Shoreham, are among the newly arrived Latin-American contingent in the Capital.

Representing the Sonalco of Rio de Janeiro, Mr. Guimaraes is in Washington working on contracts for barges, tugs and pipe lines needed for the huge job of transporting oil from the source to the mouth of the Amazon.

A keen, very highly cultivated man, Lauro Guimaraes speaks flawless English as a result of his years of study of technology at Manchester University in England. He hadn't used any English for many years before coming to the United States, and he frankly admitted that he was a little amazed at how easily the use of English came back to him once he got into the United States.

Mrs. Guimaraes, who will give some of Washington's best-dressed women a race for smartness, has never been in an English-speaking country before, and just now is learning English. She is an accomplished pianist and before her marriage was a teacher in the conservatory of music in Rio de Janeiro. Mr. Guimaraes also is a musician. The two are interested in furthering Latin-American music here, and Mr. Guimaraes is especially perturbed when he hears an orchestra playing South American music with a North American tempo.

The Guimaraes family, who have vast holdings in textile mills and mines in Brazil are noted for sending their members to schools where they can learn a phase of engineering and technology that can be best utilized in one of the plants. Mr. and Guimaraes have several nephews studying at schools of mining in the United States. Their three children, whom they left in Brazil for the time being, no doubt will be sent to schools of mining in the United States when they come of age. Mr. Guimaraes' brother, Manoel Ferreira Guimaraes, who is well known in Washington, is president of the Brazilian Chamber of Commerce, and now is president of the new company for oil transport and commerce being devised in Rio de Janeiro.

Goodwin–Wall Betrothal Told

Mr. and Mrs. John L. Goodwin of Bridgeton, N. J., announce the engagement of their daughter, Mary Jane, to Ensign George W. Wall, jr., U. S. N. R., son of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Wall of Oak Lane, Philadelphia.

The prospective bridegroom was graduated from Duke University in 1940 and is a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity. He attended Yale University School of Law before being called to active duty in the Navy.

Miss Goodwin has been making her home at 2500 Q street for some time.

Mrs. Ferrandou At Rehoboth

Mrs. Alfred Henry Ferrandou left on Monday to open her cottage at Rehoboth Beach, Del., where she will remain until the first of September. She was accompanied by Mrs. Jane Shepherd who plans to spend two weeks there.

Miss Mary Ann Ferrandou is remaining in town to continue her business courses in the morning and her Red Cross first aid classes in the afternoon. However she plans to join her mother for weekends. Mr. Ferrandou, who is in Detroit on a trip, expects to get away to the beach for an occasional weekend.

Mrs. Edward Finkenstaedt will return to Washington today from Norfolk, after spending the past weekend there with her son-in-law and daughter, Ensign and Mrs. Charles Whitney Price.

Mrs. Lawrence Wood Robert, jr., is back in the Capital after a few days with her daughter, Alice Birney Robert, at Sea Island, Ga.

The Alfontes Settling in New Home Here

Brig. Gen. and Mrs. James R. Alfonte, who have just recently arrived here from Fort McPherson, Atlanta, Ga., are busily getting settled in their new home at 3222 Klingle Road. General Alfonte is Assistant to the Quartermaster General.

Mrs. Alfonte is also renewing acquaintance with old friends from El Paso, Tex., where she was born, and has found almost enough of them here to form an El Paso club.

In the meantime, daughter Mary Gates Alfonte, having discovered that all the young ladies of debutante age are busy working, stepped right out and got herself a job in the office of the Chief of Finance. Their only son, James M. Alfonte, is now a plebe at the United States Military Academy at West Point.

Capt. James Ashby And Bride at Home In Arlington

Capt. and Mrs. James Ashby, jr., whose marriage took place a few days ago in Fredericksburg, Va., are now making their home in Arlington. The bride is the former Mrs. Frances Goolrick Young, and she is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. O'Conor Goolrick.

The ceremony on Wednesday, July 1, was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents, with the Rev. J. Sullivan Bond, jr., officiating in the presence of relatives. A small reception followed.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a powder blue suit with navy accessories and a corsage of orchids. Captain Ashby, who is the son of James Ashby of Stafford Courthouse, had his father as best man.

Mrs. Ashby, who was graduated from the Misses Stone School, Washington, and St. Mary's Junior College, Raleigh, N. C., traveled abroad for eight months to complete her education. Captain Ashby attended Virginia Military Institute and the University of Virginia. After graduation he practiced law in Stafford County and shortly thereafter was appointed trial justice of the county. He is now detailed to the War Department here.

R. N. Hoffmans On Wedding Trip

Mr. and Mrs. Robert N. Hoffman are on a short wedding trip and upon their return will live in Arlington, Va. The former Miss Rose Frances Henry, Canadian member of the British Admiralty delegation here, was married on July 4 in the Foundry Methodist Church with the Rev. J. H. Phillips officiating. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. R. Henry of Ottawa, Canada. Mr. Hoffman is the son of Mrs. Emma Hoffman and the late Nicholas Hoffman of Pullman, Wash.

The bride wore a gown of magnolia crepe with a lacy picture hat of natural straw and matching accessories. Her corsage was of sweeheart roses.

Girls' Junior Air Reserve National Wing Chief Speaks

By Genevieve Reynolds
The Post Club Editor

IF YOU bump into a pretty young girl and hear her muttering about air navigation, aerodynamics, solid models or meteorology, no doubt it will be a member of the Junior Army Navy Guild Organization learning her aviation lesson. Yesterday, the Jangos went all-out for aviation at a meeting at the home of Mrs. McCook Knox, 3250 N Street Northwest.

Dynamic Mrs. Harry Thomas Jordan of Philadelphia, National wing commander for Girls Junior Air Reserve, National Aeronautic Association, and also on the national advisory committee of the Girl Scouts, outlined an all-out program to make the Jangos definitely air minded. She also had her chief of staff for flying model construction, Thomas Rothera, come from Philadelphia to illustrate the models. With him came his son, Donald Rothera, who has won many awards. The father, Thomas Rothera, is a pioneer model builder with more than 25 years experience.

Sleeping Is Waste of Time

With the Jangos' adoption of the aviation program, Mrs. Jordan, who recently was named vice chairman of the newly created Women's Auxiliary of the Youth Division of the National Aeronautic Association, can look ahead to new groups to bring into the fold. That is exactly what she'll do, for she's out to make the youth of America definitely air-minded. Also, she's determined that the Army and Navy find a place for these feminine aviators in the war program.

Mrs. Jordan talks aviation with the zeal of a newly converted missionary. So eager is she to make the American youth air-conscious that she hardly stops to sleep.

"In fact, I do well on four hours of sleep," she explained. There's so much to be done to win the war that she feels sleeping is a waste of time. But then she's a remarkable woman.

Returning from a stay in South America and Honolulu in early 1941, Mrs. Jordan, who also has globe trotted several times, felt that war was inevitable. On April 14, 1941, she joined the Palm Beach (Fla.) Round Table. Next day she went out and took her first flying lesson. Completing the first course, she then passed on to flying plane building, aerodynamics. By November, 1941, she started to spread her knowledg to the world.

Formed All-Girl Squadron

Shortly thereafter, she organized in Philadelphia the first all-girl squadron in the Western Hemisphere. The clear-eyed flight instructor, who is the mother of a daughter 24, started the movement with 50 girls. Now the National Girl Scouts has adopted the program for its major senior scout project for 1942-1943. From July 13 to 25, Scout leaders will go to Philadelphia for an intensive training course in air navigation, aerodynamics, model plane construction and other related subjects.

"These planes are built on the same principle as the man-carrying planes," explained Mrs. Jordan. Only difference is the man-carrying planes have a pilot to take care of deficiencies and thermal current."

Models of the planes and gliders were demonstrated at the Jangos' meeting.

Not only does Mrs. Jordan give all her time toward building up a women's air reserve corps, but spends her own money to make the project effective. Lately, she moved from her mansion in exclusive Green Hill Farms and turned the estate over to the Government. She took a small, modest house so she could turn the money over to aviation.

2 Books Coming Off Press

Between writing books on aviation—she has two coming off the press now—she flies her own plane in Civil Air Patrol. She cooperated with Armand N. Spitz, head of the Department of Meteorology at Franklin Institute and author of "Pinpoint Planetarium," in writing a "Digest of Aviation." Her other book "Air Navigation for Beginners," was written in collaboration with Lieut. Comdr. Scott G. Lamb, U. S. Navy, retired, now Instructor in navigation and avigation, W. S. N. schools, Franklin Institute. Both books will be used for text study in the aviation courses.

When does she find time to write? Between the hours of 9:30 p. m. and 2 a. m. she dictates the story. How does she do an amount of work that would make three other people dizzy? For that, she has a special philosophy—"the more you give of yourself the more energy is regenerated." Her recipe for youth is unlimited enthusiasm.

Versatile Mrs. Jordan, who in 1929 went to Germany to learn construction work, laughs and says that she knew nothing but contract bridge. While in Germany she became vitally concerned over that country's increasing air strength and this Nation's apathetic attitude toward strengthening its air force. However, she returned to codify a bridge book,

Political Club Board Feted At Luncheon

Mrs. Lane Schofield, Mrs. S. Fay Harper and Mrs. Thomas H. Faris entertained at luncheon yesterday at the Shoreham in honor of the board of the Political Study Club.

Among the guests were Mrs. Wintemute W. Sloan, Mrs. Edward Campbell Shields, Mrs. Needham C. Turnage, Mrs. Ernest Humphreys Daniel, Mrs. Henry Gordon Clay, Mrs. Tillman B. Parks, Mrs. Z. D. Blackistone, Mrs. Viola Fellows, Mrs. Edward Banks Gibson, Mrs. Benjamin Soule Gantz, Mrs. Mabel Gauss, Mrs. Edward R. Quale, Mrs. William A. Boss, Mrs. Tomas Cajigas, Mrs. Joseph Randall, Mrs. John W. Harwood, Mrs. William F. Keohan, Miss Louella Chase, Mrs. Mariam Ballentine Berryhill, Mrs. Copeland Jones and Mrs. George C. Quirk.

Also invited were Mrs. Fred Schnable, Mrs. George Anderson, Mrs. John W. Darby, jr., Mrs. Frank M. Shorthall, Mrs. John Kennedy, Mrs. Frank Morrison, Mrs. Edward Boyd Kay, Mrs. William A. Kinnan and Mrs. Wallace W. Streater.

Henderson-Spitler Wedding Recently

The former Miss Virginia Belle Spitler of Washington and Luray, Va. and John E. Henderson will make their home in Baltimore following their return from a short wedding trip.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. L. Spitler of Luray and Mr. Henderson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Byron S. Henderson of Moundsville, Va. Their marriage took place on Thursday in Baltimore. The bridegroom attended Washington and Jefferson College, George Washington University and recently was a cadet at the United States Military Academy.

Thomas Rothera, Pioneer Model Builder, Also on Program

later studied the advertising field in which she became outstanding. But in 1941 she turned her energies to her present aviation project.

A Special Reason

There's a special reason why Mrs. Jordan wants to put over a successful war program. Her husband, Harry Thomas Jordan, sold more war bonds during World War I than any other one person. Unable now to do as much as he likes, he encourages his wife and stands by while she devotes all her time and energy toward winning the war.

Guests at the Jangos' meeting included: Mrs. Clarence Norton Goodwin, chairman of the Women's Auxiliary of the Air Youth Division of the National Aeronautic Association; Mrs. Robert P. Patterson, wife of the Undersecretary of War and vice chairman of the W. A. A. Y. D. of the National Aeronautic Association; Mrs. Ralph Bard, wife of the Assistant Secretary of the Navy; Mrs. Harold P. Stark, wife of Admiral Stark; Mrs. Ernest King, wife of Admiral King; Mrs. H. The American Public has a right to know

THE TRUTH ABOUT SYNTHETIC RUBBER

With 97% of the world's sources of natural rubber in enemy hands, America and her allies must have synthetic rubber quickly and in quantity—or risk losing the war for want of it. In a spirit of public service, rather than of criticism, we offer in this advertisement facts about synthetic rubber.

What is synthetic rubber made of?

The best synthetic rubber has butadiene as its most important ingredient.

Is butadiene difficult to produce?

No. There is nothing difficult about making small quantities of butadiene from petroleum. The problem is to produce vast quantities quickly and with least use of critical war materials. For this purpose a catalytic process must be used.

What is the best process of making butadiene from petroleum?

The Houdry Catalytic Process. This is not a new or experimental process. It is a new and simplified application of a well-established method of refining petroleum, by which well over a billion gallons of high-quality gasoline are now being produced per year.

Why is the Houdry Process better?

Because by means of the Houdry Process, butadiene can be produced in greater quantity, within a much shorter time and at millions of dollars less cost than by any other petroleum process.

How much butadiene can the Houdry Process produce?

15 standard-size Houdry-Process plants will produce enough butadiene to provide a million tons of synthetic rubber a year (as much rubber as, it is estimated, was consumed in the United States during 1941).

How much critical materials would be required?

15 plants would require not more than 180,000 tons of steel, from one-third to one-half less than required for the next best petroleum process.

What would this steel-saving mean to America?

The steel that would be saved in the construction of Houdry plants for an annual rubber production of a million tons, would be sufficient to supply steel plates for more than 150 destroyers, or 3,000 medium tanks, or 100,000 Jeeps.

How long to build Houdry plants?

Given suitable priorities on materials, Houdry plants can be built in nine months—at least 4 months sooner than for any other petroleum process.

What does 4 months mean in this war?

Within four months, Japan seized almost all of the Far East; in less time, Germany swept through the Low Countries and conquered France. Four months' saving of time can be priceless to America a year from now, as her meagre rubber supply nears exhaustion.

How much would these Houdry plants cost?

Approximately $12,000,000 each—saving millions of dollars as against the cost of butadiene plants using other petroleum processes.

Who should be especially interested in this method of making butadiene?

Various executive departments of the federal government which must deal with the rubber problem; the Congress, with its powers of appropriation and investigation; and, of course, the employers of all of these —the people of the United States.

What about tires for motorists?

If the quantity of steel saved by adoption of the Houdry Process is put into additional Houdry plants, butadiene production will be increased sufficiently to provide tires or recaps for American motorists, as well as taking care of all present estimates of commercial and military requirements.

What will the Houdry Method mean to YOU?

It will overcome the present shortage of rubber sooner, save huge amounts of critical materials and, by both these effects, greatly advance America's victory effort. It will save millions of dollars of expense which will otherwise needlessly burden taxpayers. And it will hasten the day when, essential military and civilian rubber needs having been met, American motorists can again have rubber for tires. Finally, it will release America forever from dependence on natural rubber from foreign sources.

We are proud to offer the Houdry Catalytic Process to any and all American manufacturers, without restriction and at nominal royalty rates approved by the United States Government.

THE HOUDRY PROCESS CORPORATION

WILMINGTON, DELAWARE

The Houdry Process has already contributed importantly to America's war effort. Without its principle, America's requirements for 100-octane aviation fuel could not have been met. Among the companies now licensed to produce 100-octane aviation gasoline by the Houdry Process are:

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

Internal Revenue To Transfer 300

Internal Revenue will transfer 300 of its Washington employes to New York, Greensboro, N. C., and Baltimore . . . Hard-working Budget Director Harold D. Smith is taking it easy for a change. Doctor's orders . . . Dr. Helen Monchow has been appointed editor of publications at National Housing . . . Comptroller General Warren has ruled that no agency can buy newspapers, books or periodicals unless Congress specifically appropriates funds for them . . . Robert King of the Tariff Commission has been appointed chief of the Storage Control Section at the Office of Defense Transportation.

Agriculture has high hopes of being able to pay its 10,000 employes here their full checks today. A payroll was sent to Treasury's efficient Bureau of Disbursements late yesterday and if it's at all possible the checks will be distributed today. Some may be delayed but they'll be available tomorrow . . . Employes in printing and processing division at the Office of Emergency Management are given compensatory time off when they work on Sunday or a double shift. They are permitted to take the overtime leave one day at a time. Yesterday some bureaucrat got to work and ordered the employes to report for duty for 15 minutes on the days they take overtime leave. How stupid!

Grogan Appointed

William B. Grogan, an attorney in Labor's Public Contracts Division, has been appointed deputy administrator of Wage and Hour. Harry Weiss has been moved up to chief of the economics branch and Edgar L. Warren has been promoted to assistant chief . . . The President has asked Congress for $272,000 to finance the Board of Investigation and Research which he recently gave a new lease on life for two years. A fight definitely will be made on the request. The agency is said to overlap the work of the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Office of Defense Transportation. Members of Congress will be told of the duplication.

Office of Education now has a five million dollars fund which will be used to finance needy college students who are taking professional and technical subjects. Up to $500 annually will be lent to students but they must agree to work for Uncle Sam after they are graduated. Only students who can complete their courses in two years or less will be granted loans. The Government is making the loans in an effort to fill shortages of engineers, physicists, chemists, doctors, and personnel technicians among others.

Before very long a good percentage of Federal employes here will be sent to some sort of a school. The War Department is taking the lead in this after-office-hour-activity. William H. Kushnick, civilian personnel director, has arranged with nine different local schools to provide an intensive program of refresher training in typing and stenography for the thousands of War typists and stenos. The employes will attend school twice a week. Enrollment is voluntary. However, employes who can't meet the department's standards will be demoted or fired.

Just a few days ago 176 War Department supervisors completed a course worked out by the department with George Washington University. The course was designed to "provide the supervisors with the methods whereby they could obtain maximum production with minimum friction." Supervisors are being enrolled in new courses. Federal officials have long recognized that supervisors have been the weakest link in Government and at least a score of agencies are now working on plans to send their straw bosses to school where they'll be taught how to get along with people and get the most out of them. The Civil Service Commission is encouraging the training courses.

The tightening pinch of man power will lead to Uncle Sam's hiring more blind persons and others who are physically handicapped. Civil Service Commission has hired a number of physically handicapped persons itself and now it's urging other agencies to give them a chance. The commission has a long list of assistant clerk-stenographers who are blind but who are qualified in braille stenography to type from dictating machines . . . UFWA will hold a mass meeting on July 24 on the President's overtime pay bill for Federal workers . . .

D. C. Chinese Mark 5th Year of War

'Dragon' Paraded Through Streets; Throngs Hear Yarnell, Others

Including the symbolical dragon, local Chinese commemorated the fifth anniversary of their war with Japan with a colorful street parade yesterday, followed by a mass meeting at Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church.

Placards in the parade and speakers at the meeting stressed the theme that China, given the weapons, would fight on until the United Nations were victorious.

At the church, the keynote of the meeting was struck by Rear Admiral Henry Yarnell, retired, former commander of naval forces in the Far East, when he declared China was now at the "Valley Forge" of her existence.

Others who spoke at the meeting included the Rev. C. C. Hung, minister of the Chinese Church in Washington, who presided and introduced the speakers; Dr. Liu Chieh, the Chinese Minister; Maj. Gen. Hsu Peiken, chief of staff of the Chinese military mission to the United States, and Dr. Paul Douglass, president of American University.

Assemble at Sixth and H

Assembling at Sixth and H Streets Northwest, some 1000 Chinese, including those now in the American Army stationed at nearby camps, paraded west on H Street to Ninth, to E Street to Eleventh and east on K Street to the Mount Vernon Place Church.

Heading the parade were local officials of Chinese organizations, followed by a band composed of residents of the Soldiers' Home, a company of Chinese-American soldiers, colored floats, officials in private cars, and the proverbial dragon impersonated by two Chinese carrying a grotesque dragon head and flowing tail. They danced the Chinese dragon dance throughout, ending with a spectacular finale at the church steps.

Placards Vow Victory

Chinese and American flags predominated throughout the procession, and Chinese Boy Scouts, and young girls in Chinese attire were likewise in the line of march. Placards were carried inscribed "Defeat the Japs with American Planes and Tanks;" "United We Shall Win the War;" "Keep the Flying Tigers Flying," and "For Five Years China Has Held the Japs With Bare Hands."

Most of the speeches were in Chinese, with interpreters summarizing them briefly. Dr. Hung declared that China had been fighting Japan for the past five years with her "bare hands," and asked for more immediate help from the United States. Said the clergyman: "Give us 10 per cent of American war production, and China will return 100 per cent in results." He asserted that China will fight on with the other United Nations until victory.

Minister Liu declared his countrymen were the first to bear arms in the war against aggression and oppression, and were fighting a just cause. At the outset, he said, his country was aware that sooner or later the forces of democracy would come to China's aid.

Yarnell Lauds Chinese Troops

After reviewing the history of Japanese aggression, Admiral Yarnell said the Japanese underrated the qualities of the Chinese soldier, and given the same weapons, the latter were much the superior. The "incident" at the Marco Polo Bridge five years ago, he declared, solidified the Chinese people.

Paying tribute to Generalissimo and Mme. Chiang Kai-shek, the retired officer asserted that "the present period is the Valley Forge" of Chinese national life. He added that the peace and security of the Far East depends on China, and we should give her every assistance.

Admiral Yarnell characterized the attack on Pearl Harbor as a "supreme blunder," and instead of a victory, it would spell the ultimate defeat of the Nipponese.

Speaking in Chinese and with an official of the Chinese Embassy interpreting, General Hsu declared China's five-year valiant resistance to her aggressor is a great contribution to the world. The tremendous forces of the Allies, he continued, supported by their manpower, industrial capacity and mechanical efficiency will assure victory.

Choosing for his topic "China and Tomorrow," Dr. Douglass asserted "what aid is given to China today is going to determine what kind of a world we have tomorrow."

In its local setting, he said, "the war is a conflict between two irreconcilable forces—the growing unity of the modern Chinese people and the vigorous imperialism of the Japanese Empire."

Continuing, he declared the war is determining whether a basis will be found for reconciling the East with the West so that both may live side by side in peace."

2d Prisoner Testifies at Eklund Trial

First Witness From Jail Sought To 'Frame' Slaying Defendant, He Says

Another District Jail prisoner took the witness stand in the District Court trial of John Eugene Eklund yesterday—this time in an attempt by the defense to refute the testimony of Richard M. Harlow, convicted housebreaker, who said under oath last week that Eklund had confessed to him the "sniper" slaying of Hyland McClaine, 17-year-old Negro.

The witness was Lawrence L. Haynes, serving a two to six months' sentence imposed June 19 by Justice James W. Morris, who is also hearing the Eklund case.

Under questioning by Defense Attorney Harry T. Whelan, Haynes recalled a conversation he had with Harlow and quoted him as saying: "Johnnie Eklund would make a very handsome picture—all he needs is a frame."

Harlow's stated purpose in testifying against the 27-year-old defendant, Haynes said, was to help in gaining leniency in his own case, soon to be heard in court.

Haynes, who was convicted May 27 for complicity in the removal of confidential files from the Civil Service Commission's offices, went on to relate his own efforts, while in jail, to counteract any testimony that Harlow might later offer. When he read a newspaper article saying a District Jail inmate was directing police to a buried gun in a Baltimore park, he said, he "surmised" that the man referred to was Harlow.

The Government did, in fact, later unearth a revolver in Baltimore's Preston Gardens with the aid of directions from Harlow, who said Eklund had disclosed the hiding place to him.

His suspicion of Harlow, Haynes continued, led him to prepare a statement, which he said he gave to Eklund so that it might help in rebutting any possible testimony by Harlow.

"Haynes' written statement, although introduced by the defense, was regarded by the prosecution as constituting virtual substantiation of Harlow's testimony—in that it confirmed admissions by Eklund to Harlow. Assistant United States Attorneys John W. Fihelly and Charles B. Murray, therefore, accepted the document as evidence in their favor and submitted it as Government evidence.

Addressed "to whom it may concern," the statement told of an admission by Harlow that he would "frame" Eklund if he thought it would operate in his favor by getting a reduction of his bond.

Last Friday Harlow admitted from the witness stand that this had been his motive, but he denied "emphatically" that his testimony against Eklund constituted an attempt to "frame" the former student.

The defense opened its case yesterday with testimony by Policeman Thomas R. Herlihy. But when the witness failed to refute statements by the Government witness Mildred Washington Simms, who was with McClaine when the young Negro was shot to death October 15, 1940, near the K Street viaduct, Whelan announced his "surprise" and dismissed him.

Following the conclusion of the Government's case earlier yesterday, Whelan moved that two bullets, said to have been removed from McClaine's body, be ruled out of evidence. Justice Morris heard arguments on the motion—even inspecting the bullets himself, under a magnifying glass—and then denied the motion. Whelan had contended that the slugs did not bear certain identification marks claimed to have been made by a deputy coroner who performed the autopsy.

Both bullets have been identified by ballistics experts as coming from the same gun—a .38 caliber Colt revolver—as two others removed from a tree behind the Hot Shoppe across the Fourteenth Street bridge, where Eklund, it is claimed, engaged in target practice.

Several More Washingtonians Win Commissions in Army

LIEUT. FONTANE B. HOOFF, Jr. | LIEUT SAM E. AGNEW | CAPT. CLARENCE DODGE, Jr.

Samuel Agnew, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Agnew, Cordova Apartments, Twentieth Street and Florida Avenue Northwest, was among several Washingtonians to receive commissions in the Army during the past few days.

Lieutenant Agnew, 28, was graduated from Central High School and from Georgetown University in 1937. He entered the service last November and soon afterward attended the officers, training school at Camp Lee, Va. He had been employed in the Library of Congress.

Fontaine B. Hooff, jr., 22, son of Mrs. Fontaine B. Hooff, 4831 Thirty-sixth Street Northwest, was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Army Air Corps t Turner Field, Albany, Ga. He entered the service last November and began training at Maxwell Field, Ala. A native of Washington, Lieut. Hooff was graduated from Wooodrow Wilson High School in 1937, and from West Virginia University last year. He has been ssigned to the Bomber Ferry Command.

Another Washingtonian to be commissioned as second lieutenant was Albert H. Coombs, jr., son of Albert Coombs, 4842 Butterworth Place Northwest. He won his commission in the Antiaircraft Artillery School, Camp Davis, North Carolina. Lieutenant Coombs, a graduate of Western High School, entered the service last August.

Edwrd J. Brosnan, 4625 Forty-sixth Street Northwest, also received a commission at Camp Davis.

Meantime, Capt. Clarence Dodge, jr., 27, of 2204 Kalorama Road Northwest, has been transferred from the Thirty-sixth Field Artillery regiment at Fort Bragg, N. C., to the Field Replacement Training Center at Fort Sill, Okla., it was announced yesterday at Fort Bragg.

A native of Washington, Captain Dodge was called into the Army from the Reserve Corps in April, 1941, and sent to Fort Bragg. He served at Fort Bragg until December and was sent to Fort Sill to attend the communications course for field artillery officers. Upon being graduated from this course in March of this year as a captain, he returned to Fort Bragg. He has been battery commander of the Second Battalion Headquarters Battery and Regimental Headquarters Battery, communications officer for the regiment and for both battalions there.

Captain Dodge was graduated from Princeton University in 1936, and held a first lieutenancy in the R. O. T. C. He later attended Georgetown University here. He is a member of the Princeton Club, Chevy Chase Club and Temple Noyes Masonic Lodge, and formerly was with the Acacia Life Insurance Co. here.

Martinsburg, W. Va., July 7.—The Eastern Panhandle barley harvest, just completed, will bring a yield of only about one-half of the last five-year average, local farm observers say.

Explorers Hear 2 Tell Of Aleutians

Some 125 members of the Washington round-table group of the Explorers Club and their guests gathered at the Sheraton Hotel last night and heard two experts of the Smithsonian Institution discuss the "Aleutian Islands Front."

The speakers from the scientific institution were Dr. Charles Wetmore, the secretary, and Dr. Alex Hrdlicka, noted anthropologist, who described their many trips to the stormy Aleutians.

Others who spoke at the meeting included Sir Hubert Wilkins, explorer of the polar regions for more than 20 years; Dr. Charles S. Wright, described by Sir Hubert as the "foremost physicist in the British Empire" and now director of scientific research for the British Admiralty; Dr. William T. Mann, director of the National Zoological Park; Commander Malcolm Hanson, U. S. Navy; Earl Hanson, South American explorer, and Maj. H. T. Cowling, chairman of the Washington group.

An unexpected speaker was Dr. Wright, now on a brief visit in this country, who was called upon by Sir Hubert Wilkins to tell the explorers his experiences as a member of the British Scott expedition to Antarctica in 1910-1911. The physicist told of the chances his party took, and with him were the Englishmen Evans and Powers who took extraordinary chances in below-zero temperatures to find the lost Scott and his party.

Earlier, he paid tribute to the American Navy, saying it was more highly specialized than the British.

Dr. Wetmore, showing slides of the Aleutians, told of his first visit there 31 years ago, when he was a member of a party of the Biological Survey. The trip was made board a Coast Guard cutter. The area, he said, was one of fog and storm, and terrain of the islands, rocky, barren and wind-swept. Should the Japs build an air base on the now Japanese-held islands of Kiska and Attua, they will have to contend with continuous wind and storm.

Dr. Hrdlicka, going into more detail about the islands, asserted there were only 120 known islands in the group, and no one yet knows the exact number in the chain. Describing the rocky coast on the south, he said the Coast Guard, which excels in navigation, did not like to approach them from that direction. In his 2½ seasons there, he said, he found many reminders that ancient man had established homes. Doubtless, he declared, they were attracted by the abundance of fish, wild fowl and seals. A peculiarity of the region, said the anthropologist, was the absence of mollusks.

Earl Hanson made on the Amazon basin, saying the members of the club had explored every foot of the area, and were prepared to give the Government, expert advice on that section. Certain specific problems in the Amazon has been studied by the club, he added, and it was prepared to fulfill Governmental requests for help.

Music Guild Concerts End With Success

By Ray C. B. Brown

Chamber Music Guild presents its String Quartet (Emanuel Zetlin, Alexander Levin, Benjamin Sosner and Marcel Ancher) in Dumbarton Oaks Garden on Tuesday night. Guest artist: Lais Wallace, soprano. Program: Quartet No. 2, Op. 132 (Henry Hadley), Dos Canciones to Jorge Manrique (Joaquin Nin Culmell), Dos Canciones Coloniales (arr. Josue Wilkes), Quartet No. 2, Op. 33 (Constantino Gaito).

It was the good fortune of the Chamber Music Guild to have a perfect atmospheric setting last evening for its final concert in the garden of Dumbarton Oaks, and the terrace was crowded with the largest audience attending any of the six events. The nocturnal air was balmy and so quiet that not a leaf stirred on the great oak dominating the semicircular ranks of chairs, and the stars shone with a diamantine brilliance. Under such ideal conditions for outdoor listening, one's pleasure in the music was touched with a pang if regret that the series was ending.

BROWN

My private Critic's Award for the best program of the week goes to the guild in recognition of this Pan-American concert. At least three-quarters of the music was being performed as "first time in Washington," and I doubt very much that Henry Hadley's second string quartet has been heard here before. It was published in 1934 and I do not recall its presence on any local program that I have reviewed.

The Hadley quartet impressed me as being unusually personal for a composer who generally dressed his music impeccably and endowed it with the social graces but left out his individuality. He was 63 when he composed this work three years before his death, and it seems to speak with a tone of intimacy. One felt this confidence particularly in the lovely andante, which has a kinship with English folk song in the turn of melodies and the harmonic flavor. The other three movements are fanciful, poetic and ingratiating, and the whole quartet glows with vitality.

Lais Wallace, Brazilian soprano, was the personable and vocally adroit guest artist who assisted in four delightful songs arranged for voice and string quartet. Two of these, "Con Dolorado Cuidado" and "Quien No Estuvier en Presencia," were settings by Joaquin Nin Cul-Josue Wilkes, Argentinian comtury trovador, Jorge Manrique. Josue Wilkes, Aregentinian composer, was responsible for the beautifully harmonized arrangements of "A Cierto Galan su Dama" and "Poco a Poco, Pensamiento" from the collection of 12 colonial songs of the seventeenth century by Brother Gregorio de Zuola, a Franciscan monk.

The concluding work on the program was the second string quartet by Constantino Gaito, of Buenos Aires, music of imaginative quality and Latin grace. In the quartet are agreeably mingled the strains of two cultures. Of its three movements the most striking is the andante in the mood of a nocturne in which there are suggestions of a romantic serenade.

Senate Passes Bill Affecting Undertakers

A bill providing for the stricter regulation of District undertakers and embalmers was passed by the Senate yesterday and sent to the House for its approval.

Introduced last October by Senator Bilbo (Democrat) of Mississippi, the measure was indorsed by the Senate District Committee as correcting existing regulatory conditions which were described as "lax" and not up to "standards which it is thought should govern the operation of this business or profession."

Provisions of the bill:

Require all undertakers and embalmers to obtain a license in order to operate in Washington. License fee would be $20.

Set up requirements which must be met in order to obtain a license. These include professional examinations, age limitations, minimum educational standards and a citizenship requirement.

Organize a seven-man committee, appointed by the Commissioners, to conduct license examinations. Six of its members would be undertakers or embalmers who have been practicing here for at least ten years, while the seventh would be either the District health officer or his representative.

Authorize the Commissioners to revoke licenses in the event of malpractice.

Big Leaguers Explode For 3 Runs in First 2 Innings; Hudson And Spence Do Well

By Judson Bailey
Associated Press Sports Writer

Municipal Stadium, Cleveland, July 7.—The American League's mighty All-Stars refused to be awed even by the Army and Navy tonight and smothered the baseball stars of the two services, 5 to 0, before a crowd of more than 60,000.

While this big assemblage was gathering hundreds of soldiers, sailors and marines provided a military show probably without precedent. It lasted for more than an hour as the bands played and the men marched and rode around the field in trucks and big tanks.

It was impressive, but the Army and Navy baseball team directed by Lieut. Gordon (Mickey) Cochrane was not so potent as the mechanized battalion that preceded it on the field. Cochrane's outfit absorbed a thrashing more thorough than the American Leaguers gave the National League Monday night in the annual major league All-Star contest at New York.

Feller Chased

The major leaguers got four hits and three runs off Cleveland's own Bobby Feller in the first two innings and forced his removal before he could retire a man in the second.

Johnny Rigney, recently of the Chicago White Sox but now serving at the Great Lakes Naval Training Station, succeeded in checking the American Leaguers in the middle innings but this was simply temporary.

When Mickey Harris, former Red Sox southpaw who came here from his Army post at the Canal Zone, went to the mound in the seventh chapter he was promptly pasted for a double and two triples to account for the American League's last two runs.

In contrast three present major league hurlers held the service men to six hits, getting into difficulty just twice during the tussle.

Bagby Winner

Jim Bagby, Feller's former teammate with the Indians, was Manager Joe McCarthy's selection to open for the American League and he received credit for the victory although he was the shakiest of the trio of moundsmen.

With one out in the first inning Bagby loaded the bases on a walk to Benny McCoy, a single by Don Padgett and a walk to Cecil Travis, who was the second leading hitter in the American League last year, but he fanned Joe Grace and made Johnny Sturm ground out. In the next two innings he gave up a single to Ernie Andres, former Louisville star, and a double to Travis without damage.

The American League's first blast against Feller came with one out in the opening frame. Tom Henrich singled, Ted Williams waited out a walk and then Joe DiMaggio, after receiving a mixed chorus of boos and cheers, cracked a hot single on the ground into center to score Henrich and send Williams loping to third. Rudy York, who had knocked a two-run homer into the Polo Grounds' right-field stands in the first inning last night, hit a great arching fly to Grace in deep right and Williams hurried home after the catch.

Feller, who looked gaunt and 10 pounds under his weight before

Only 5 Break Par as Strong Field Undergoes Qualifying; Ward Shoots 73

By the Associated Press

Spokane, July 7.—Handsome Harry Givan of Seattle, American Walker Cup team member in 1937, banged out a 3 under par 69 today to lead the field at the halfway mark in the 36-hole qualifying trials of the 1942 Western Amateur golf championship.

Givan set the pace for a formidable list of entries that included the National and defending Western titleholder, Corpl. Marvin "Bud" Ward, U. S. A. Ward scrambled his way to a 73.

Givan was out in 35 and home in 34, against the par 36, 36—72 Manito course, 6454 yards of flat but exacting fairways and greens.

Five Break Par

Only five of the starting field of 89 were able to break par. The others included Verne Callison of Sacramento, Calif., with 36-34—70; and three at 71—Bruce McCormick, Los Angeles, 35-36; Seaman Harry Miller, U. S. N., Seattle, and Wilford Wehrle, Racine, Wis., 38-33.

R. B. Van De Mark, Tacoma, and Marsh Hammond, Spokane, turned in par 72s and the rest ranged upward into the 90s.

Two front rankers and among the tournament favorites, Bill Welch, Houston, Tex., and Corp. Pat Abbott, Los Angeles, found the going tough. Each carded a 76.

Welch, National Public Links champion, was hooking balls out of bounds and on one hole lost a stroke because of a mental lapse. He put his second shot within a couple of inches of the pin, then walked up and knocked the ball 12 feet from the cup. He had forgotten that all putts must be dropped but luckily holed out the long one he had made for himself.

Doering at 73

Another favorite, Art Doering, jr., Chicago, experienced putting trouble but was fairly well up with a 36, 37—73.

Corporal Ward, the No. 1 favorite, had to produce some of his finest golf to get back into the running. He spent much of the first nine in the woods, or off the fairways, to take a 39 but his incoming 34 partly made up for the earlier blundering.

The tournament's most colorful figure, Chick Evans of Chicago was a late entry and turned in a 41, 37—78. This championship was once almost exclusively Evans. He won it eight times, four in succession from 1920 through 1923.

The second round will be played tomorrow with the low 64 qualifying for the match-play rounds starting Thursday.

Mixed 2-Ball Tourney at Chevy Chase

The first tee of the Chevy Chase Club will be reserved from 12:30 to 3:30 p. m. this afternoon for the Maryland State Golf Association's Mixed Two-Ball tournament, an 18-hole alternate shot tournament for men and women members of State association clubs.

Players will leave the tee as they register at the scoring table but to avoid the usual 1 o'clock confusion the tee will be open for three hours and the twosomes are requested to space their appearances throughout the afternoon.

Prizes will be in War Savings stamps for low gross and net scores, with one-half of the combined handicap applying on the latter. Play will be selective drives and alternate shots with a $2 per team entry fee.

All players must have Maryland State handicap cards.

The mixed event is the first of three scheduled each season. The State's second affair will be held at Hillendale next month while the District G. A. event is also next month, at Manor.

Mrs. Betty Meckley and Volney Burnett, who played a fine 72 gross round at Chevy Chase three years ago, will again be partners today.

FIRST INNING

SERVICE—Mullin grounded to Boudreau and was thrown out. McCoy maneuvered the count to 3 and 2 and then walked. With the count 3 and 2, Padgett lifted a high fly which fell just inside the left-field foul line for a single. Travis walked on four pitches to load the bases. Bagby also threw three consecutive balls to Grace, but then got three strikes across and Grace was called out. Sturm grounded out to Keltner. No runs, one hit, no errors, three left.

AMERICAN—Boudreau flied high to Mullin on the second pitch. Henrich scratched a single through the pitcher's box. Williams worked the count to 3 and 2 and walked. There were cheers and boos, about half and half, as J. DiMaggio came to bat. He slashed a ground single into center, scoring Henrich and putting Williams on third. York drove Grace far back for a long fly and Williams scored after the catch. Doerr popped foul to Andres. Two runs, two hits, no errors, one left.

AMERICAN—Keltner smashed the first pitch over Mullin's head in deep center for a triple. With the count 2 and 2, Rosar singled to left, scoring Keltner. John Rigney, former Chicago White Sox right-hander, now in the Navy, replaced Feller on the mound and Frank Pytlak, another Navy man, who formerly caught for Cleveland and the Boston Red Sox, went behind the plate. Bagby fanned and Pytlak threw to Sturm at first, catching Rosar off base for a double play. Boudreau flied to Mullin. One run, two hits, no errors, none left.

THIRD INNING

SERVICE—Phil Rizzuto of the Yankees, replaced Boudreau at shortstop and the crowd booed. McCoy flied to J. DiMaggio. Padgett went out the same way. Travis lined a double into the left-field corners. Grace bounced to Bagby and was thrown out. No runs, one hit, no errors, one left.

AMERICAN—Henrich walked. Williams also waited out a base on balls. J. DiMaggio popped foul to Andres. York forced Williams at second, Travis to McCoy. Doerr

Bob Bensinger Is Defeated In School Net

By the United Press

Philadelphia, July 7.—Top-seeded Frank Willett, of Anniston High, Anniston, Ala., won his way into the semi-final round of the National Interscholastic Tennis Tournament at the Merion Cricket Club today with a three-set victory over Bob Bensinger, Sidwell-Friends School, Washington, D. C.

Willett, winner of the Philadelphia District Junior title last Saturday, rallied after losing the first set to win, 3-6, 6-4, 6-2. The count went to deuce seven times in the tenth game of the second set with Willett serving. After scoring with an overhead smash, Willett steadily improved and moved easily through the deciding set.

In the other quarter round match, Bobby Falkenburg, brother of "Jinx," Hollywood movie star, eliminated Benny Migdow, of Crane Tech High, Chicago, 6-3, 6-1, and his older brother, Tom, entered the quarter finals with an 8-6, 6-3 win over William T. Yyvisaker, of Lawrenceville school.

Rail Service Refused to Camden Track

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, July 7.—The Pennsylvania-Reading Seashore Line announced today it will provide no transportation facilities for patrons of the new two-million-dollar Camden, N. J., race track, due to open July 18.

The announcement apparently shut off all possibility of public transportation to the park. Applications for bus service permits had been rejected earlier by the New Jersey Public Utilities Commission and the Pennsauken (N. J.) township committee.

J. O. Hackenberg, general manager of the railroad, said "we have made this decision because of the general policy of railroads . . . that all special service to . . . amusement centers and other points not essential to winning this war is out for the duration."

Hackenberg said that "even if we had necessary equipment" the line would need priority ratings for the construction of sidings "and nothing like that is being permitted."

Sam Angott Whips Montgomery Again

Lightweight Champ Takes Split Decision, His Third Victory Over Negro, Before 16,060

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, July 7.—Lightweight Champion Sammy Angott bulled and mauled his way to a 12-round split decision over Bob Montgomery tonight in a nontitle scrap at Shibe Park before 16,060 paid spectators.

It was Angott's third straight decision over the Philadelphia Negro, who once was regarded as the uncrowned lightweight champion.

The champion, who lives at Washington, Pa., but fights out of Louisville, Ky., piled up a big margin of points in the first five rounds, then withstood a Montgomery rally and took the last round to win on the decision of Referee Spud Murphy. The judges, Harry Lasky and Eddie Loughran, split. Lasky gave it to Angott, Loughran to Montgomery.

Montgomery, who gave away two pounds to Angott at 137, was outclassed in the first five rounds, but in the sixth landed a couple of hard lefts and rights that made the champion give ground. Montgomery took the offensive in the next two rounds, but in the last four was battered and mauled at close quarters.

As the final bell rang, both Angott and Montgomery pulled out of a clinch and exchanged several blows in a flurry of action. They were quickly separated by their seconds. Many in the crowd which paid a gross gate of $33,553.50, booed the decision.

Officials Differ

Referee Murphy gave Angott six rounds, Montgomery four and called two even. Judge Lasky gave Angott six, Montgomery five and called one even. Judge Loughran gave Montgomery six rounds, Angott five and called one even. The Associated Press score card gave Angott seven rounds, Montgomery two with three even.

After the sixth Montgomery managed to avert this situation and on several occasions got in a series of left jabs without a return from Angott. Some of the best action came in the sixth, seventh and eighth rounds, when Montgomery drove home his right numerous times, keeping the champion at long range. In the closing rounds Angott again reverted to his rushing tactis and tied up Montgomery in close.

Johnny Forte, 127, Philadelphia, won a decision over Joey Archibald, 126, Providence, in the opening eight-round match. Archibald was down for a count of one in the fourth round.

Cochrane Bout To Feature USO Program

By the Associated Press

New York, July 7.—Starting off a series of fights in which Navy, Marine and Coast Guard battlers will do their stuff for the United Service organizations, Welterweight Champion Fred (Red) Cochrane will tangle with undefeated Ray Robinson in a 10-round nontitle tussle September 10, in Madison Square Garden.

Announcing the fight today, Promoter Mike Jacobs explained that the series will go through the fall and winter season, will be held in New York, Chicago and various other cities, and that the service boxers will appear "with the cooperation of the Navy Department" for the benefit of USO.

Cochrane enlisted in the Navy last August, shortly after taking the welterweight crown away from Fritzie Zivic in the year's most startling ring upset. Now a boatswain's mate, he is stationed at San Diego, Calif. In his two most recent ring appearances he whipped former lightweight boss, Lew Jenkins, and dropped a decision to Southpaw Garvey Young, of the Marines.

Chases Cochrane

Robinson, unbeaten in 2½ years of professional fighting, has been regarded for some time as the "uncrowned champion" of the 147 pounders. He has chased Cochrane for a title bout, but apparently will have to be satisfied, at least for the time being, with the over the weight waltz. The skinny Harlem Hammer is slated to take on Lightweight Boss Sammy Angott in the Garden July 31.

With the promised cooperation of the Navy, Jacobs has an imposing list of warriors to draw from. Light-heavyweight Champion Gas Lesnevich and little Marty Servo, who came close to upsetting Robinson a few weeks back, are both in the Coast Guard. Former Middleweight Champion Fred Apostoli, Ken Overlin and Billy Soose and Light-heavyweight Tommy Tucker are all in the Navy. Young and several other clouters are Marines.

Hagerstown Long Shot Grabs an Early Lead

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

A rich club owner who unblushingly confesses he doesn't know much about the science of baseball, has applied his own cure to bring a ball player out of a long batting slump, and it has worked magnificently.

POVICH

Lou Novikoff, the Cubs' Mad Russian outfielder, was the medium of the experiment of Phil K. Wrigley, and the success story leaked out only this week. It is told by a high Government official who was a visitor to Wrigley's Chicago office the other day.

In the midst of their conference, Wrigley's telephone bell tinkled and the message he received caused him to ejaculate "Great stuff!" His visitor asked him why the elation and Wrigley said, "Novikoff just hit a home run."

Was it customary for Wrigley to be advised whenever Novikoff made a home run, he was asked? No, said Wrigley, but he was very much interested, he added. And then he told the story.

"I guess Novikoff's my favorite ball player," he related. "On our minor league clubs, he led every league he played with in hitting, but every time we brought him up to the majors, he flopped. I knew he'd be a great favorite with Chicago fans if he started hitting, but Jimmy Wilson, our manager, told me Novikoff was trying to outguess the National League pitchers.

In the minors, Novikoff could try to guess with the pitchers and get his hits, but up here the pitching was too smart for him. He took too many strikes through the middle. It sickened me to see him stand with his bat on his shoulder. I brought him up to my office one day and talked to him. I told Lou he was taking too many called strikes. He has a powerful swing and I wanted him to keep swinging, I said, and stop guessing.

"To encourage him, I said I'd give him $10 ever time he struck out, if he struck out swinging. If he let a third strike pass with his bat on his shoulder he got nothing. He's been hitting .370 ever since and the whole experiment has cost me only $30."

It's going to be hard for the National League to laugh off what happened in the All-Star game at the Polo Grounds the other night. Heretofore, in its losing battles with the American League, the National used to have the consoling thought that the Yankees were the difference between the two leagues; that the Yankees always represented the balance of power, and otherwise there was little to choose between the two circuits.

But the Yankees had little to do with the 3-1 victory of the American Leaguers the other night, save for the four shutout innings pitched by Spud Chandler. Cleveland's Lou Boudreau hit the game's second pitch for a home run and Detroit's Rudy York banged a two-run homer a bit later in the first inning. And Al Benton of Detroit held the National League in check in the last five innings with his pitching.

Those two first-inning homers were swatted against the National League's best pitcher, Morton Cooper, who had nine straight National League wins and five shutouts to his credit. The prime insult to Cooper, however, was York's home run. Big Rudy took only a half swing to push the ball into the Polo Grounds stands in right field.

For years the National League has prided itself on its defensive play, but even in that department the American Leaguers excelled them the other night. Boudreau's grabs of two double play balls and his lunging catch of a line drive vied with Ken Keltner's one-hand pickup of Medwick's grounder for the fielding honors. The only error of the game was contributed by the National League when Second Baseman Jimmy Brown dropped a throw.

"I was down in Richmond over the past weekend," writes Mr. Irving Abramson, "and took in the Durham-Richmond game in the Piedmont League. Glancing over at third base I thought I saw a very familiar figure. It looked like Ben Chapman, the former Yankee and Senator, but since I had never seen or heard of him playing third, I guess my eyes played me false.

"But my first observations were correct. Chapman is managing the Richmond team and plays leftfield. But the third baseman was hurt that day and Ben played the hot corner.

"And then, wonder of wonders. A pinch hitter was used for the pitcher and our hero warmed up with ten tosses and then stepped onto the pitcher's mound. It was the eighth inning. Chapman fanned two out of three men and in the ninth inning he walked one man and then started a double play on an attempted sacrifice bunt. I'd say pretty nimble, yet, for an old man."

Trader Hornsby Does All Right With Players Nobody Wanted

Roger's Unusual Recruiting Methods Have Even His Fort Worth Rooters Confused

By the Associated Press

Fort Worth, Tex., July 7.—The boys were trying to figure out how much the present Fort Worth ball club cost Rogers Hornsby and finally decided it must run in the neighborhood of $30 and a spare tire.

The eminent trader Hornsby has materially changed the personnel and Texas League standing of his Cats this season by the inexpensive process of signing players nobody else wanted.

They say his typical greeting is: "Hello. Sign here. Take right field."

Fort Worth fans didn't know Alex Hooks, an Oklahoma City castoff, even was in Texas until he hit four-for-four against Shreveport.

Joe Winfield started as a pitcher two hours after signing.

Bill Barisoff came by train from the Pacific Coast, grabbed a sandwich, cap and uniform and has been in rightfield ever since.

In the line-up today is only one regular who opened the season and he's in left instead of center field.

But the club that started out to give Dallas a fight for the cellar now is in the first division, playing whirlwind ball and drawing 25 per cent more fans than last year's team.

Hornsby believes it's good business to look at a player—if it doesn't cost anything.

His pickups include Third Baseman Flea Clifton and Second Baseman Rabbit Warstler, former big leaguer. In addition to Hooks and Winfield, five others were obtained on option.

Before the season opened Hornsby bought two players and purchased another later but made up for these lapses by selling a like number.

But the fans are used to his lightning changes. It wouldn't surprise them if Babe Ruth floated down some night, disguised as a barrage balloon, in time to play the second game of a double-header.

Mrs. W. R. Stokes Scores at Manor

Mrs. W. R. Stokes won her third straight weekly golf tournament at Manor Country Club yesterday by firing low gross of 80 in an event held in her honor.

Low net was taken by Mrs. Max Taylor with 93, 13—78. Second was Mrs. R. N. Trexise with 102,23—79. J. E. Nell won the prize for the most fours with six, over Mrs. J. Tronheiser who had five. Most sixes was won by Mrs. D. N. Platt, with 10, while Mrs. T. N. Beavers was second with seven.

Low net for the guests was taken by Mrs. M. J. Torlinski with 85, 10—75.

Poland, Baski Fight to Draw

New York, July 7 (AP).—Bill Poland, 193½, New York, and Joe Baski, 203, also from New York, fought to an eight-round draw in the main event of a fight card at the Bronx Coliseum tonight.

Baski suffered a severe cut over his right eye in the fifth, but was able to hold his own the remainder of the way.

Betz Advances In Illinois Tennis

Evanston, Ill., July 7 (AP).—Pauline Betz of Los Angeles and Catherine Wolf of Elkhart, Ind., the top seeded pair in the women's division of the North Shore Tennis Tournament, each advanced to the semifinals today with straight set victories.

Miss Betz disposed of Mitzi Rsdek, Chicago, 6—1, 6—1, and Miss Wolf defeated Eleanor Cuhingham, Chicago, 6—3, 6—1.

Nats Pound Camp Lee Hurlers, Win Relief Game, 5-2

Ray Scarborough And Jack Wilson Combine as Mates Gather 12 Hits

By the Associated Press

Richmond, Va., July 7.—The Washington Nats, batting out 12 safeties off two former big league tossers, whipped the Camp Lee soldiers, 5-2, here today in an exhibition battle played for benefit of soldiers' relief fund before 1500 persons.

The Nats, who played without the help of their stars, touched Southpaw Porter Vaughan, formerly of the Philadelphia Athletics, for a pair of runs in the third inning and two more in the seventh and sandwiched in a single tally in the sixth.

Rookie Ray Scarborough, the Nats' mound starter, held the soldiers scoreless for 3 1-3 innings, then gave way to Jack Wilson, veteran relief hurler, who gave Camp Lee runs in the fourth and seventh frames.

Scarborough opened the third inning for the American Leaguers with a single, banging the ball into right field, and this started a series of four consecutive blows that produced the first two tallies.

Henry Nowak, right-handed hurler belonging to the St. Louis Cardinals, pitched the final two innings for the soldiers. While he allowed three hits, Nowak kept out of serious trouble, holding the Nats scoreless.

Johnny Sullivan and Jimmy Repass, first batters to face Nowak in the eighth, cracked out singles, but Nowak then whiffed both Wilson and Bruce Campbell and George Case, center fielder, popped out to left field.

The only extra base blow of the game was a double against the left field fence in the second inning by Tony Ruffa, the soldier's rightfielder.

Washington played without the services of Johnny Spence, outfielder, and Sid Hudson, ace pitcher, who are in Cleveland tonight to play with the American League team against the service all-stars.

Shell Shortage This Season Won't Bother Hunters

By the Associated Press

If America's nimrods can find time to go hunting this fall, then find some way of getting some place to hunt, they won't have to worry about ammunition for their rifles and shot guns, Government sources predicted today.

Despite War Production Board orders which stopped manufacture of sporting ammunition May 31, these officials, who preferred not to be quoted by name, explained that dealers and most hunters have heavy stocks on hand and would not feel the pinch this season.

During the last war, sales of hunting licenses increased, it was recalled. Transportation difficulties under present and future restrictions may have an effect on sales this fall and next, however.

Packers Will Meet Army Team Sept. 13

Green Bay, Wis., July 7 (AP).—George Lambeau, coach of the Green Bay Packers, announced today his team would play the Army's "Western" All-Star team at Marquette Stadium in Milwaukee Sunday, September 13.

Madison previously had been mentioned as the possible site of the game.

Lambeau said approval had been obtained from Col. John Thomas Taylor, in charge of Army emergency relief with the Public Relations Office in Washington. All receipts will go to the Army Emergency Relief Fund.

The Packers will begin training for the game and their National League football season August 8 at Green Bay.

South Team Rates Edge In I. L. Game

By the United Press

Buffalo, N. Y., July 7.—A Southern squad composed of Newark, Jersey City, Baltimore and Syracuse players held the edge in batting and hurling as participants began arriving tonight for the International League's first All-Star game, to be staged for the benefit of the bat and ball funds of the United States and Canada.

A capacity throng of 15,000 fans was expected to witness tomorrow night's contest in Offerman Stadium. Seventy-five per cent of the receipts will go to the American fund and the balance to the Dominion's.

Attesting to the quality of both the Southern and Northern teams was the comment by League President J. (Shag) Shaughnessy on his arrival today. "I wouldn't mind being manager of either team," he said, "you'll see better than a half-million dollars in ball players out there tomorrow night."

Newark's Bill Meyer was chosen to pilot the Southern squad, with Al Vincent of the Buffalo Bisons subbing as Northern manager for Montreal's Clyde Sukeforth, whose Selective Service Board took prior call on his time.

Tentative starting line-ups announced by the rival managers were:

SOUTH—Johnson, Newark, s. s.; Stirnweiss, Newark, 2 b.; Ed Robinson, Baltimore, 1 b.; Kelleher, Newark, l. f.; Edwards, Baltimore, c. f.; Lemon, Baltimore, 3 b.; Methany, Newark, r. f.; Peland, Jersey City, c.; Bobby Coombs, Jersey City, p.

NORTH—Rojek, Montreal, s. s.; Wyrostek, Toronto, l. f.; Burge, Montreal, 1 b.; Meyer, Buffalo, 2 b.; Moore, Montreal, c. f.; Graham, Montreal, r. f.; Rubeling, Toronto, 3 b.; Dapper, Montreal, c.; Strincevich, Toronto, p.

Probably the most potent of the Southern All-Stars' array of heavy hitters to be feared by Northern moundsmen was Newark's Francis Kelleher, currently batting .364 in the Buffalo ball park. Kelleher's eight safe blows here comprise six over-the-fence wallops and two doubles.

Tris Speaker's Condition Called 'Fair' by Doctor

By International News Service

Cleveland, July 7.—The condition of Tris Speaker, in a Cleveland hospital feared to be suffering from pneumonia, was pronounced "fair" tonight.

The one-time star center fielder and former manager of the Cleveland Indians, was rushed to the hospital when his temperature soared to 104 degrees. His physician, Dr. Edward Castle, said Speaker had been suffering from a heavy cold. He said he feared pneumonia had developed, and that he was preparing to place the Gray Eagle in an oxygen tent.

Surf Club Plays Kavakos Tonight

Young Lefty Sullivan, who on Monday night held the heavy hitting Kavakos Grill ten to two hits, will pitch tonight for the Surf Club at Washington Softball Stadium when it tries to hold on to its second place tie with Kavakos in the Sport Center Night League. The Bladensburgers will have as their opponents the ever dangerous Rusty Kuker and his FBI supporting cast.

In the second game of a double bill Kavakos Grill will take on Post Office, a newcomer to local softball ranks, which has been showing lots of power. Sonny Sondheimer will pitch for the mail slingers and "Cannonball" Smith for the Kavakoans.

Surf Club's victory over Kavakos sends the teams into a tie for second place and perches Standard Linen, sparked by the sensational flinging of Benny Rubin, on the top of the heap. Kavakos and Standrd Linen will meet Monday night in a game which will either decide the first half pennant or throw the race into a triple tie.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, July 7.—Did the baseball boys do a little good-natured cheating on hizzoner the mayor at the Polo Grounds Monday night.

Hizzoner, who likes baseball but is so proud of his blackouts that he is thinking of ordering all sailors on leave here to douse the love light in their eyes during blackouts, did a nice thing for the baseball boys. The All-Star game, you know, was held up for 52 minutes by rain. On top of this, the boys had been told to get the business over with by 9:10, in order to give the customers a chance to get out of the park and into some friendly subway or saloon before all the lamp wicks in the city were trimmed.

CONSIDINE

Now All-Star games are always majestically slow. There are many substitutions, and even the umpires take up some time, because a National Leaguer will work behind the plate for the first four and a half innings, and then give way to an American Leaguer. This switch necessitates the changing of certain protective armor the boys must wear, and helps use up time. Hizzoner, realizing all these things, gave the boys some borrowed time. He told them they could keep playing right down to 9:30, blackout time.

We can't be too certain of these allegations because the biscuit we wear on our wrist is full of carbon or confusion and doesn't keep the best time in the world. But watches all around us in the press box suddenly seemed to start running faster at 9:25 than the big official clock in center field.

The big clock began cramming about 120 seconds into each minute. It took it five minutes to move from 9:25 to 9:27, at which point the game finally ended. When it eventually read 10 o'clock it was 15 minutes slow.

We don't know about hizzoner's watch. Maybe it kept in step with the Big Benjamin in center field. But if it did, hizzoner ought to take it back and demand his money back.

Anyway, no harm was done. The game went the full nine innings to the complete satisfaction of even the National League rooters (who agreed, or should have agreed, that their side would not have won if given 18 minutes more of play.)

The National League, which was first to accept night baseball in the majors, has now become the more conservative wing in this respect and is fighting tooth and nail every effort by the American League to broaden arc light baseball.

This paradox was made evident again on Monday when the National League voted unanimously against old Clark Griffith's request that his ailing Nats be permitted to play night games exclusively for the rest of the baseball year, excepting Saturdays, Sundays and holidays. Judge Landis, who likes Griff very much but dislikes violent changes in baseball tradition much more than he likes Griff, cast the deciding vote. It broke the tie, and Griff doesn't get his more abundant night life for the Capital.

The American League was all in favor of it because Griff's team is the worst he has had in a generation, yet because Washington was given more night games than any other team, at the last winter meeting, the club is drawing more customers than it has drawn in years. If he had gained his point, Griff might have finished the 1942 season with a handsome profit as well as a last place club, a feat which might have sent Gerry Nugent to an early grave.

Fisher, Former Harvard Grid Mentor, Dies

By the Associated Press

Newton, Mass., July 7.—Robert T. "Bob" Fisher, head coach of football at Harvard University during the decade following the first World War, died today at the Newton Hospital after a heart attack.

Fisher, who was 53 years old, was a gridiron pupil of the noted Percy Haughton, famed in Harvard coaching history, and he coached the only Harvard eleven ever to play in the Rose Bowl. That was in 1920, when Harvard defeated Oregon, 7 to 6.

While an undergraduate, Fisher played guard on the Crimson team and was twice chosen—in 1910 and 1911—a member of the late Walter Camp's All-America teams. He took over the Harvard coaching berth in 1919.

In business life, Fisher was manager of Boston Office of Spencer, Trask & Co., an investment house.

He leaves three sons, Robert T., jr., and William O. and John W., all of whom have been active in Harvard sports.

During the first World War, Fisher served as a captain in the Army Air Service and, at the end of the war, he went to Harvard to serve as head coach until 1926.

He was captain in 1911 of the first Harvard team to play against Princeton University.

Sidney Wood Is Eliminated In Net Upset

By the Associated Press

Orange, N. J., July 7.—Don Hawley of Orange, winner of the title in 1937 and 1938 but an "outsider" in the current series, stripped the New Jersey Men's Tennis Tournament of its top-ranked player today with a 6—1, 6—3 upset of Sidney B. Wood, New York veteran who once held a place among the game's best.

Hawley marched into the quarter-final round with seven other contenders by the simple process of letting Wood beat himself. The match was characterized by long rallies in which the former Davis Cup star found Hawley too steady and committed almost all of the errors.

Wood's elimination left Francis X. Shields of New York, his former Davis Cup doubles partner, as the tournament's seeded favorite. The second-ranked Shields won three matches today and seemed to improve as he went along. Shields' victims in order were Don Kaysen, New York, 6—4, 6—4; Ted Schien, New York, 6—2, 6—1, and James McGuire, Jackson Heights, N. Y., 6—3, 6—1.

Advancing with Shields was Budge Patty of Los Angeles, Calif., sixth in the domestic seedings. In the second round he defeated Bob Tobacco of New York, 6—2, 6—2; and in the third Armando Vega of Mexico City, fourth seeded in the foreign list, 6—2, 7—5.

Others to gain the quarter-finals were Francisco Segura of Ecuador, who heads the foreign contingent; Alejo Russell of Argentina and Ladislav Hecht of Brooklyn, N. Y., second and third, respectively, on the foreign list, and Charles Mattman of Forest Hills, N. Y., and E. Victor Seixas of Philadelphia, No. 3 and No. 4, respectively, in the domestic seedings.

Doubles play will occupy tomorrow's program with singles scheduled to resume Thursday.

Fort Washington Beats Sage A. C. Ten by 12-6

A. G. School Detachment of Fort Washington was credited with a 12-to-6 softball victory over Sage Athletic Club yesterday as the post's new league opened. Cusic led the winners' hitting with a home run, triple and single.

Geisel, 'Beaned' Umpire, Ready To Leave Hospital

By the Associated Press

Chicago, July 7.—Harry Geisel, veteran American League umpire who suffered a severe brain concussion when knocked down accidentally in the New York Yankee-White Sox game here June 27, may be released from Mercy Hospital in a few days, Dr. John D. Claridge said today.

Geisel's condition was very good now, the physician said, but indicated that the umpire may elect to rest a few more days after his release before returning to duty.

Geisel was knocked down in a collision with Yankee Pitcher Spud Chandler in a play at third base. Geisel had rushed from behind the plate to cover the play and Chandler had hurled over to back up a throw from the outfield.

Mellonas Retires From Post League

Mellonas Cafe's baseball team in The Washington Post-Industrial League was forced to retire from competition yesterday following its third forfeit of the season. The withdrawal left five clubs to battle for the championship.

Today's action in the league sends the leading Center Market nine, first half winner, against Cameo Furniture on the North Ellipse at 5:30.

Osborne Claims Fairfax Record

Haynes Osborne had his putter in good working order yesterday as he lowered the Fairfax Country Club course record claimed by himself by three strokes with rounds of 35-32 for a 67.

The Fairfax pro was playing with his father, F. M. Osborne, E. L. Mason and George Cruzen. Par for the course is 71.

Bettina and Dorazio Will Meet on July 27

Philadelphia, July 7 (AP).—Melio Bettina, contender for Joe Louis' heavyweight championship, and Gus Dorazio of Philadelphia have been matched in a return 10-round bout, Promoter Herman Taylor announced today. The bout will be held at Shibe Park Monday night, July 27.

In their first meeting at the arena last March 31, Bettina won a close 10-round decision with a last-round rally.

More and More, Men Turn to Quality Cigars

Size alone does not give solid satisfaction.

It takes quality tobacco to produce the real enjoyment that makes a good smoke such a grand "refresher" in these days of tough, exacting jobs.

That is why such an army of smokers is turning to El Producto.

Smokers revel in its smooth, distinctive taste. They like the comfortable mildness that never lets them down. They enjoy workmanship that gives a slow, uniform burn to generous shapes and sizes.

Try a pocketful of El Producto. You'll appreciate how quality brings real enjoyment to smoking.

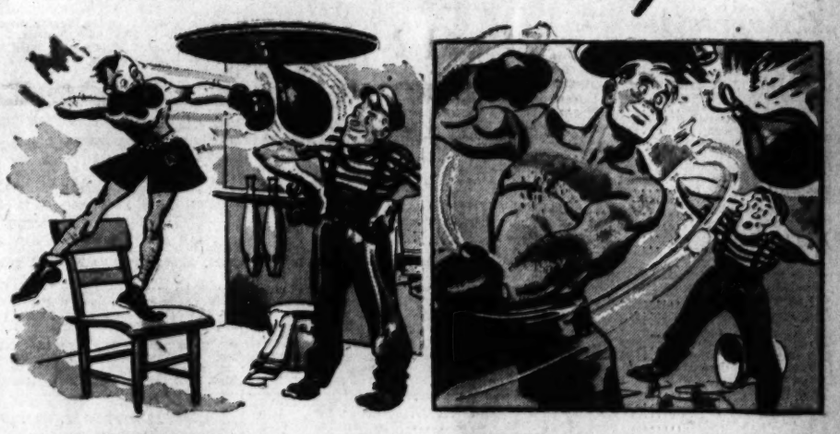
Meet the new champ!



1—Challenger! When IMPERIAL entered the ring, it was just a bantam, challenging hundreds of long-established whiskies—but it had plenty to win on! A glorious flavor, an incomparable smoothness—and experts predicted it would be a big-timer in no time!

2—First-round winner! And right they were! IMPERIAL'S growth was something amazing. It was the big-hit whiskey everywhere it was introduced. And such a hit that in one state, for instance, it hopped ahead of 332 best-sellers into first place and has stayed there ever since.

3—National champ! Meet the new flavor champ—try IMPERIAL! Taste why it's America's fastest-growing whiskey. Ask for IMPERIAL at your bar—or get a take-home bottle today. See for yourself why this grand whiskey literally leaped from challenger to champ!

Taste why it's America's fastest-growing whiskey!

IMPERIAL IS GREAT FOR 2 BIG REASONS! "Flavor-peaked" for extra richness! "Velveted" for extra smoothness!

Weatherite Wins Feature of Opening Day at Hagerstown

5000 See Filly Come From Last

Randle's Queed 2d, Never Home 3d as Winner Scores by Neck to Pay $9.70

By Walter Haight
A Staff Correspondent

Hagerstown, Md., July 7.—Racing moved back into Maryland today after an absence of seven weeks with the opening of the 10-day meeting at this point. A crowd of 5000 greeted the first of the five half-mile meetings and saw Mrs. G. O. Russell's Weatherite win the Harry E. Bester Purse, featuring the inaugural program. Weatherite, a 4-year-old daughter of Prince of Wales and notorious as a front-runner, reversed her habits today and came from last position to win by a neck for her first victory of the year in eight tries.

Second money in the field of eight operating over the Mason-Dixon course of 130 feet more than 5 furlongs was Mrs. L. E. Crowell's Randle's Queen. The third position was taken by George S. Fockler's Never Home.

Despite the fact that Weatherite had been running in better company on the mile tracks, she paid her backers a $9.70 mutuel. Jockey Al Bocson did the riding. He got the filly off poorly, but rode a brilliant race from that point to the wire. He was forced to weave the Prince of Wales miss between horses to reach contention. She wore down Never Home, the pacemaker, and held Randle's Queen safe in the three-way photo finish.

Owaller, well played, lost her chances and knocked Amperage out of the running by going wide at the first turn.

The secondary feature, the fourth event, was taken by Everett Brining's Marandan, the favorite in the field of eight. She was well handled by Jockey Butsy Hernandez. Brazen Hussy was second and Silver Beam was third. Marandan hasn't been out of the money this year and she hasn't been worse than second since leaving the milers last spring.

The daily double on the winners of the first and second races—Royal Fleet and Julette—paid $56.10.

Edict Banning Motor Racing Is Postponed

Office of Defense Transportation said yesterday that the effective date of orders prohibiting automobile and motorcycle racing for the duration would be postponed to July 31.

The orders, issued as a rubber conservation measure, would have taken effect Friday. No reason for the extension was announced immediately.

Kentucky Grand Circuit Meeting Is Canceled

Louisville, Ky., June 7 (AP).—Cancellation of the Kentucky State Fair and Horse Show for the duration also has caused cancellation of the Grand Circuit meeting scheduled to have been held at the fair, September 7 to 11, Robert Jewell, manager of the fair, said today.

The Louisville Grand Circuit meeting was to have followed the Milwaukee trots.

Horses Will Pull Fans to Trotting Races in New York

By the Associated Press

Westbury, N. Y., July 7.—You'll use a horse if you come to the trotting races out here on Long Island starting Monday.

Roosevelt Raceway officials have arranged for some 20 converted horse-drawn market wagons and a tally-ho or two instead of buses, to meet trains at Westbury and nearby Mineola and bring fans to the track during the 55-day meeting.

Eddie Johnston Retains M. A. Junior Title

Baltimore Student Has 145 Total

Skinker Is Runner-up With 148 After Two Are Tied at 74 in Morning Shooting

Baltimore's Eddie Johnston successfully defended his Middle Atlantic Junior Championship yesterday at Congressional Country Club, the 20-year-old U. of Baltimore senior posting rounds of 74 and 71 for a 145 total, just one shot over par for the day.

Earle Skinker, who was runner-up to Johnston last year at Woodmont, also took a second-best role in the small field of 10 yesterday with a pair of 74s for a 148 score. The 20-year-old Columbia Club player was in a familiar role, for he was runner-up two weeks ago in the District Junior at Washington.

Johnston and Skinker were tied at the end of the morning round, each with 74. Skinker picked up four shots in the three finishing holes with a pair of birdies and a par as the champion had two pars and a double bogey six on the seventeenth.

Skinker Ahead—In Time

Skinker played way ahead of Johnston and had finished 36 holes with his pair of 74s as the latter came to the ninth hole with a 74 and 37, thus needing 36 to win and 37 to tie for the par 35 back nine. Young Eddie went to work and knocked off eight straight pars and on the last hole dropped a 30-foot birdie putt for a 3 and 34 and a sub-par round in the afternoon.

Johnston has proven a likely successor to Otto Greiner and Bobby Brownell as the outstanding junior in this section as in addition to his two straight Middle Atlantic crowns he has also won the Maryland Junior Open twice and the Maryland Intercollegiates three straight times.

Barney Welsh Heads Entries In M. A. Tennis

Twenty-five entrants, headed by Defending Champion Barney Welsh, have been received and a complete list of 60 is predicted for the annual Middle Atlantic Men's Tennis Tournament opening Saturday at Columbia Country Club.

Among the entrants for singles and doubles are Baltimore City Champion Tom Thaler and also Alex Keiles, former Monumental City champion, and Frank Roberts.

Local competition for Welsh will come from Davie Johnsen, whom he defeated recently in the City of Washington finals; Dick Murphy, one of the District's better players, making his debut; Ensign Don Leavens, U. S. N. R.; Sergt. Buddy Adair, Hugh Lynch and many others.

Bud Chandler, former national intercollegiate champion and a sensation in the City of Washington Tournament before eliminated by Johnsen in the semifinals, won't play in the singles, but will compete in the doubles. He did not play doubles in the city tournament.

Entries will close Thursday at 6 p. m. with Buddy Goeltz, Columbia pro, at the club tennis shop. Fees are $2 for singles and $3 for doubles.

Heurich Routs H. & J. Nine By 14-4 Count

An 18-hit assault, including two doubles, a triple and three home runs, earned the Heurich Brewers a 14-4 triumph over H. and J. Construction nine yesterday in The Washington Post-Industrial League. Bill Liggett and Art Lacy shared an 8-hit pitching chore for the winners.

After a slow start the Brewers broke a 3-3 deadlock with a trio of runs in the fifth inning, then scored in every remaining stanza to win handily. Pat Fenlon and Mack Posnack, with four hits apiece, paced the winning attack. Home runs were smashed by Len Sokol, Zello Lagos and Lacy.

Two Bowling Records Fall In Navy League

Dolly Coppridge of the Designs team in the Navy Bowling League at Penn Recreation, led last night with a 155 single and 391 set, both records for women for the season. Sheppard, Tars, had 167 to lead for single, while Warner, Balls of Fire, had 393. The Design team posted high of 596-1595. Miss Coppridge tops the women in average with 112.

NEW RECREATION

The Census Bureau-Population Division mixed league at New Recreation found Miss Cannon's 106 and Miss Gardner's 311 leading the women, while Robinson's 126-309 was best effort for the men. Miss Gardner's Commandos team won all three from the Skeeters, while both the Yanks and Flying Tigers won a pair each from the Bombardiers and Jeeps, respectively.

CLARENDON

The usual Wednesday night handicap is scheduled for Clarendon Bowling Center starting at 8 o'clock and Manager Goldberg is guaranteeing top prize of $25. In connection with the tournament there will be a mixed doubles exhibition with Aline Fairchild and Chick Darr rolling against Madge Lewis and Al Wright. The special match also starts at 8 and spectators are invited.

GREENWAY

Joe Freschi, of the Bendetto quintet, topped the Greenway Commercial League with a 161 single and record 408 set. The Walsh Grill boys whitewashed Northeast Variety and posted a season record team game of 637 and a 1676 set with Bill Fisher leading the way with 124-351. Ed Wolfe's 128-358 helped Weltman's Liquor take three from Eve Rude Beauty Salon. Other highs were Mike Owens' 134-380, Bill Pruitt's 134-376 and Charley Fyfe's 136-371.

FOURTH INNING

SERVICE—Sid Hudson, Washington right-hander, went to the mound for the American League. Sturm walked. Andres grounded into a fast double play, Rizzuto to Doerr to York. Keltner made a bare-handed pickup of Pytlak's roller and threw him out. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

AMERICAN—Padgett made a fine running catch of Keltner's foul fly. Rosar popped foul to Sturm. Hudson grounded to Travis and was thrown out. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

FIFTH INNING

SERVICE—Stan Spence of Washington, a left-handed hitter, went to right field for the American League. Rizzuto threw out Rigney. Mullin grounded to Doerr and was tossed out. McCoy went out the same way. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

AMERICAN—Rigney made a flashy pickup of Rizzuto's bunt down the third-base line and threw him out. Rigney also tried a one-handed stop of a bounder by Spence and missed, the play being scored as a single. Williams walked. J. DiMaggio bounded into a double play, Andres to Sturm. No runs, one hit, no errors, one left.

SIXTH INNING

SERVICE—Padgett bounced to Hudson and was thrown out easily. Travis lined to Keltner. Grace popped foul to Keltner. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

AMERICAN—The stadium was entirely blacked out for one minute in a prearranged and announced test before the American Leaguers came to bat. York was called out on strikes. Doerr also was called out on three straight strikes, Keltner lined a single to left. After taking two called strikes and looking at one ball, Rosar banged a single past McCoy, sending Keltner to third. Hudson grounded out to Andres. No runs, two hits, no errors, two left.

SEVENTH INNING

SERVICE — George McQuinn replaced York at first. Sturm singled to right for the first hit off Hudson. The crowd cheered, and with the count one and one, Andres singled sharply to left, Sturm holding up at second. The cheers grew to a roar and Chester Hajduk, former White Sox farm hand, now in the Navy, was sent to run for Sturm. Pytlak fanned. John Lucadello, former Browns' infielder, now in the Navy, batted for Rigney. Lucadello grounded into a fast double play, Hudson to Rizzuto to McQuinn. No runs, two hits, no errors, one left.

AMERICAN—Mickey Harris, former Boston Red Sox southpaw, now in the Army, went to the mound and Sam Chapman, recently of the Philadelphia Athletics and now in the Navy, went to center field, and Hajduk took over. Rizzuto doubled to right. When he took a big lead off second, Pytlak threw to second and Rizzuto raced to third for a stolen base. Spence was thrown out by McCoy, Rizzuto holding third. Williams drove a high fly over Padgett's head, in left center, for a triple, scoring Rizzuto. Joe DiMaggio popped to Hajduk. McQuinn tripled to right center, scoring Williams. Doerr popped a foul to Pytlak back of the plate. Two runs, three hits, no errors, one left.

EIGHTH INNING

SERVICE—Tex Hughson of the Boston Red Sox, a right-hander, went to the mound. Chapman grounded out to McQuinn, unassisted. Tommy Heath, former with the Phils and now in the Army, batted for McCoy. He raised an easy fly, which J. DiMaggio and Spence permitted to fall between them for a double. Padgett filed to Williams. Travis grounded out to Rizzuto. No runs, one hit, no errors, one left.

AMERICAN—John Grodzicki, big right-hander, formerly in the Cardinals' system and now in the Army, went to the mound and Mueller took over second base. Keltner was thrown out by Andres. Rosar flied deep to Chapman. Hughson was called out on strikes. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

NINTH INNING

Irishman Gets Check for Tonight's Bout

Tommy O'Toole, the former prize fighter now a headline wrestler, is having the stethoscope applied to him by the wrestlers' physician, Dr. I. Rutkoski, for tonight's feature match against Michele Leone of Boston at Turner's Arena. Looks pretty good, huh?

Leone Meets Tom O'Toole Here Tonight

Michele Leone, the fast-moving Boston grappler, will seek his second straight victory locally in a headline role tonight at Turner's Arena. Leone's opponent is Tommy O'Toole, the handsome Irish boy, and the time limit is one hour.

Both O'Toole and Leone, it developed, are desirous of meeting Jimmy Londos, the Gorgeous Greek. O'Toole twice has faced the champion, losing both times, but not without a struggle. Leone, however, claims Londos deliberately has avoided him, pointing out that several times in foreign countries he had challenged Londos, but his defi never was accepted.

Leone turned in an impressive victory over Lou Plummer last Wednesday in 18 minutes, while on the same card O'Toole was rubbing out Milo Steinborn in four minutes. Steinborn claims it was the fastest victory any one has scored over him.

Leone bears a strong resemblance to Londos. He speaks eight languages and has traveled in 20 countries.

Lots of action is expected in that two-man team match in which Maurice LaChappelle, the French star, and John Melas, up-and-coming young Greek grappler, will oppose Al Norcus and Angelo Savoldi. This will be two out of three falls.

Johnny Long of Texas will make his bow in a 30-minute scrap against Joe Vanski, the Russian, opening the show at 9 o'clock.

Chicago Stadium Closes For Summer; No Talent

Chicago, July 7 (AP).—The Chicago Stadium's outdoor boxing arena, seating 10,000, will not be opened this summer because of the lack of talent, General Manager William Henry Burke said today.

Fishing with JACK BELL

When it comes to producing big trout the rest of the waters in North America — including the famous Nipigon in Ontario—will have to go some to beat a specimen just taken from Rangeley Lake in Maine.

JACK BELL

The "Goliath" weighed 7¾ pounds, and was taken by Robert Cushman of Auburn, Me. It tops by a half pound the largest brookie previously taken this season in Maine.

There is every reason to believe that trout caught in Maine waters shall be at the top of the list of first prize winners for the country. Maine has had its greatest season of trout fishing in history, with the last part of August and September to look forward to.

News of the first tuna of Maine is expected most any time now. Stray schools have been sighted, and boat skippers are preparing for them and the sports fishermen who go after the fish. A total of 150,000 pounds of the blue fins were taken at Bailey Island alone last season.

The Pemaquid Sportsmen's and Tuna Club, which boasts bluefin fishing in Muscongus Bay, is ready for the season. The biggest fish of the year was taken off New Harbor last season, a 975-pounder harpooned by Elliot Gilbert.

The small mouth bass season is hot all over Maine, Meddybemps, and Big Lake in Washington County being the hot spots, with the Belgrade lakes running a close second.

Warden Supervisor Raymond Morse reports fresh run salmon in the pools of the Narraguagus River, at Cherryfield and the Dennys River, at Dennysville, Me. Dr. Howard F. Kane of Washington is now on the Dennys River trying his luck for fresh run salmon. Dr. Kane is fishing with Bill Edson, famous angler, of Maine and former world champion fly caster. Bill is also the inventor of several killing salmon and trout flies, his most famous the Edson Light and Dark Tigers.

Anglers can find good accommodations at both towns. The pools are all within easy walking distance.

Donald Brooks of Augusta, actually lossoed a salmon at Moosehead Lake recently. He was fishing with two flies—a Grey Ghost and an Edson Tiger on the dropper. A salmon struck at the Edson Tiger, missed, and in the commotion hit the Grey Ghost with its tail in such a way that it swung around and formed a loop in the leader. Firmly entangled, the fish was brought to net after some bucking that would do credit to a broncho. Brooks is thinking of wearing spurs on his next fishing trip.

Sportsmen who would like to know just what is being done about District game law enforcement on the Potomac River will be plesaed to learn that recently an arrest was made for dip-netting.

Officers of the Seventh Precinct of Metropolitan Police received a tip that a man was dip-netting fish just above Chain Bridge. Officers A. F. Scheible and E. F. Talbot made a hurried run up to Chain Bridge and caught the fisherman "with the goods"—several large white shad and other fish, all taken by means of a dip net.

At 8:30 o'clock tonight "Waltonians" of the Washington Chapter of the Izaak Walton League will be entertained by the showing of a colored motion picture, after the chapter's regular business meeting. Sportsmen are invited to see this first public showing.

This picture, entitled "The Garrison-Mulkern Tarpon Expedition," was made by Bill Garrison and Frank Mulkern, two of Washington's most persistent anglers, during their recent trip to Boca Grande, Fla.

To prove they were catching fish, Bill sent several specimens to Washington, enough to provide a big feed for less fortunate anglers, at the Monday Angler's luncheon in the Viking Room of the Neptune Restaurant.

Bill and Frank are supported by a fine cast, including "Kingfish" Al Day, "Jewish" Fred Orssinger, and "Swordfish Bass" Jack Stowell.

Earl C. Smith Called Power Behind the House Farm Bloc

By Charles O. Gridley
Copyright by Chicago Sun

It is well known in Congress that Earl Clemons Smith, president of the Illinois Agricultural Association since 1926, is the real power behind the adamant stand of the House to preserve parity prices on surplus farm products.

Smith's influence is conceded not only by Congressmen, but also by officials of the Department of Agriculture who know him and respect the powerful Nationwide organization he has built up, through which he probably pulls more wires than any other farm leader in the United States.

The existing confusion in the public mind about the present congressional deadlock over the 680 million dollar agricultural appropriation bill can be clarified to some extent by an account of Smith's rise to power.

He's Also a Banker

As a lieutenant of Sam H. Thompson of Quincy, Ill., former president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, Smith exhibited unusual ability in the early days of the farm bloc in Washington. His business ability obscures his record as a farmer, for at 56 he is a banker and an executive of several insurance companies. His home is at Detroit, Pike County, Ill., but his business address is in Chicago.

Thompson retired as head of the Farm Bureau Federation in 1930, and Edward A. O'Neal, an Alabaman, replaced him. By that time, Smith had been recognized as one of the most effective pleaders for agriculture before congressional committees, though his appearances here were infrequent—and still are.

President Roosevelt—who was later to refer to him in 1941 as "the John L. Lewis of the agriculture movement—called Smith into conference at Hyde Park after his election in 1932, along with Henry A. Wallace and others, to aid in formulating the new Administration's farm program.

Smith at that time joined his fellow farm advisers in urging some plan which would boost farm prices to a level comparable to that of the pre-World War I period. He has stuck to that theory steadfastly, which explains much of what has transpired in the latest farm fight.

Originally Backed President

During the first Roosevelt Administration, Smith, always a staunch Republican, stood firmly by the Administration. He supported the soil conservation substitute for the AAA Act, after the latter had been killed by the Supreme Court in 1937. Then there began a cleavage between Smith and the Department of Agriculture.

Smith may be said, on the basis of his record, to favor a farm autonomy, with parity prices maintained by Congressional edict. That reduces the farmer's dependence on Government subsidies and decreases his reliance on the Department of Agriculture and the Administration in power for financially successful operation.

The greater the farm subsidy, according to Smith's reasoning, the more extensive the power of the Department of Agriculture over the farmer. If farm prices fall below parity, the difference must be made up from subsidy payments out of the Treasury, hence parity must be upheld.

As usual in clashes between the House and Senate affecting agriculture, the House is standing with the powerful farm organizations, because a majority of its members are responsive to their influence, while the smaller membership of the Senate follows the leadership of the Administration.

For a Dominant Farm Group

As John L. Lewis visualizes a dominant labor power in the United States, with himself as its unchallenged leader, Smith is said to believe in a dominant agricultural organization in which the combined farm organizations exercising a balance of power, would dictate farm prices and maintain a constant prosperity for agriculture, not dependent on Government aid. Smith, however, has given no such indication of personal ambition on his own behalf.

President O'Neal of the American Farm Bureau Federation is an affable Southerner, picked for his office to strengthen the farm organization in the Southern States and because he is a Democrat, but Smith is spoken of here as the real brains of the Congressional farm bloc.

The United States is now the only warring Nation in which officials responsible for the success of the war effort do not control use of its agricultural surpluses without restriction as they do the use of critical materials. Here Congress has decreed that prices must be maintained at a specified levels. The explanation is that Smith has the ear of enough House farm spokesmen to enforce his determination that farm prices must be maintained at parity levels, with which the Government may not interfere.

Opposed by Garm Groups

The growth of Smith's power has not escaped leaders of other farm organizations friendly to the Administration and important supporters of the Administration's war effort in other fields. In a recent open letter, they banded together to express their support of the President's stand that surplus grain should be available for sale at subparity prices for feed, alcohol manufacture and other necessary war uses. In their action, Smith's critics see the beginning of a strong opposition to the domination of the Farm Bureau Federation, the National Grange and Allied groups in the agricultural field, under Smith's direction.

The Illinois farm leader has his foes in Congress, and their opposition is directed at him rather than the federation. One of them, chairman of a committee dealing with agricultural legislation, said recently:

"Smith is more trouble to the farmers than the boll weevil."

Another House Committee Test Sought on Sales Taxes

The House Ways and Means Committee entered the last lap in its consideration of its $5,924,000,000 tax bill, but leaders said no final decisions will be reached before the close of the week.

Allowing for last-minute differences, chiefly over phraseology of disputed tax language, the House was making tentative arrangements to open debate next Tuesday, and conclude action next week.

Another Sales Tax Test Sought

Pending a poll of House sales-tax sentiment now in progress, advocates of a general retail sales levy which would make up a 2½-billion-dollar revenue shortage, were preparing another committee test just before the bill is reported.

Another show-down will come early next week when Ways and Means Committee leaders go before the House Rules Committee for a green light to the floor. Chairman Doughton is expected to favor the usual House rule, barring any amendments not favored by the committee. An attempt to open the bill to amendments productive of more revenue may be made both by sales tax advocates and Treasury supporters who seek tax reforms voted down in committee.

Transport Tax Proposed

Among items due for possible reconsideration in the Ways and Means Committee were the proposed 5 per cent transportation tax on freight and express and an increase in second and third class mail rates to make up the $102,800,000 annual postoffice deficit from handling these classes of mail matter.

Postmaster General Walker yesterday was reported to have advised committee spokesmen that his department could not make the proposed increase in rates effective for many months. Some members of the House Postoffice Committee recently have pressed for jurisdiction over any projected mail rate increase.

Opposition to the 5 per cent freight and express transportation tax has come chiefly from soft coal interests and others who have protested that the tax would force price increases out of line with the Administration's price-control policies.

Victory Sidelights

Raid Warden's Will Receive Review of Basic Training

Deputy air raid wardens will receive a two-day review of basic training, beginning tonight at 8 o'clock at air raid headquarters, 1341 Maryland Avenue Northeast, Chief Air Raid Warden William A. Mileham announced last night.

The 68 deputies will pass on the instruction, principally in home preparation for air raids, to their zone and sector wardens in subsequent courses to be given in the areas. The main purpose of the extra training is to be sure that each warden is prepared to make the inspection of homes planned for the near future, Mileham said.

He emphasized that these inspections would only be given at the request of the individual householders. "Persons not sufficiently interested in seeing that their homes are equipped for an emergency will certainly not have any warden visits thrust upon them, he said."

Women air-raid wardens of the Friendship, Chevy Chase and adjacent areas will complete their basic training in a three-day warden school to begin at 9 a. m. today at the Woodrow Wilson High School, Nebraska Avenue and Brandywine Street Northwest.

Instituted by the Baltimore Regional Defense Area, the classes in fire and gas defense, decontamination, high explosive, aerial warfare defense and similar subjects will last until 3:30 every day, and will be followed by moving pictures and demonstrations of defense work.

About 50 women are expected to take the course, which will be conducted by Capt. William L. Clemens, Chevy Chase defense chairman; Leonard J. Tucker of the Friendship area, and James A. Deforce, Chevy Chase zone warden.

Army Plans Huddles Far From Capital

The War Department announced yesterday that Army conferences and meetings which involve calling a large number of personnel from distant points will hereafter be held away from Washington as far as possible.

Officials said that the policy was established to curtail the growing burden of rail and air traffic in and out of the Nation's Capital. As far as is practicable, it was said, Army meetings will be held on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays, which are "off-peak" days on trains and airlines.

Conn. Ave Wardens To Meet Tonight

A meeting of all wardens of the Connecticut Avenue Civilian Defense Area will be held tonight at All Souls' Church, Cathedral Avenue and Woodley Road Northwest. Leon Pretzfelder, deputy warden, said plans for organizing a mobilization committee would be discussed

Ickes Hopeful On Relocation Of Pipelines

By the Associated Press

Petroleum Coordinator Ickes announced yesterday the pipe-line relocation program, of the Office of Petroleum Coordination, to cost around 30 million dollars, was expected to add more than 200,000 barrels daily to the petroleum supply of the rationed Eastern States.

The program embraces more than 30 separate undertakings, and Ickes said the War Production Board had granted clearance for all projects thus far presented.

"If early approval can be obtained for all units on which we propose to go ahead," he predicted, "the entire program can be completed within six months, and in three months a majority of the projects will be in active operation."

The program is being financed by the petroleum industry, with new materials used only in instances where, Ickes' office said, secondhand pipe, pumping facilities and other equipment cannot be obtained or employed. It is the amount of new material for which WPB clearance is needed.

Ralph K. Davies, deputy petroleum coordinator, explained that of the 200,000 barrels-a-day increased flow expected from the relocations, 87,000 barrels would be moved directly to the East Coast by pipe lines exclusively, with the remainder transported first by pipeline to points on the Mississippi and Ohio Rivers and then moved eastward by tank car and river barges.

The Office of Defense Transportation yesterday issued an order setting up strict controls over the movement of goods from inland areas into United States ports for export.

Designed to eliminate cargo jams at port cities and to assure prompt and orderly movement of commodities most essential to the economies of the importing countries, the order was worked out by ODT with the State Department, the Board of Economic Warfare and the War Shipping Administration.

Effective immediately, exporters having shipments of 2240 pounds or more intended for Latin America are required to file with the BEW office of export control five copies of a special application for freight space in vessels departing on or after August 15.

If and when the applications are approved by the BEW, they will be delivered to the War Shipping Administration which, when space is available will issue an ODT unit permit as evidence of the availability of cargo space.

The War Production Board allowed sewing machine fanufacturers an additional two months yesterday for production of repair parts.

Under the original limitation order, the manufacturers were given permission to produce—for the six months beginning May 1—25 per cent more repair parts than they made on a monthly average during a two-year base period ended December 31, 1941.

The amendment extends the period to eight months and bases permitted production on the weights of metal used in such parts rather than on the number of parts turned out.

At the same time, WPB directed rebuilders other than manufacturers to stop operations after July 15. Manufacturers have been prohibited from rebuilding machines since May 25.

WPB officials said that Lou Holland of Kansas City, Mo., might be the choice of WPB Chairman Donld M. Nelson to be chairman of the Smaller War Plants Corporation to be established shortly under WPB, but that any selections at this time of a chairman and four other directors were tentative and subject to change.

If chosen to head the corporation, which will have 150 million dollars to spend in bringing small business into the war program, Holland probably also would become a deputy chairman of WPB in charge of subcontracting and the conversion of small industries.

Holland has been president of the Mid-Central Associated Industries, Inc., a pool of more than 30 small firms created last year to take war contracts. It is believed to be the first such pool to get a war contract.

Appointment of two section chiefs and two consultants in the consumer durable goods branch of the Office of Price Administration was announced yesterday.

George Toomey of New York City, president of Cole Toomey Co., Inc., was named chief of the equipment and supplies section, which handles price-control problems of supplies and equipments for offices, stores, hotels, laboratories, schools and institutions. Thomas P. Kelly, Philadelphia engineer and builder, will head the section dealing with electrical appliances and cooking and heating stoves.

Samuel Samson, for more than 20 years an official of the Lewis Furniture Co. of Huntington, W. Va., was named special consultant on retail problems, while Lucius A. Croswell of Evanston, Ill., will serve as special consultant on marketing and selling practices.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, July 7 (AP).—All grains staged a mild rally today, recovering part of the preceding session's loss, as hedging sales were less in evidence. A moderate amount of mill buying, strength in the cotton market and some short covering were factors stimulating the advance. Trading was at a light pace, however, as grain men watched Washington developments on farm legislation.

Wheat closed ⅜ to ¾ higher. July 1.16¾@1.16⅝, September 1.19⅝@1.19½; corn was up ⅝ to 1 cent. July 88⅞@87; oats finished unchanged to ¼ higher; rye gained 1 to 1⅛ cents and soybeans were ¾ lower to ½ higher.

Hedging sales in the wheat pit were more moderate than on the first day of the week as receipts at terminal and subterminal markets declined.

Gliders for Pianos, Turrets for Horns As Music Industry Turns to War Jobs

Caught flush on the chin by the war, the men who made the Nation's musical instruments are trying to roll with the punch and stay on their feet till the bell rings.

The lucky ones, those whose plants can be turned to other uses, are converting to war production. Most of those who cannot convert, will have to shut down.

Factories that turned out pianos are making gliders and shops that fashioned saxophones, cornets and trumpets are producing parts for planes, tanks, navigation instruments and gun turrets.

The War Production Board's various orders shutting down the industry, which yearly did a 40 million dollar business, were sweeping.

The manufacture of band instruments was forbidden after June 30 while stocks in the hands of manufacturers and jobbers were frozen so the armed forces would not want for instruments.

The reason for the crackdown, of course, was that the band instruments used vital materials—brass, zinc, aluminum and even cork—needed badly for war purposes.

Since violins and some guitars and mandolins can be made with little or no metal, the manufacturers of them can keep on working.

The men who made drums will have to abandon use of the metal supporting rods and substitute cords.

"I'll be able to continue making them," one drum manufacturer said, "but those cords will make them look like the drums grandpappy beat on in the Civil War."

Even phonograph records have been affected by the war, since there is a scarcity of the shellac with which they are coated. Dealers are trying to buy old records that can be broken up and used for new records with some of the old shellac salvaged.

The manufacture of harps was stopped May 31. No more organs or pianos may be made after July 31. However, a certain percentage of replacement parts for all musical instruments still may be turned out.

Piano makers, lucky enough to get contracts for gliders or propellers, were able to convert fairly easily. They had expert woodworkers and assemblers. They can also do sub-contracting jobs.

Some organ manufacturers, with their skilled wood and metal workers, have found a way to keep going till the war's end by making special devices for trainer planes or even nonmetal cabinets.

In turning to the production of parts for gun turrets and navigation instruments, the band instrument branch of the industry had skilled metal workers and convertible eqipment, although there has been complaint of difficulty in obtaining certain machine tools.

The head of one of the largest accordion manufacturing firms, gloomily surveying his prospects, said he was trying to get repair job contracts. He has woodworking machines but not precision workmen.

His business was a cinch to be hard hit by the war since, he said, 75 per cent of the interior of accordions is aluminum while the reeds were imported from Europe.

A spokesman for one of the largest harp companies said:

"We've quit selling harps. We've been in this business over 50 years. We're just renting them now to keep our name before the public. If we sold out our harps, we'd have nothing."

Two hundred harps sold in the whole world in any year would be a good sale, he said, noting that the best ones sold for more than $3000 while the ordinary new harp costs about $700. There are 2400 different parts to a harp, requiring six kinds of metal and various kinds of wood.

For the first time in the memory of man harps underwent a revolutionary change in appearance a few years ago when a famous concert harpist asked that one of modernistic design be made for him. It was.

Several others of the same design were also made but that did not interfere with the regular production of the standard type.

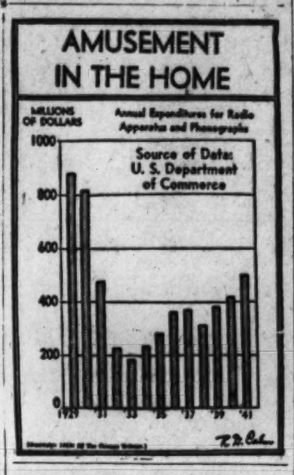
AMUSEMENT IN THE HOME



Pickup Noted In Wholesale Buying for Fall

By the Associated Press

New York, July 7.—More buyers are arriving in New York to purchase their fall merchandise, wholesale market quarters reported today.

After an unusually quiet period in June, purchasing agents of many stores throughout the country have begun to look over lines of clothing, furniture, floor coverings and a wide assortment of other items and reservations indicate the number will be considerably augmented before the end of this week.

Merchants reported a substantial letdown when compared with the feverish pace of wholesale market activity at this time last year when orders for all kinds of merchandise poured in and the problem was to get the quantities asked.

Among the restraining influences this year were listed substantial inventories of many stores, the possibility of some form of inventory control and the general desire of merchants to keep wholesale buying more in line with actual store sales.

N. A. M. Denies Patents Deter War Effort

By the Associated Press

New York, July 7.—The National Association of Manufacturers released today a special patents report which said the Government has power under present laws to have anything produced in war or in peace, regardless of patents.

Prepared by George E. Folk, N. A. M.'s special patent adviser, the report asserted that charges that patent laws had held up the war effort, were without foundation. After citing testimony of Thurman Arnold, Assistant Attorney General in charge of the antitrust division, in favor of proposed patent law changes, it said:

"Thurman Arnold and his associates in the Department of Justice are engineering one of the modern miracles of propaganda in the present attack on the patent system and industry's patent practices.

"In the relation of patents to the war effort and in other respects, Arnold, either through ignorance of the patent law or unfounded prejudice against the patent system, is presenting facts in a way as to mislead and prejudice Congress and the public."

The report said "the fact is that the Government has long had power to have anything produced for it at any time, in war or peace, regardless of patents."

It cited the present law, written in 1910 and amended in 1918, which, it commented, "makes it possible now for anyone to make anything for the Government without considering whether any patents may apply." It concluded:

"The simple truth is that the Government could have had plants built to produce synthetic rubber, aluminum, magnesium, optical instruments, chemicals or anything else it wanted, and it could have used the processes covered by anybody's patent."

Folk, a patent lawyer since 1898, and formerly associated with the patent system as an examiner in the Patent Office, upheld property rights in patents and said they should be on a parity with rights to other property.

Rails Sell Space In 'Guest' Cars

New oYrk, July 7 (AP).—Eastern railroads, it was disclosed today, are selling space in parlor-lounge cars which formerly was used by Pullman passengers on a "guest privilege" basis.

The decision to sell seats in the lounge and observation cars was reached after the Office of Defense Transportation asked the railroads to cut out luxuries as a measure of equipment conservation.

Railroad executives said it was the Government's idea at first to take off the parlor-lounge and observation cars, but the railroads concluded the Government's aims would be met if the space in such cars were sold. The new arrangement means that a Pullman traveler may no longer complete his journey in a lounge smoking car while his regularly assigned space remains unoccupied.

Big Board Insures Self for 15 Million

New York, July 7 (AP).—The New Yock Stock Exchange has taken out Government War Damage Corporation Insurance on all its properties amounting to a total valuation of $15,000,000. Three buildings and their contents, including the main stock exchange house at Broad and Wall Streets, were included, along with the system of the New York Quotation Co., the ticker service of the exchange.

'Panther' Well

Salt Water, Gas, Vacuum, But Oil?—No!

By the Associated Press

Harrisville, W. Va., July 7.—There are wildcat wells and wildcat wells, but the oil drillers out on the Rinehart farm were ready to call theirs a "panther"—or something worse.

First there was salt water, and that's no good.

Then there whs some gas, but that's not what they were after.

But they're still after oil.

The "wildcat" well on the Ritchie County farm of L. J. Rinehart is one of two being drilled in West Virginia by the Benedum-Trees interests of Pittsburgh in an effort to locate new sources of supply to alleviate the Eastern oil shortage.

Ben Simpson of Parkersburg, in charge of the operation, today told this story of his tribulations:

The well was down 5849 feet and water was discovered. That usually means no chance for oil and the well was closed.

The Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co., opening a new plant on the Ohio River near New Martinsville, had a need for salt water and sent down men to examine the operation.

To the surprise of the drillers, the water was gone.

Drilling started again. Last Sunday gas began to flow. The well was blocked off to create pressure and get rid of the gas.

An examination yesterday showed, Simpson said, there wasn't any gas. Instead there was a terrific downdraft—or a vacuum—where the gas had been.

Witnesses said they had never seen anything like it in their oil-drilling experience.

Orders went out to go on down through the Oriskany sand (the well is now at 5980 feet), and on through the Newburger and Clinton sands to 6300 feet if nothing developed.

There were a lot of bets something would develop—although maybe it wouldn't have anything to do with oil.

Staples Buoyant As Traders Await Parity Bill Action

By the Associated Press

Strength in cotton helped lift commodity futures prices generally yesterday as traders awaited Senate action on the Bankhead Bill calling for 100 per cent parity on basic crops.

New York closed 85 cents to $1.45 a bale higher despite some profit-taking. Wool tops showed gains of 1 to 1.3 cents a pound and grease wool advanced 2.2 cents.

At Chicago wheat finished ⅜ to ¾ of a cent a bushel higher while corn was up ⅜ to 1 cent. A let-up in hedging pressure and some mill buying aided the upturn.

Chicago hogs tumbled sharply, declining 25 to 40 cents a hundredweight in reaction to the previous session's 16-year peak. Cattle generally were steady to strong while spring lambs declined 15 to 25 cents.

The Associated Press weighted index of 35 wholesale spot staples advanced to 98.15 per cent of the 1926 average from 98.09 per cent the previous day.

Coal Output Drop Continues in Week

Williamson, W. Va., July 7 (AP).—Despite war demands for coal, production in five West Virginia and Kentucky fields during the week ended June 27 dropped for the third successive week, this time below 1941 output for the same period.

The Williamson Operators Association reported today that the Williamson, Logan and Kanawha fields in West Virginia and the Big Sandy and Hazard fields in Kentucky produced 1,417,500 tons of coal during the week ended June 27. This compared with 1,453,050 for the previous week, 1,488,170 for the week ended June 13 and 1,479,500 for the week ened June 27, 1941.

Detroit Asks Bond Bids

New York, July 7 (AP).—The city of Detroit today formally called for bids on $17,143,000 on refunding bonds to be sold July 14. Bidders must name a coupon not higher than 3½ per cent for all maturities through 1961 and 3¼ per cent for the final maturity.

Seat Price Rises $2000

New York, July 7 (AP).—Arrangements were made today to sell a New York Stock Exchange seat for $23,000. The last previous sale was for $2000 less.

U. S. to Offer 2 Billion in Bonds Today

By the Associated Press

Secretary Morgenthau announced last night the Treasury will offer for sale today two billion dollars of 2 per cent 7-9-year bonds.

The sale is the regular monthly financing which has become necessary to pay for war expenditures in excess of tax receipts.

Another type of financing is expected late this month or early next month, when investors will be permitted to apply for 2½ per cent 20-25-year bonds of a type sold in May.

Today's bond sale will be open to all types of investors without subscriptions. Subscriptions will be received for two days, and billed on a pro rata basis depending on the size of subscriptions in comparison with the two billion dollars of bonds offered.

Pivotal Issues Retreat in Light Selling; Cloudy War News From Russia Is Factor

New York, July 7.—The stock market ran into light selling obstacles today and leaders retreated fractions to around a point.

The cloudy war news from Russia apparently more than offset cheerful tidings from Egypt as a speculative and investment factor and this, plus the fact the list had enjoyed three successive rallying sessions, inspired a little profit cashing here and there.

Some comfort, however, was derived from the lack of any real selling pressure at any time. Volume dwindled appreciably in declining periods compared with recent expansion in dealings when the direction was upward. Transfers totalled 332,440 shares against 420,210 Monday.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was off .2 of a point at 36.1. This barometer was up .5 yesterday.

Trends were a bit shaky at the start. While several pivotal issues were up modest fractions at the close, losses among the more active performers were widespread.

In the falling division were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Santa Fe, Southern Railway, Great Northern, American Telephone, Anaconda, Chrysler, U. S. Rubber, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Douglas Aircraft, American Can, duPont and Western Union.

Among forward movers were Cerro de Pasco, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Texas Co., Westinghouse, American Airlines, United Aircraft, Johns-Manville and United States Gypsum.

Faint murmurs of inflation were heard around board rooms and some observers thought such talk may have instigated mild bidding for specialized stocks in the past week or so. It was pointed out, though, that inflation hedges in the securities division, even if they worked, would have to contend eventually with the tax collector.

At Chicago, hogs broke 25 to 40 cents a hundredweight when it was reported the Office of Price Administration was considering the imposition of a ceiling on live porkers. Commodities generally turned in good recoveries. Wheat was up ¾ to ⅞ of a cent a bushel, and corn gained ⅝ to 1. Cotton futures finished 85 cents to 1.45 a bale higher.

There were scattered strong spots in the Curb. Pittsburgh Plate Glass was up 3½, Sherwin-Williams 3, Singer Manufacturing 4 and Gulf Oil 1⅛. Laggards included Pantepec, Pennroad, American Light and Mead Johnson. Turnover here amounted to 50,250 shares, versus 70,285 the day before.

Attendance Heavy At Furniture Shows

Chicago, July 7 (AP).—Despite a falling off in attendance in comparison with prewar shows, officials of Chicago's two-summer home furnishing markets reported today that buyer representation was unusually widespread as the expositions opened yesterday.

Lawrence H. Whiting, president of the American Furniture Mart, said 3467 manufacturers and buyers registered on the first day of the summer national home furnishings market. This number was only about 5 per cent under attendance at the last winter show in January and last year's summer market.

Approximately 2000 registered at the International Home Furnishings Market being held in the merchandise mart, according to Percy Wilson, manager of the mart. This compared with about 2300 first day visitors at the January show and 2500 last July on opening day.

Eric Sevareid has been appointed chief of the Columbia Broadcasting System's Washington news bureau, succeeding Albert Warner, who resigned July 1 to be commissioned a major in the public relations staff of the Army. The appointment of Sevareid was announced by Paul White, C. B. S.'s director of public affairs.

Sevareid is 32 years old and has been a staff newscaster for C. B. S. in Washington the last 18 months. A reporter since he was 18, among his outstanding feats were his broadcasts from Bordeaux while the French government had emergency headquarters there after France fell. He was the only link with the outside world for more than 24 hours.

Sevareid studied at the University of Minnesota, at the Sorbonne in Paris, and in London. He was night editor for the United Press in the French capital, became city editor of the Paris Herald, then joined the C. B. S. staff in Paris.

Sevareid went to Bordeaux with members of the French Cabinet, leaving Paris just before the first German troops arrived. Later he went to Vichy, then was transferred to the C. B. S. office in London and finally was sent to Washington.

Sevareid is heard regularly on C. B. S. on "The World Today" at 6:45 p. m., E. W. T., and on Saturdays and Sundays from 8:55 to 9 p. m., E. W. T., as well as on other C. B. S. news programs.

Contract Bridge

This question concerns your play of today's hand. You are sitting South at a three-no-trump contract and West opens the spade six. How do you handle your cards so as to make nine tricks. Mrs. Olive Peterson of Philadelphia played the deal, and her solution is presented below.

Today's Hand

Both Sides Vulnerable
SOUTH DEALER

NORTH: ♠ J532 ♡ 86 ◇ A643 ♣ 1063
WEST: ♠ Q9864 ♡ AQ4 ◇ 1098 ♣ Q4
EAST: ♠ 107 ♡ 97532 ◇ 73 ♣ K752
SOUTH: ♠ AK ♡ KJ10 ◇ KQJ8 ♣ AJ98

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
2 NT	Pass	3 NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: 6 ♠.

The Solution

Mrs. Peterson was able to win her three no-trump contract by her expert handling of the club and diamond suits. After winning the spade opening in her hand she led the king of diamonds and continued with the queen. When the adversaries followed suit each time declarer knew it was safe to play the diamond jack and overtake with dummy's ace, because the last adverse diamond would fall on that trick, dummy obtaining two entries in the diamond ace and six spot.

To trick five the three of clubs, not the ten, was led from North and South played the jack. West won the queen and shifted to a low spade, removing declarer's ace. Mrs. Peterson then played a small diamond to dummy's good six and followed with the club ten, which held when East and South played low. Another club lead gave declarer one more finesse and the ace dropped the king from East.

West took the last three tricks with the heart ace and queen and the high spade, but declarer already had won her nine tricks: four diamonds, three clubs and two spades.

The game hinged on the development of an extra diamond entry in North and on leading a low club to the first club trick and the club ten to the second, on the assumption that the adverse club honors were divided, thus offording an extra club lead from dummy and an extra chance to finesse.

Col. J. S. Cecil's Widow Leaves $448,883 Estate

An estate valued at $448,883 was left by the late Mrs. Emma Caroline Schenck Cecil, widow of Col. Joseph S. Cecil, according to a petition for probate of her will filed in District Court yesterday. Mrs. Cecil, who died June 15, lived at 2029 Connecticut Avenue Northwest.

The bulk of the estate was left in trust, with the income going to her daughter, Mrs. Thomas E. Adams, of Washington. Under provisions of the will, the principal will be divided, on Mrs. Adams' death, between a charity for orphans and a charity devoted to the care of animals. The estate consists of securities and cash worth $436,883 and real estate valued at $12,000.

Mrs. Cecil was buried beside her husband in Arlington Cemetery, as she had directed in her will.

SOLID, CAPTAIN! SUPER-SOLID!... YOU GOT HER DOWN—BUT LOOK AT THOSE MEN RUNNING OVER HERE!
THEY'RE DRESSED LIKE FARMERS—BUT WE WON'T TAKE A CHANCE! ALL GUNNERS AT THEIR POSTS UNTIL WE SEE HOW WE STAND!
SEE THE PALE FACES? THEY ARE NOT OF THE ISLAND PEOPLE! BRING FORTH THE FLAG OF FREE CHINA TO PROVE OUR ALLEGIANCE!
THEY'VE GOT A CHINESE FLAG—AND THEY'RE MOTIONING US TO FOLLOW THEM! MIGHT AS WELL TAXI ALONG BEHIND—WE CAN'T SIT HERE!... BUT KEEP ALERT FOR A TRICK!
THE LEADER IS MOTIONING US TO STOP—AND CUT THE ENGINES! THOSE GUYS ARE TEARING THE THATCH OFF THE COTTAGE!... THEY'RE GOING TO CAMOUFLAGE US!.... CAPTAIN, I THINK I KNOW NOW WHY THE CHINESE HAVE HELD OUT SO LONG IN THIS WAR!

MARY WORTH'S FAMILY — BY DALE ALLEN

TIRELESSLY, HOUR AFTER HOUR, MARY MOVES THROUGH THE MAKESHIFT HOSPITALS OF THE STORM-STRICKEN TOWN LIKE A WHITE-HAIRED ANGEL OF MERCY.
MUMMY! I WANT... MY MUMMY!
THERE, CHILD! GO BACK TO SLEEP NOW!
YOU LOOK PALE, MRS. WORTH! HADN'T YOU BETTER LIE DOWN AND GET SOME REST?
LATER, DOCTOR!... A CALL JUST CAME IN FROM THE POWDER FACTORY! THEY NEED MORE NURSES THERE... AT ONCE!

MICKEY FINN — Spotted! — BY LANK LEONARD

THE SEAM HAD JUST OPENED UP!
I SURE WAS LUCKY THAT A TAILOR WAS SO HANDY!
YEAH! IT LOOKED BAD!
THAT WAS HIM, MR. THORNE!
OKAY! NOW I'LL GET A LOOK AT THE CHEMIST.
I'D BETTER NOT GO INTO THE DRUG STORE WITH YOU, MR. THORNE. HE MIGHT REMEMBER ME!
IT WON'T BE NECESSARY FOR YOU TO GO IN! YOU SAID HE'S BALD, WEARS GLASSES, AND HAS A SMALL MUSTACHE—I'LL SPOT HIM!
A DOZEN QUININE PILLS!
YESSIR!

MR. AND MRS. — That Matter Is Settled — BY ARTHUR FOLWELL and ELLISON HOOVER

SAY, WHEN IS GROUND HOG DAY?
WHAT? WHAT ARE YOU TALKING ABOUT?
ISN'T THERE A SAYING THAT IF IT RAINS ON GROUND HOG DAY, IT WILL RAIN FOR FORTY DAYS MORE?
YOU MEAN ST. SWITHIN'S DAY
DO I? SAINT SWITHIN SEES HIS SHADOW AND IT RAINS—IS THAT IT?
NO, IT ISN'T—HE CRAWLS BACK IN HIS HOLE—OH, YOU'RE GETTING ME ALL MIXED UP WELL, WHATEVER IT IS, WHEN IS IT?
OH—IT'S SOME TIME THIS MONTH. IT HAS EITHER HAPPENED OR IT HASN'T. I DON'T KNOW

DIXIE DUGAN — Fourth Place — BY J. P. McEVOY and H. J. STRIEBEL

JUST—A—MOMENT, LITTLE MISS SPITFIRE! BEFORE YOU DO ANY "THROWING OUT" YOU'RE GOING TO LISTEN TO ME!!
MAKE IT SHORT, THEN!
IN THE FIRST PLACE WE'VE BEEN COMING HERE FOR YEARS—IN THE SECOND PLACE WE NEED NO INVITATION—IN THE THIRD PLACE WE DON'T KNOW YOU!
WHAT ??? NO FOURTH PLACE?
IN THE FIRST PLACE THIS IS MY HOME FOR THE TIME BEING—IN THE SECOND PLACE YOU'RE TRESPASSING—AND I DON'T CARE TO KNOW ANY OF YOU IN THE THIRD PLACE—
—AND THAT PUTS YOU IN PLACE IN THE FOURTH PLACE!

H. E. Burgess Funeral Set For Tomorrow

The funeral of Herman E. Burgess, 78, retired contractor and builder in Washington's Northeast section, will be from the home of his son, A. Eugene Burgess, 4018 Hamilton Street, Hyattsville, Md., tomorrow at 2 p. m. A former treasurer of Prince Georges County, Mr. Burgess was one of the few Republicans ever elected to public office in that county.

Mr. Burgess retired from the contracting business, in which he was a partner of the late James H. Parsons, when he was 53 years old. In later years he and his wife, Mrs. Catherine S. Burgess, spent their summers at a cottage at North Beach, Md., and their winters in Florida. Married in Washington, they celebrated their fifty-fourth wedding anniversary last January.

Born in a one-room log cabin in Savage, Md., Mr. Burgess stopped school when he was about 11 to lead his blind grandfather. When the grandfather died, he worked for a time on a farm, then with the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. He was later employed by the Government, but when he ws 23 years old he quit to learn the building trade at 50 cents a day.

For many years he lived on Twelfth Street Northeast, in Brookland, D. C., which when he moved there was still undeveloped. As a builder, Mr. Burgess specialized in fire and school houses. He built the firehouse in Brookland where Station No. 7 is now, and the fire engine house in Hyattsville. He was also the builder of the Hyattsville Episcopal Church and most of the buildings of the National Park Seminary in Forest Glen, Md.

Mr. Burgess was a past noble grand of Oriole Lodge, No. 74, Odd Fellows, of which he was one of the first members, joining about 45 years ago. He was also an early member of Mount Herman Masonic Lodge, No. 169, in Hyattsville.

Following a heart attack two weeks ago, Mr. Burgess was taken to Calvert County Hospital, where he died Monday. Surviving, in addition to his widow and son, are a daughter, Mrs. F. Elizabeth Heiss; three grandchildren and one great grandchild. Burial will be in Glenwood Cemetery.

Jesse S. Reeves, International Law Authority, Dies

Ann Arbor, Mich., July 7 (AP).—Jesse Siddal Reeves, 70, University of Michigan professor of international law and one of the world's foremost authorities in his field, died here today.

A native of Richmond, Ind., Reeves lectured in political science at Johns Hopkins University from 1905-06, was assistant professor at Dartmouth from 1907-10, and joined the University of Michigan faculty as a full professor in 1910.

He served The Hague conference in 1930 as technical adviser in the codification of international law.

Author of many books which still serve as texts for international law, Reeves was educated at Kenyon and Amherst Colleges and held honorary degrees from Williams and Johns Hopkins.

Sir William Neal Dies; Ex-Mayor of London

London, July 7 (AP).—Sir William Phene Neal, 81, who was Lord Mayor of London in 1930 and 1931, died today. Widely known for an aversion to oratory, he is said to have made the shortest Lord Mayor's speech in history, in 15 words. Before he became Lord Mayor, Sir William was senior sheriff of the city of London.

Daniel Willard's Rites To Be Held Today

Baltimore, July 7 (AP).—Private funeral services will be held tomorrow at the family home at Goodwood Gardens for Daniel Willard, former president of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, who died yesterday after a brief illness.

Burial will be in the family plot at Hartland, Vt., Friday.

Jere A. Costello, Attorney, Dies; Served in Spanish War

Jere A. Costello, 72, Washington attorney and veteran of the Spanish-American War, who served in Cuba with the First District of Columbia Volunteers, died yesterday at his home, 120 Hesketh Street, Chevy Chase, Md.

COSTELLO

Serving on the legislative committee of the United Spanish War Veterans for a number of years, Mr. Costello was active in securing increased veteran benefits. For this service he was voted a life membership in the organization.

Born in Washington June 8, 1870, the son of the late Jeremiah and Catherine Lawton Costello, Mr. Costello was educated at St. Patrick's Parochial School and St. John's College. He received his degree in law from Georgetown University. In 1901 he married the former Annie Nash in Rockville. He practiced law here for about 30 years, being a national service officer of the United Spanish War Veterans for about half that time.

Mr. Costello was a past commander of the Gen. Nelson A. Miles Camp, No. 1, of the U. S. W. V., a past departmental commander of the District of Columbia, U. S. W. V. and adjutant general for one term of the national organization.

He also belonged to the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the Military Order of the Serpent, the District Bar Association, the Holy Name Society of Blessed Sacrament Church and Manresa Retreat League, a religious organization.

Burial with military honors will be Friday in Arlington National Cemetery. Funeral services will be at S. H. Hines funeral home, 2901 Fourteenth Street Northwest, Friday at 9:30 a. m., followed by requiem high mass at the Shrine of the Blessed Sacrament at 10 a. m.

Veterans to Be Bearers

Mr. Costello was a brother of the late John F. Costello, Democratic National Committeeman for the District for 20 years, and the late Walter J. Costello, chairman of the Democratic Central Committee for the District.

Surviving are his wife, a son, Walter J. Costello, and a grandson, Walter J. Costello 3d, and a sister, Mrs. Mary C. Bryan, all of Washington.

George C. French's Funeral Rites Set Tomorrow

George C. French, 79, 110 Battery Lane, Bethesda, Md., died yesterday at the Washington Sanitarium and Hospital, following a two weeks' illness.

He had been employed as a watchman for the past five years at Fidelity Storage Co., coming here from Montgomery County, Ohio, where he was a farmer most of his life.

Mr. French, who enjoyed travel, had seen most of this country several times over during his life. His wife, Sue S. French, died in 1928. Funeral services will be from Fort Lincoln Chapel at 2 p. m. tomorrow with burial at Fort Lincoln Cemetery. His body is at the Bethesda Chevy Chase Funeral Home of William Reuben Pumphrey, 7557 Wisconsin Avenue.

Surviving are three daughters, Mrs. A. J. Dinger of Washington, Mrs. Albert L. Thompson and Miss Ruth French, both of Bethesda; and four sons, A. R. French of Hagerstown, Md.; Charles French of Chatfield, Minn., and George B. French and Clark French, both of Dayton, Ohio.

Clifford A. Klein Funeral Friday

Rites for Clifford A. Klein, 29, native Washingtonian, will be from his home, 617 Kenyon Street Northwest, Friday at 7: 30 a. m., with requiem mas at Sacred Heart Church at 8 a. m. Burial wil be in Ivy Hill Cemetery, Alexandria.

Mr. Klein was taken to Providence Hospital Saturday and died there Monday. He had worked at the Washington Navy Yard for the past year.

Surviving are his mother, Mrs. Catherine Klein; a sister, Mrs. W. R. Waldron, and five brothers, Henry, George, Albert, Sterling and Earl Klein.

Thomas Steuart Funeral Will Be Held Tomorrow

Funeral services for Thomas J. Steuart, 62, of 1870 Wyoming Avenue Northwest, who died Monday at Doctors Hospital after a long illness, will be held tomorrow at 11 a. m. from the Gawler funeral home, 1756 Pennsylvania Avenue Northwest. Burial will follow in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

A native of New York City, Mr. Steuart was associated with a newspaper in Hartford, Conn., before coming to Washington 20 years ago. For some time he was educational director of the Antisaloon League. From 1931 until his death he was with the Independent Petroleum Association, as assistant to the president.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Estelle Steuart; a daughter, Louise Martha Steuart, of Chicago, and two sons, Allan W. of Chicago and Gordon Steuart of the United States Army.

Arlington Rites To Be Held Today For D. L. Waldron

David L. Waldron, 52, attorney for the Federal Security Agency, will be buried today with full military honors in Arlington National Cemetery following requiem mass at 9:30 a. m. in St. Michael's Catholic Church, Silver Spring, Md.

Burial at first was to be in Greensburg, Pa., but arrangements were changed yesterday. Mr. Waldron, a World War I veteran, died Sunday at his home 611 Pershing Drive, Silver Spring, where he had lived for eight years.

Mr. Waldron rose to the rank of major in World War I, serving in the Meuse-Argonne with the Eighty-first Division.

He was a graduate of the Harvard Law School and Georgetown University. Surviving are his wife, Collette, five children, four sisters and a brother.

P. H. Blackwell To Be Buried In Arlington

Peter Harry Blackwell, 58, World War veteran, will be buried in Arlington Cemetery today following requiem mass at 9 a. m. in St. Gabriel's Church.

Mr. Blackwell served as a noncommissioned officer aboard the U. S. S. Hancock in the last war. After the war as a chief carpenter he helped build the landing pier at Pearl Harbor. He served in the Navy until 1921. American Legion services were held for him last night at the S. H. Hines funeral home, 2901 Fourteenth Street Northwest.

A member of Fort Stevens Post, No. 32, Mr. Blackwell played baritone-bugle with the Fort Stevens Drum and Bugle Corps for about four years. He was born in Maine, but spent most of his life in Jamestown, R. I., where he married the former Estelle Frances Brown in 1906. In Jamestown, Mr. Blackwell was a member of the town council and well known as a ball player.

Moving to Washington about seven years ago, he continued in his trade as a builder, working on Government projects. He had been ill about two years before he died Monday at Emergency Hospital.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Estelle Blackwell, 1310 Farragut Street Northwest; four children, Mrs. George H. Likert of Milwaukee, who was with him when he died, Mrs. Andrew Dawson, a teacher in the public schools here, Peter Harry Blackwell, jr., and Richard B. Blackwell both of Washington; and four grandchildren, Susan and Peter Likert and Jay and Christine Dawson.

Bishop Ainsworth, Methodist Leader, Dies in Asheville

By the Associated Press

Asheville, N. C., July 8.—Bishop William Newman Ainsworth, 70, a Methodist circuit rider's son who became one of the denomination's leaders, died of a heart attack today.

He came here yesterday from his Macon (Ga.) home to spend the summer and died at the Vanderbilt Hotel. His wife and a son, Malcolm Ainsworth, secretary of the Asheville Chamber of Commerce, were with him. He also leaves another son, W. N. Ainsworth, jr., of Atlanta.

Bishop Ainsworth was a strong advocate of Methodist Church union when the matter came before the Southern branch of the church. It was approved in 1939.

The bishop was a vigorous supporter of prohibition and throughout his long career led dry forces, once serving as national head of the Antisaloon League.

He served as president of Wesleyan College, Macon, Ga., the Nation's oldest chartered woman's college and a Methodist institution.

Bishop Ainsworth later served as head of his church in Japan, China and Korea. He was head of the Southern Church in 1937, when Japan invaded China and at that time he warned the United States Government that unless this Nation and Great Britain joined to halt this aggression they would regret their inaction.

Bishop Ainsworth was born in Camilla, Ga., February 10, 1872, the son of the Rev. and Mrs. James T. Ainsworth. At 14 the young boy decided to become a minister and after attending Emory College was admitted to the South Georgia Conference of the Methodist Church South, in December, 1891.

When 29, he was assigned to Mulberry Street Church at Macon, the youngest pastor in its history. The church is one of the most powerful and richest in the conference.

The 1918 general conference elected him a bishop and he served in that office in Texas, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia, Tennessee, Virginia, Cuba, China, Japan and Korea.

Samuel Hecht Funeral Today

Military burial in Arlington Cemetery today for Samuel Hecht, 55, who saw service for 22 months abroad in the World War and following the armistice, will follow services at St. Ann's Church at 11 a. m.

A New Yorker all his life, Mr. Hecht came here about two weeks ago for a chest operation at Mount Alto Hospital, where he died Monday. He retired about a year ago from a position with the New York postoffice, where he had been employed for 28 years.

In World War I Mr. Hecht was a sergeant with Motor Transport Division 317. He was with the army of occupation after the war from November to July. He was a member of the Manhassett, Long Island, American Legion Post. Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Hecht, and a daughter, Helen Hecht, of Manhasset.

Three Seek Seat Of Hamilton Fish In G. O. P. Primary

Albany, N. Y., July 7 (AP).—A triple offensive to unseat Representative Hamilton Fish in the Republican primary election of New York's Twenty-sixth Congressional District developed tonight as the midnight deadline for filing nominating petitions neared.

At the same time, two candidates sought the Democratic nomination for the seat which Fish has held 22 years.

Fish will fight it out in the Republican primary, nominating petitions showed, with Assemblyman Emerson D. Fite, Vassar College professor; Augustus W. Bennett, Newburgh attorney, and Edward J. Bowen, 75-year-old Poughkeepsie president. Bowen, an enrolled Democrat, is entering the Republican primary for the fifth time against Fish.

Bowen and Ferdinand A. Hoyt, a State workmen's compensation referee from Beacon, filed for the Democratic nomination.

Heart Attack Caused Miss McMullen's Death

Miss Edna W. McMullen, 30, died of a heart ailment at her apartment, 1624 Nineteenth Street Northwest, Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald revealed yesterday after an autopsy. He certified the death to be from natural causes.

Apparently dead for "at least three days," Miss McMullen, an employe of the chief engineer's office of the War Department, was found Monday after a laundryman was unable to gain entrance though a radio could be heard through the door.

14,000 Canadians Agree To End Munitions Strike

Montreal, July 7 (AP).—Some of the 14,000 workers on strike at a Cherrier, Quebec, munitions plant have agreed to go back to work tomorrow at midnight and the rest will vote at shift mass meetings tonight and early tomorrow.

Labor leaders urged the men to return to work after all had walked out in a dispute over the dismissal of several employes for union activities. Negotiations with company officials will begin as soon as all three shifts have returned to their jobs, labor leaders said.
